People made it happen

Lodi High School is more than the school building, or the numbers on the attendance card, or the red-and-white sports uniforms, the test scores and the school activities. Students are the humor, the warmth, the ideas and the backbone that put it all together and make it unique and memorable.

Many of the events described in this book have happened before and will happen again, but it will never be exactly the same way it was this time.

You were all there for this particular excitement, this pain, this confusion and this triumph. The people you were with and the way it was at that time makes each memory one of a kind. No matter what the results, the PEOPLE WHO MADE IT HAPPEN were more important than any of the happenings of 1982.

School spirit was up!

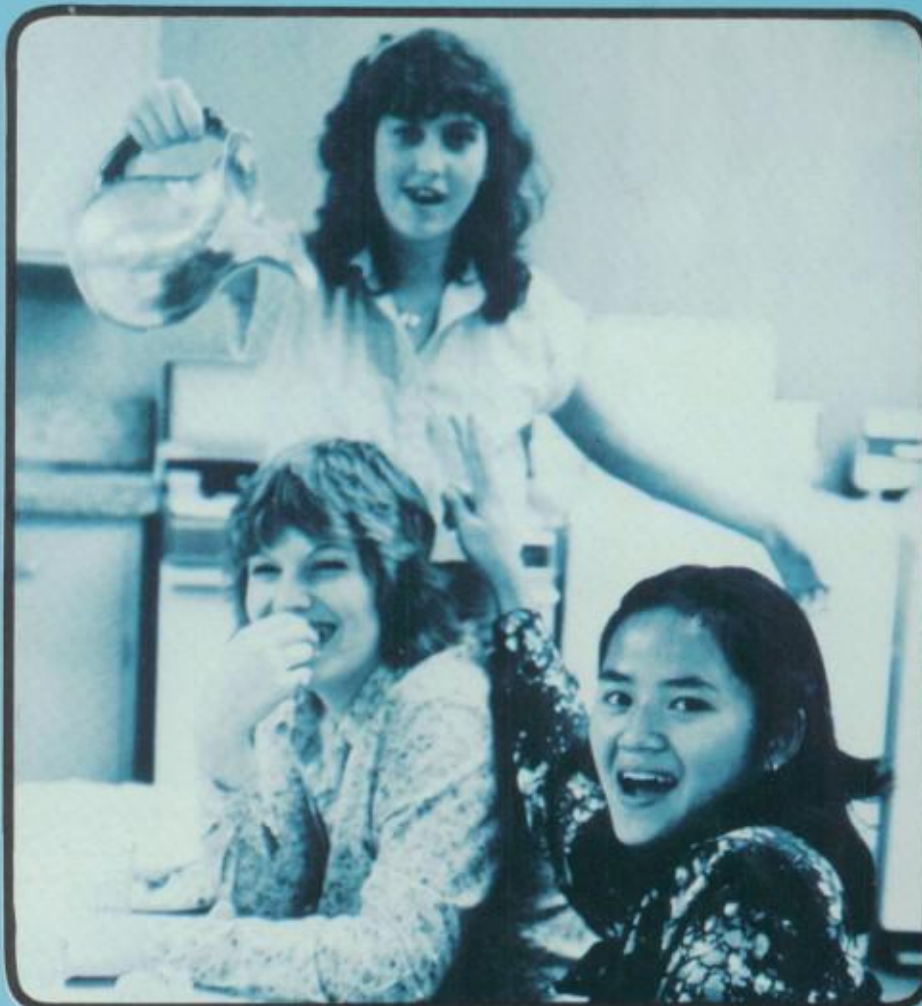

1982 will be remembered as the year that spirit came back to Lodi High School. School spirit, which had faded into semi-obsolescence since 1979, was greatly revived by the efforts of the senior class, and spread rapidly to the underclassmen.

For the two previous years, rallies had been held before or after school, with the result that attendance was quite low. This year however, the rallies were put into a time slot between second and third periods. Not only was attendance up, but the performances were of much higher quality.

For a change, the LHS spirit leaders actually looked forward to performing at the rallies. Senior Julie Diederich, A—Song leader, said, "It was fun...people got into it and they were rowdy! I really had fun and enjoyed performing!"

The rise in rally attendance paralleled the upward swing in spectator turnouts for the school sporting events. The people at Lodi High in 1982 can congratulate themselves for raising school spirit and pride.

Despite short budgets LHS clubs carried on!

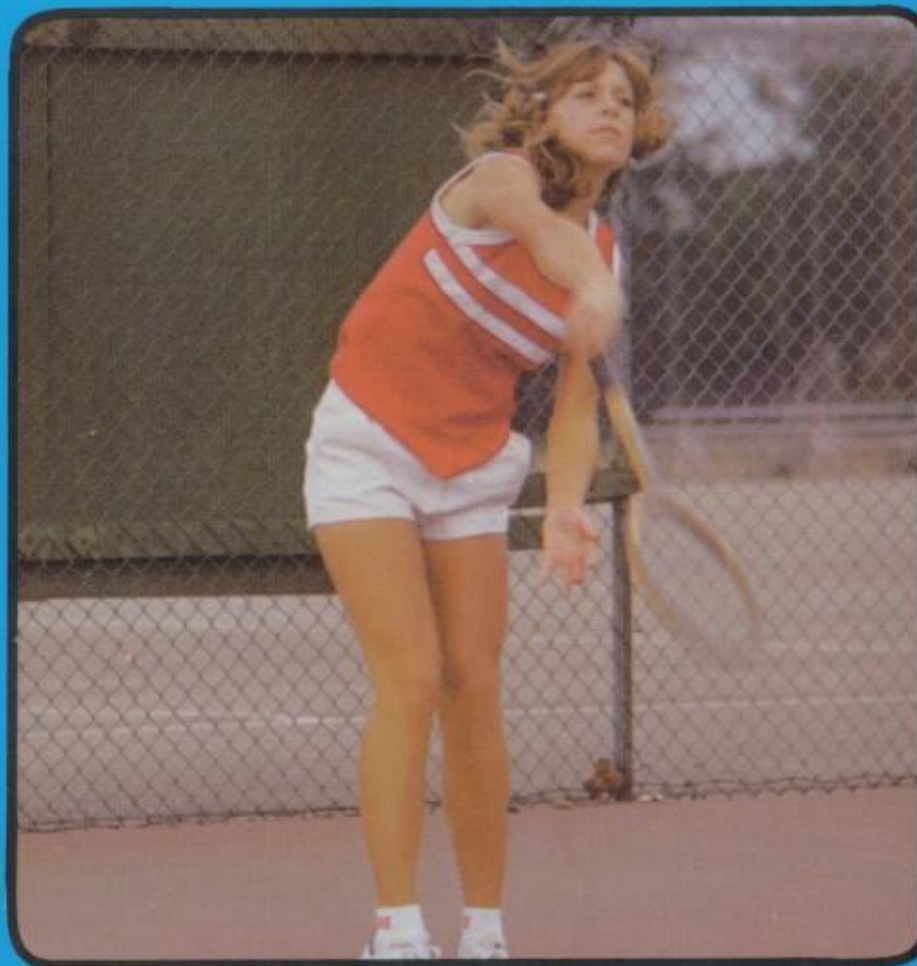

Rising costs in transportation and full expenses, and drops in available funding for club activities lessened the amount of field trips and excursion activities available to clubs.

Membership has been greater than ever, even with these setbacks. Nevertheless, most Lodi High School clubs were still operating on a pretty low profile.

Students and teachers tried to re-establish older clubs which were once active on the campus. Some of the once-familiar names resurrected this year were Key Club and Chess Club. Key Club, advised by Mr. Jerry Fish, was restarted mostly to perform community services for the city.

The Chess Club was advised by Mr. Bob Loken, attempted to spark new interest in this oldest of games.

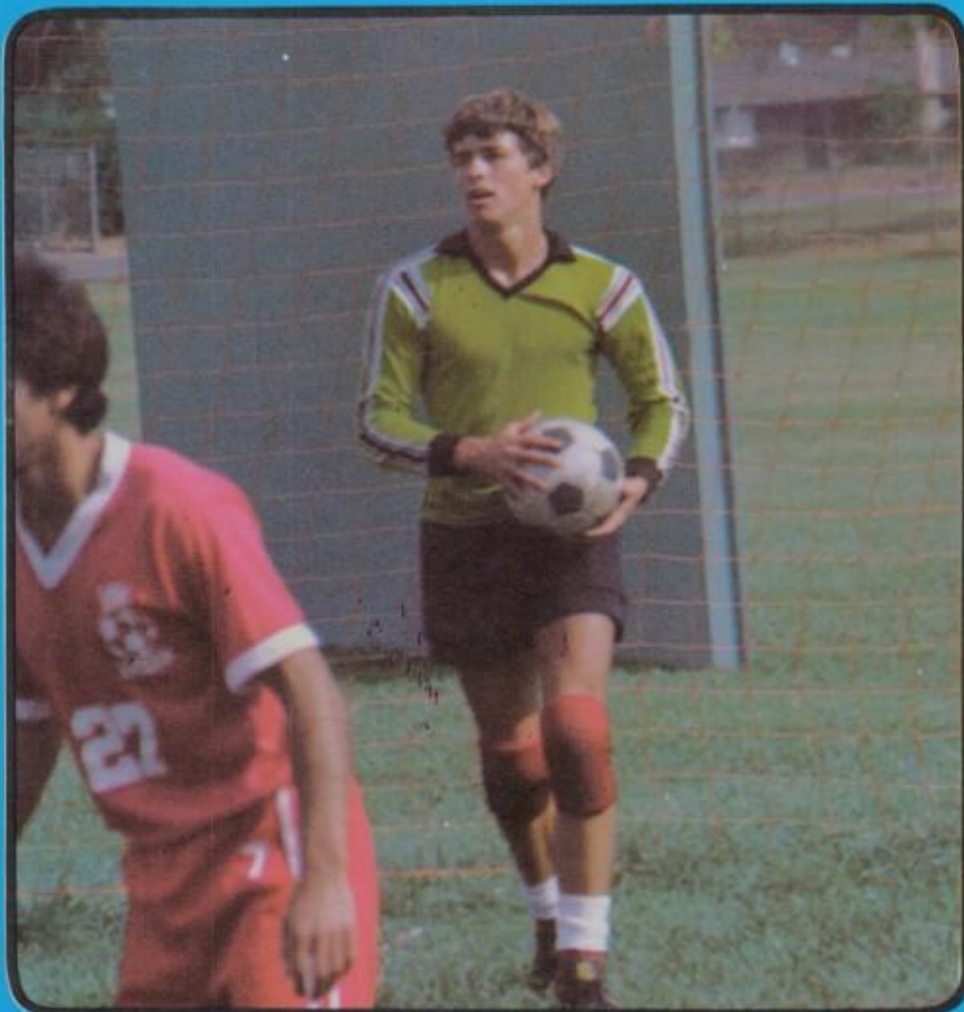

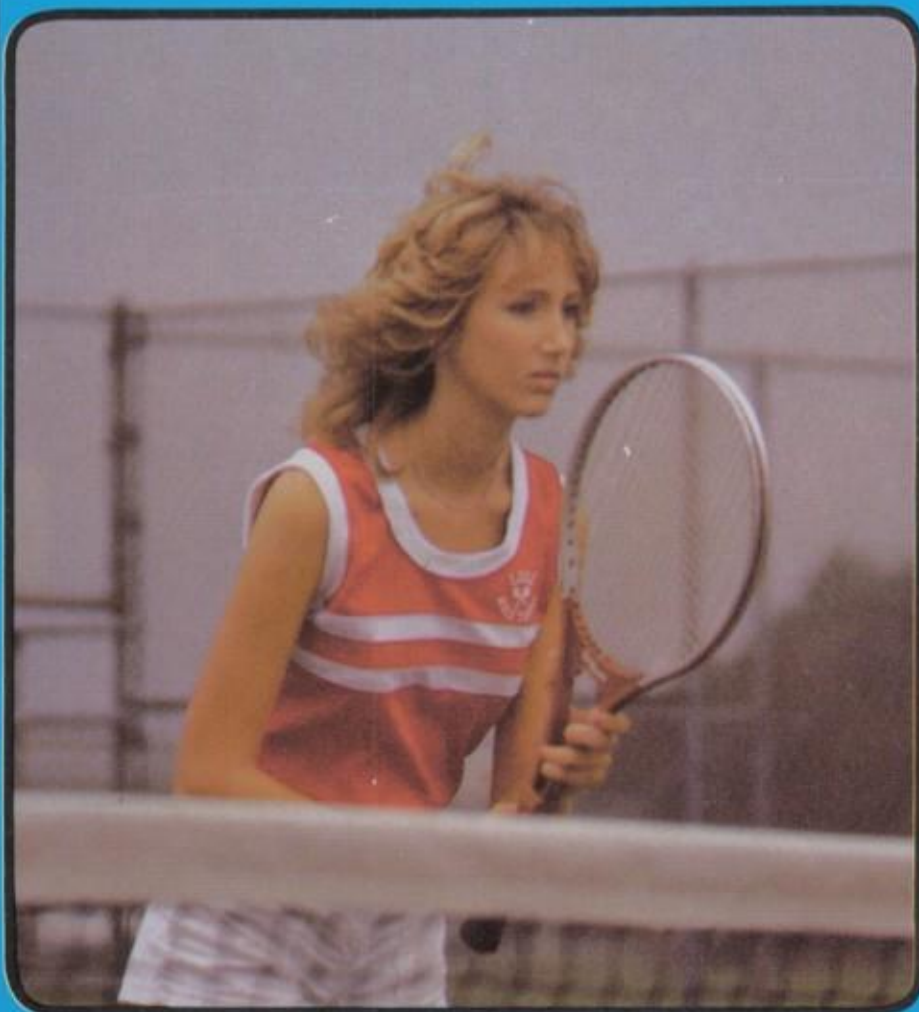

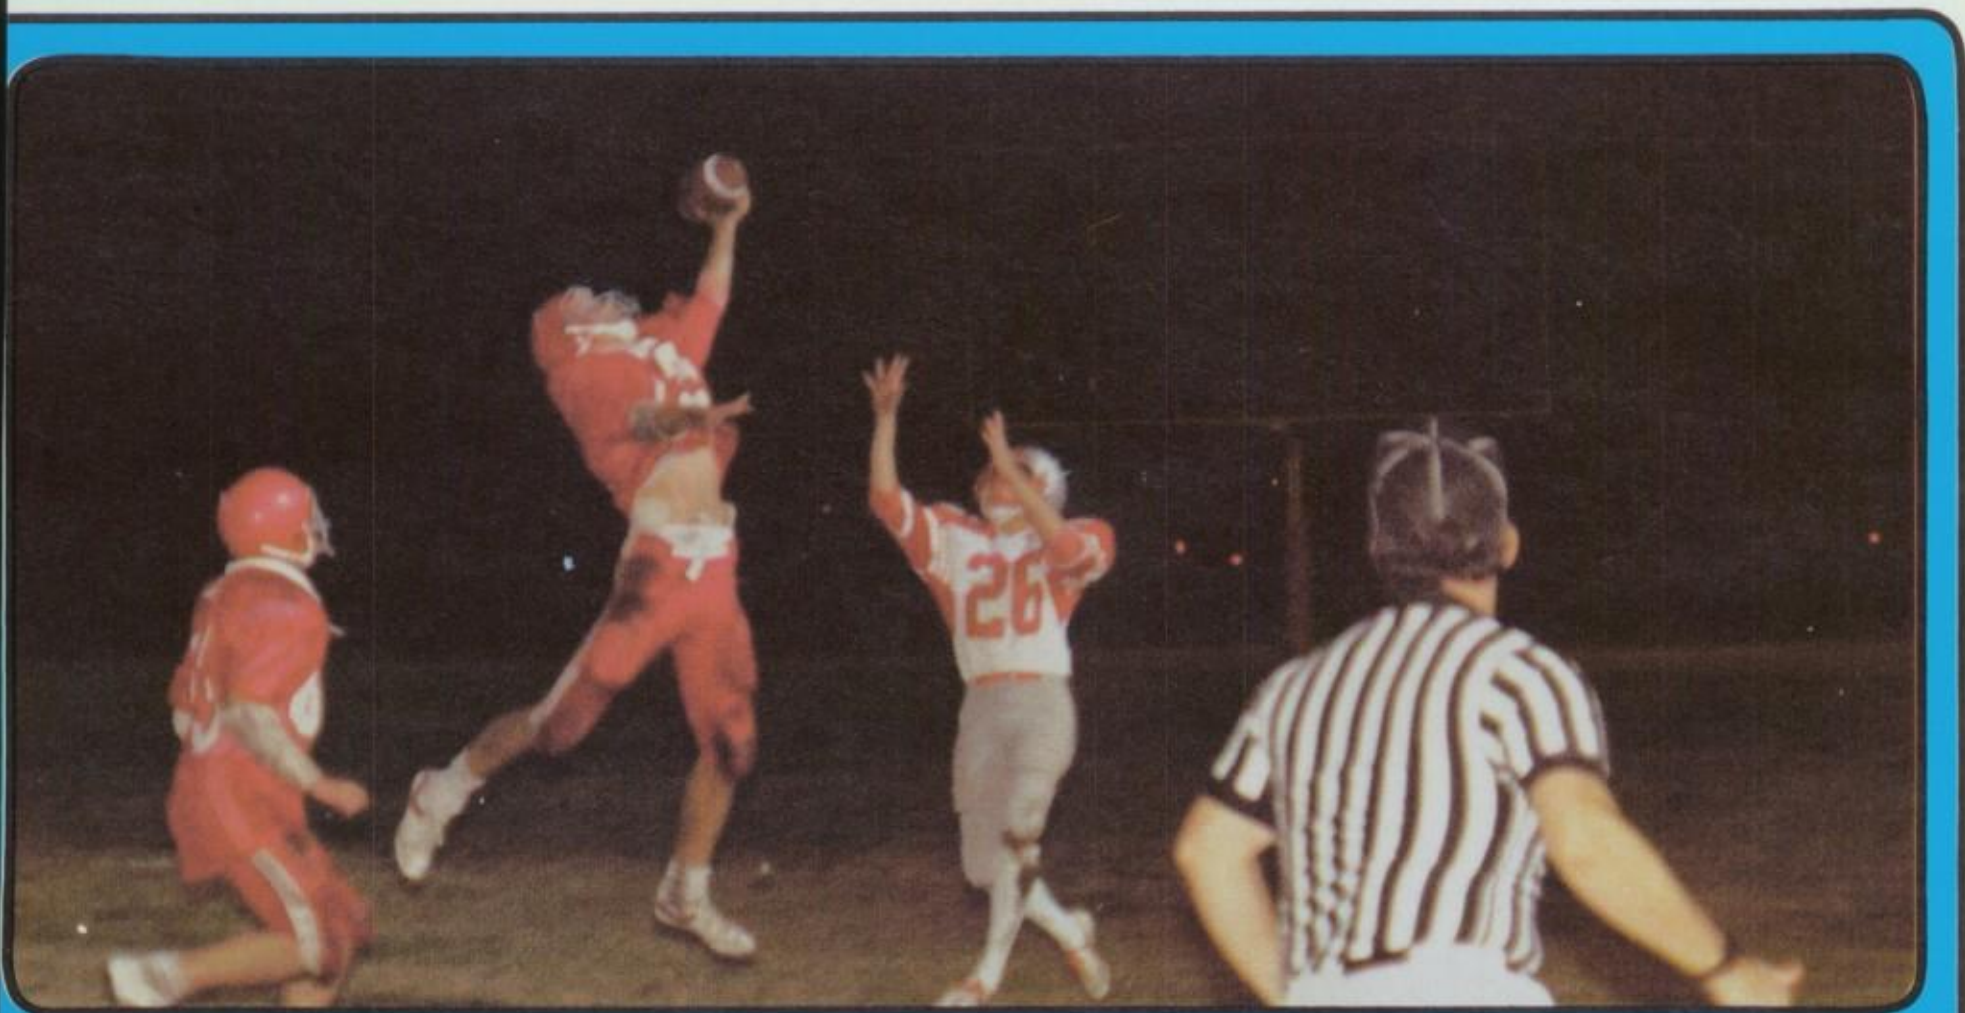

Clubs were active this year, doing such things as producing floats for the homecoming events, sponsoring drama events and plays, concerts, and study excursions to out-of-area locations. In all, 1982 was an active year for the people who made the clubs work.

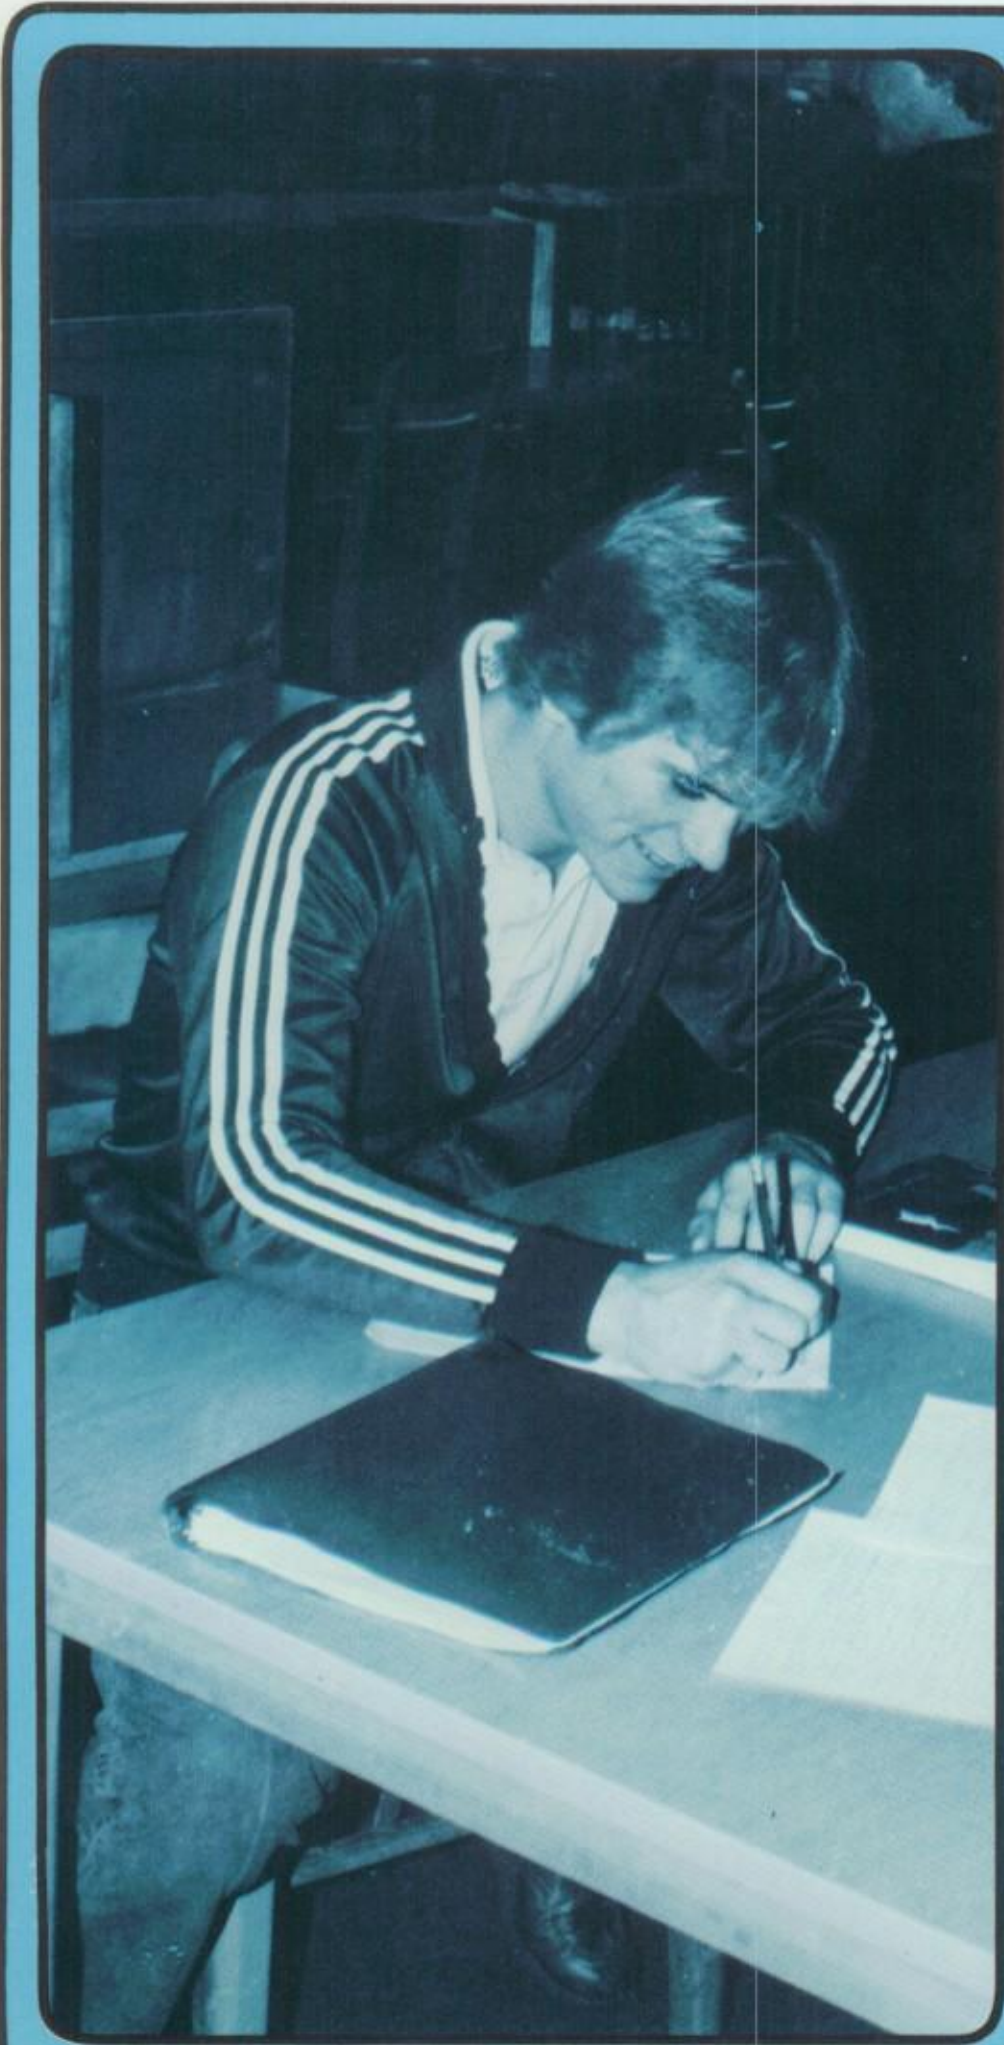

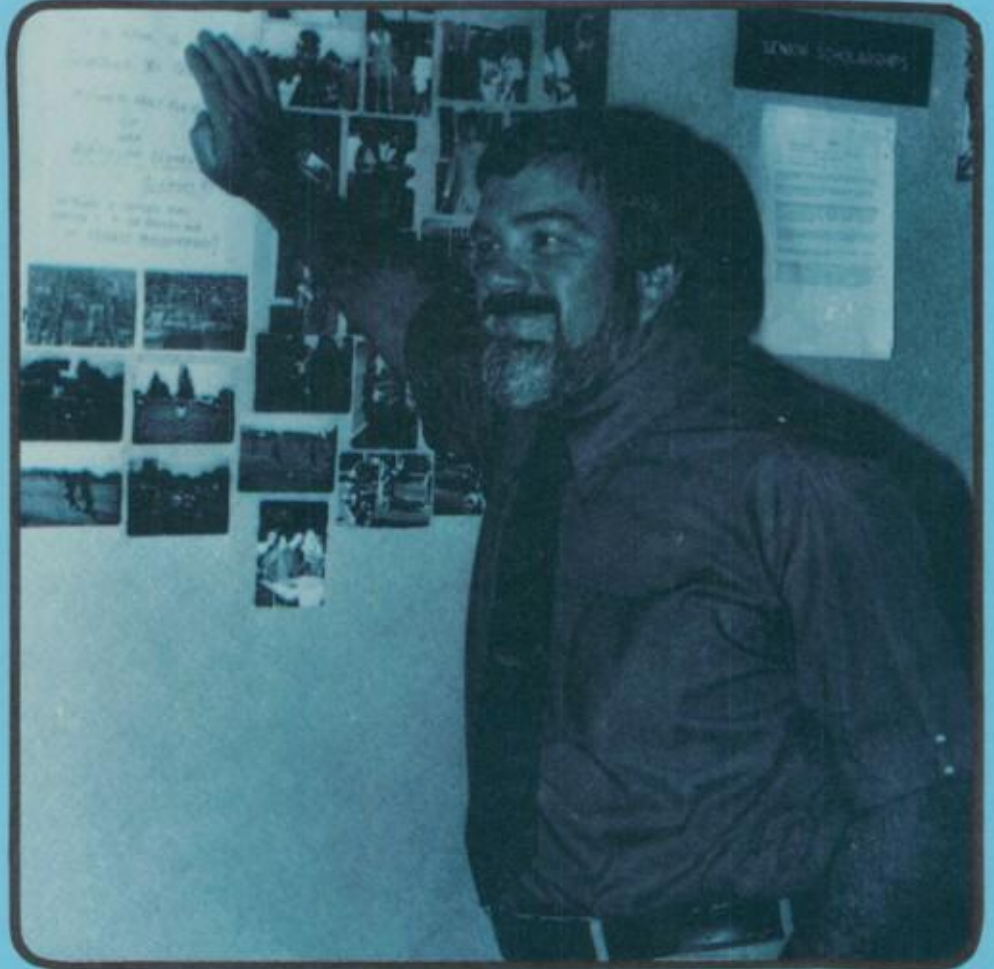

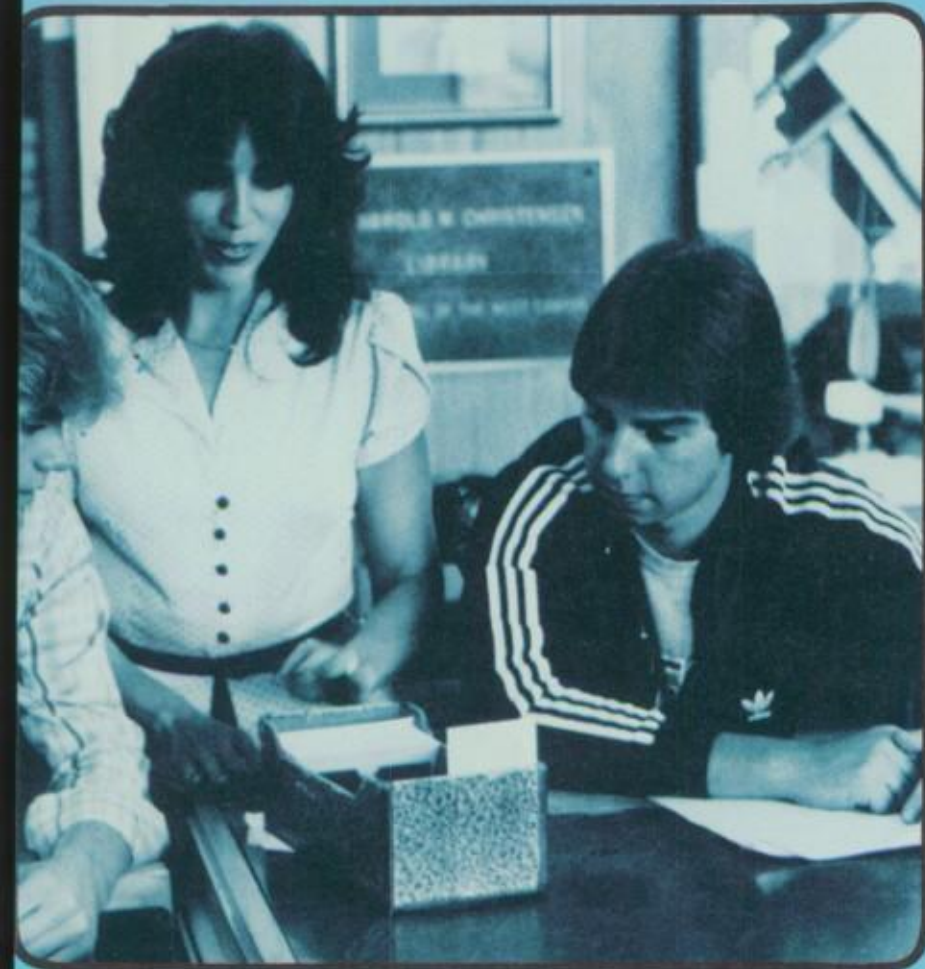

We did it all for you!

You spectators who sat in the stands and cheered, booed the referees, hoped to see a fight, or whatever....did you realize that our sports teams are not scores, not league standings, not the uniforms? They were the flesh and muscle, the sprains covered with tape, the sweat, and sometimes even the blood it took to give you a few hours of entertainment.

As important as the game seemed and as important as the standings seemed, the teams were always made up of a number of players and not just a few stars. Even though often it seemed as though the attention always focused upon a handful of individuals, they alone didn't make the whole team. The invisible blockers buried in the pack, the dependable defense just in front of the goal, the people who always made the key pass...these are the ones who really made the teams work. People who held down their end of the bench practiced just as hard as the varsity starters. They knew their efforts counted for something, and without lots of others like them the teams would have been nothing, the teamwork would have been missing, and the 'stars' would not have had the chance to shine. Whatever the outcome, a team was always a cooperation between people.

The year of the exam

1982 could have been called "The Year of the Exams," because there seemed to be so many of them!

First, the whole school itself was being examined by the WASC Committee, the state evaluating service which determines whether or not a school receives accreditation. The committee examined Lodi High's programs, faculty, administration, buildings, and future plans in minute detail.

Next there was the whole battery of state-required tests for competencies in reading, math, and writing skills. These were administered to all freshmen, and were retaken yearly until each student had passed a standard level.

Third, our plans for progress were scrutinized for eligibility to receive extra government funds through the School Improvement Program (SIP). As a result of this, LHS received over sixty thousand dollars to be used for the improvement of its educational programs.

For the college-bound, there were NEDT, PSAT, and SAT tests, part of the national system of scholastic evaluation. As in past years, many students from Lodi High showed better-than-national-average scores for college placement.

Lodi has always enjoyed an excellent academic reputation, and 1982 was certainly no exception. The grants and scholarships awarded to our seniors justifies the time and effort invested by students and faculty, the people who get the job done.

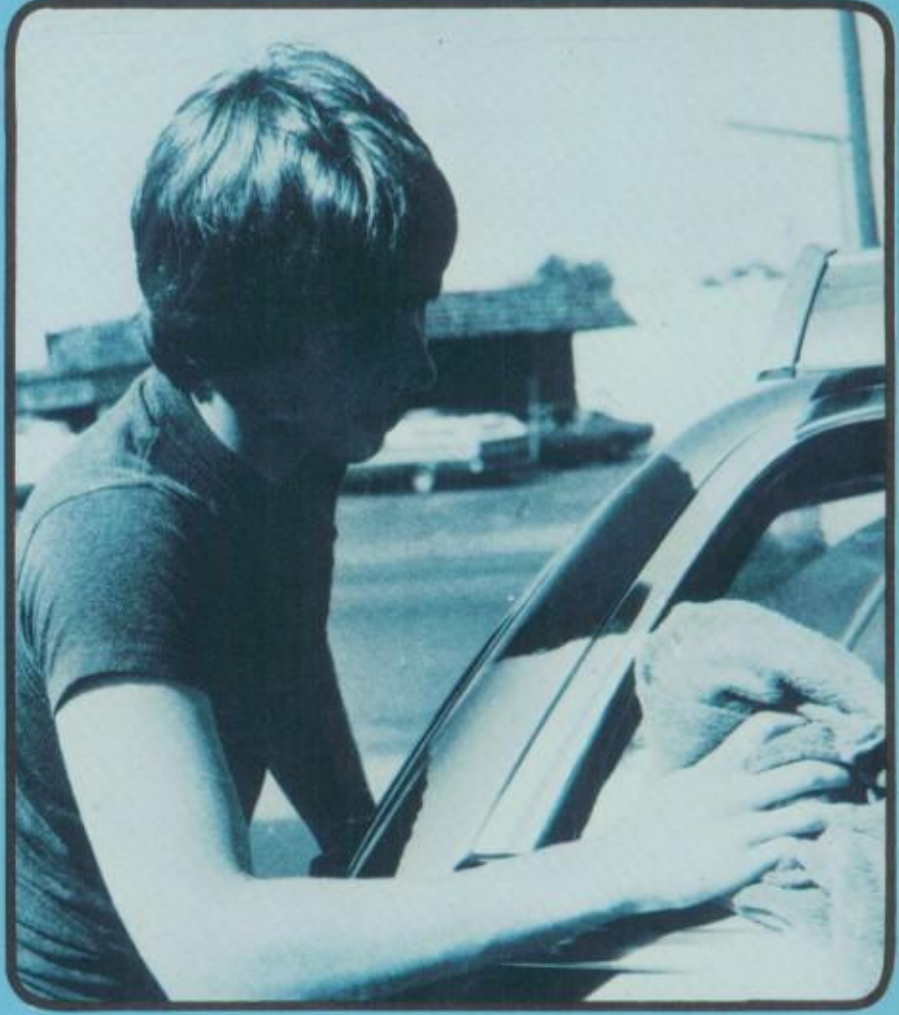

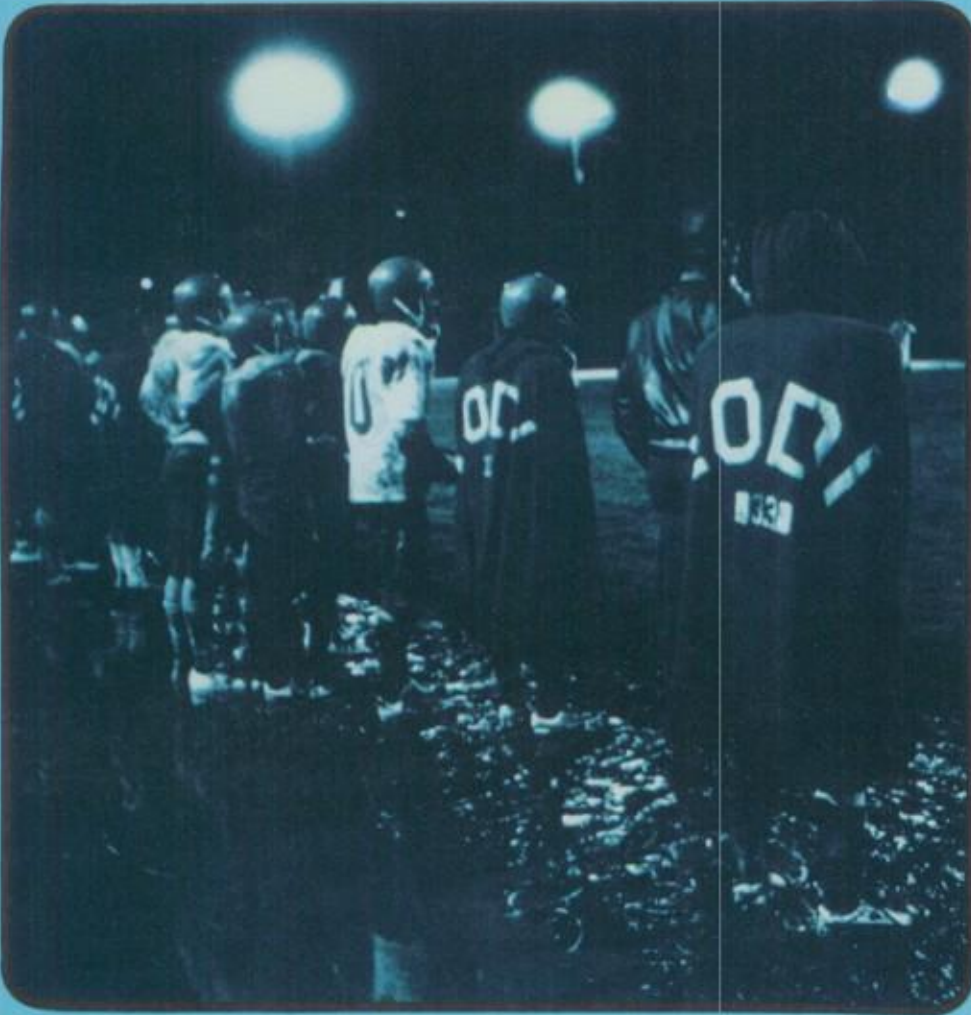

People were involved

School activities were on the way up during 1982. Many of the old dress-up days had been dropped due to lack of student participation in past years. So, new dress-up days were created to take advantage of the increase in participation. Some of the new days included Clash Day, for wearing contrasting clothing; and Cowboy Day, for western wear. According to upperclassmen, more LHS students got into the spirit (and into the clothes) this year than any other year they could remember.

By far the largest activity of the year was Victory Week, the annual Lodi High School homecoming celebration. There were many competitions between class levels, clubs, teams, and groups. Hall decorating was won by the seniors, with a worldwide theme. At the first night rally in many years, Wendy Williams and Ronnie Gritsch were crowned queen and king of homecoming. Some outside activities during the week were hampered by rain, but the Rent-a-Friend auction went on as usual.

The grand finale for Victory Week was the afternoon parade through the streets of town, followed by the homecoming football game that evening. This year, about four thousand spectators braved the early cold weather to watch the flames prevail over Lincoln to the tune of 28-0.

Oh, those weekends!

Student life outside the school was quite active and involved during 1982.

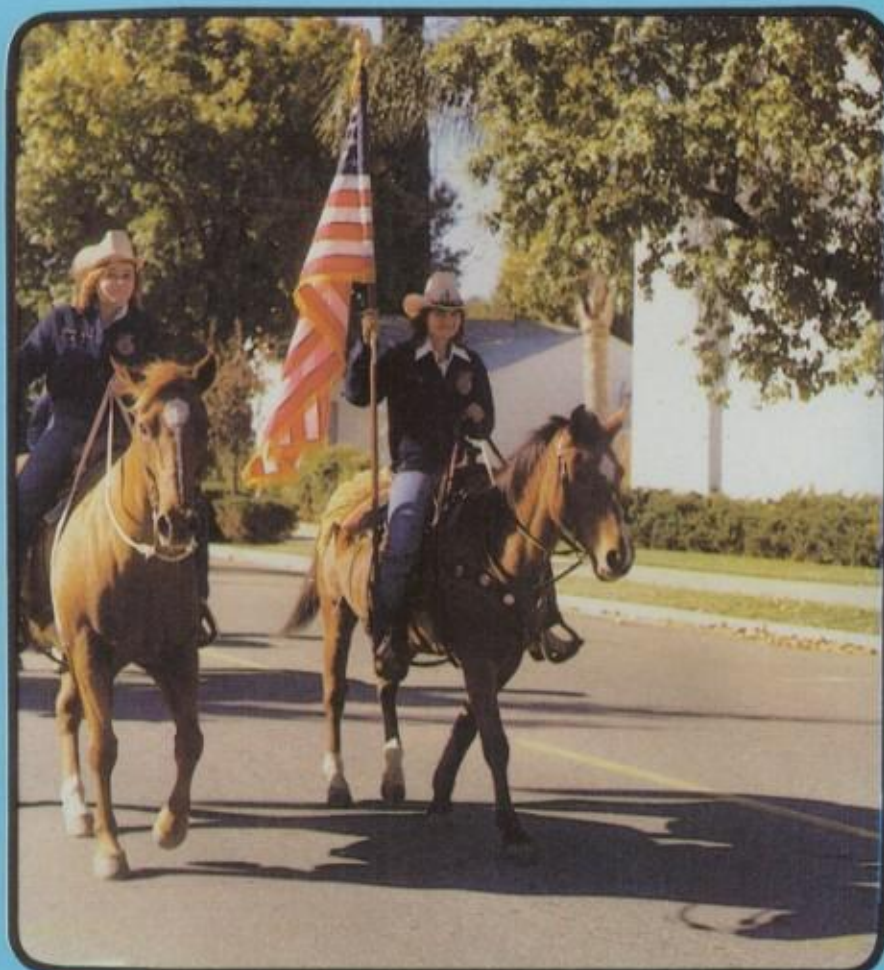

Many students at Lodi High School held outside jobs besides going to school, and sometimes worked up to 40 hours per week in addition to their class load.

Others chose the easy life which could include parties, dances, cruising the strip, movies, sporting events, dating, and TP-ing things.

The big movies of the year seemed to be "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Stripes."

For those who sought thrills and adventure, or the excitement of the unknown, an old spot in Lodi was rediscovered. It was the supposedly-haunted Trethway house, and it became the place to go after football games and on Friday nights.

No matter how much homework students had during the year, they always had time for, or put the work aside, to have a little fun on weekends.

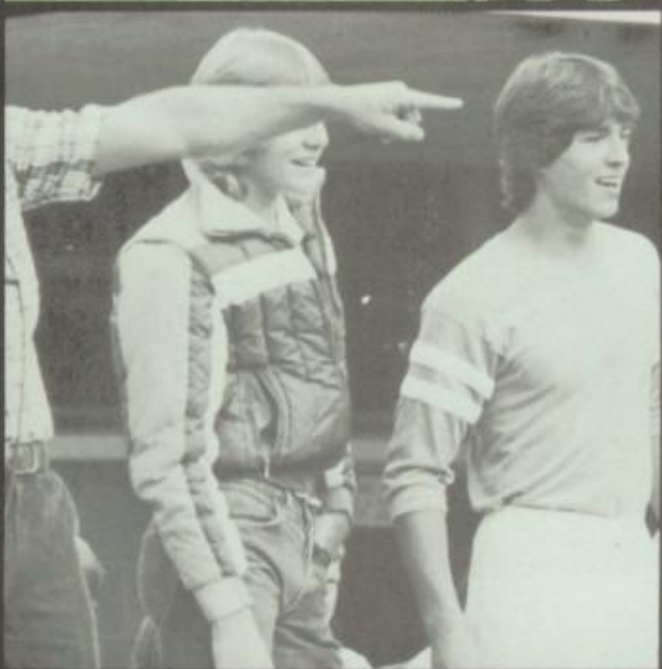

Remember, we all made it happen!

With the boost in school spirit and pride this year, the attendance in school activities and sports also went up. In fact, more people were seen at sporting events than in any of the recent years before. This was the first year sports really received the needed support from the fans, and they no longer needed to beg for more spectator participation. In a time when budgets were being reduced for all school programs, the help from the fans was truly a relief.

Rallies were also filled with students, a new phenomenon not seen for some time. For the first time in two years, students had to sit on the floor in front because the bleachers were filled to capacity. A side benefit was also that school dances were better-attended, helping raise funds for the sponsoring clubs or groups.

Whatever the chemistry needed to make the change, the better spirit and higher involvement of this year's people made the changes for the better.

Victory Week Homecoming's King & Queen

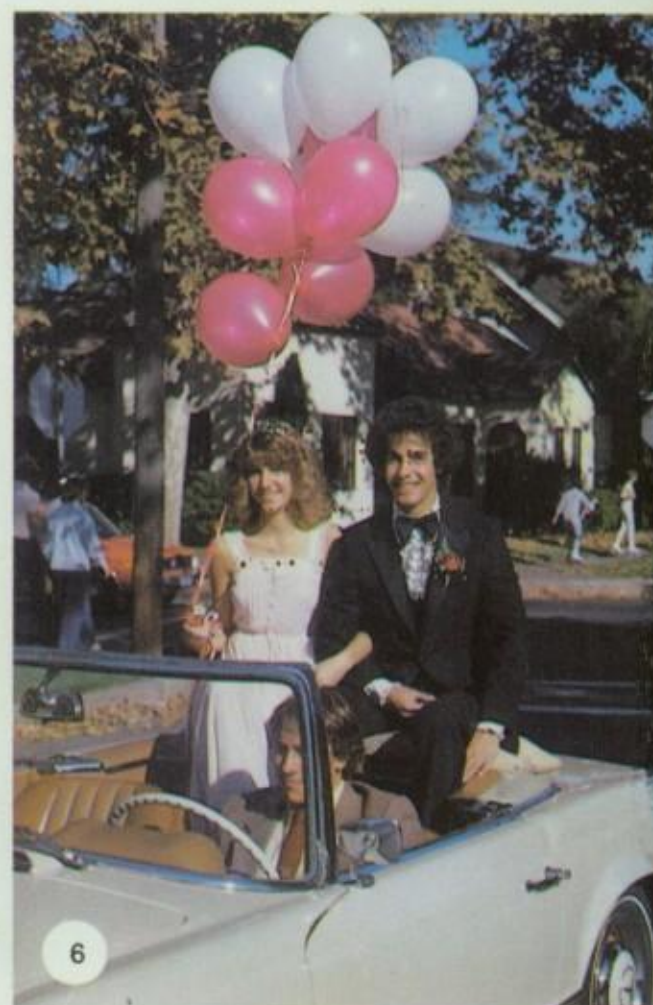

On Thursday, October 29, LHS held it's first night rally. The attending students, while getting into the Victory Week spirit, could not help wondering who would fill the coveted positions of homecoming King and Queen. The five couples, dressed in their formal attire, also awaited the decision with nervous excitement. Finally, all curiosity was satisfied as Wendy Williams and Ron Gritsch were announced and crowned the 1981-82 homecoming King and Queen.

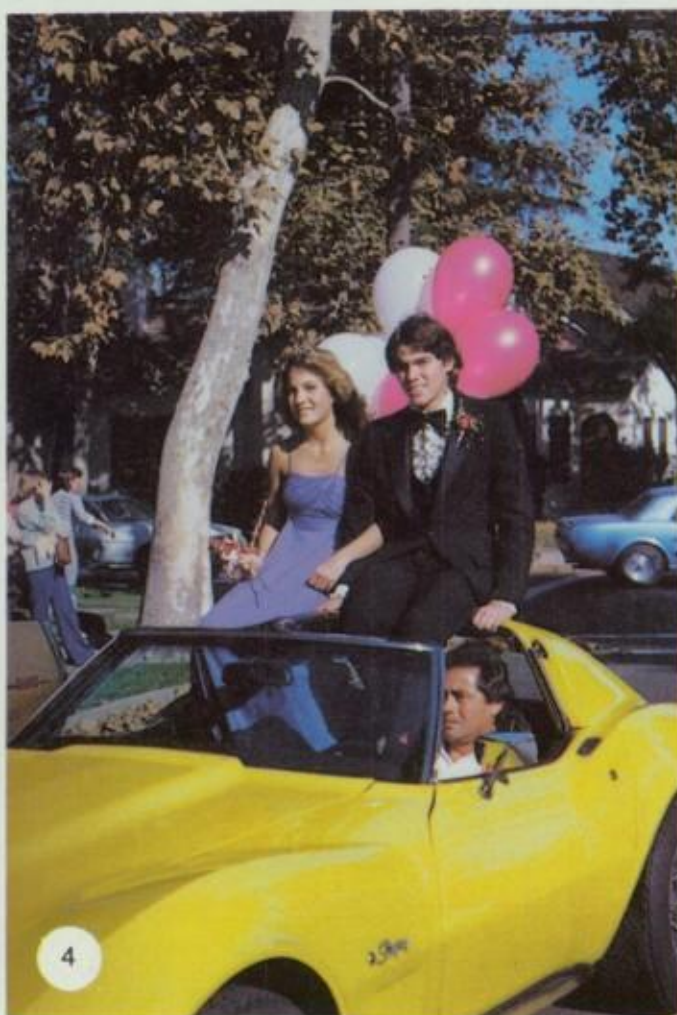

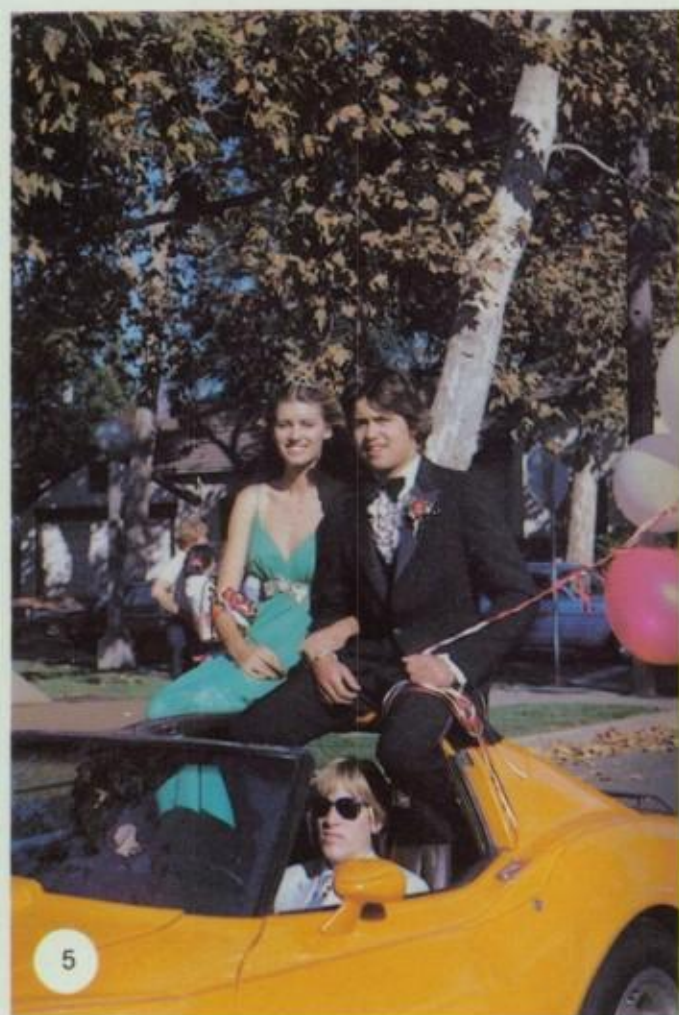

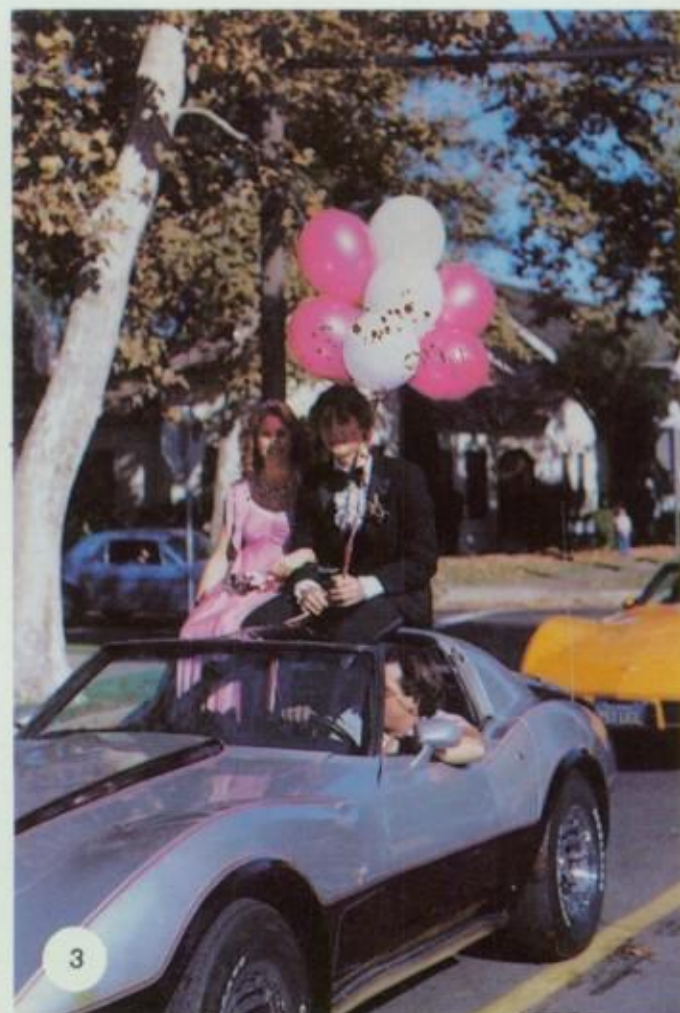

The five couples emerged from a numerous list of nominees with Johanna Borth and Scott Laurente, Kathy Hanning and Mark Reis, Carole Schleicher and Mike Mutch, and Terri Smith and Shannon Culver composing the queen's court and escorts.

The LHS royalty made various appearances, reigning over the homecoming parade and attending the Lodi-Lincoln football game to cheer the Flames to to victory over the Trojans.

V-Week was fine!

During the week of October 26-30, LHS students celebrated Victory Week. The theme of the 1981-1982 homecoming was "It's a Small World," with halls and floats decorated to depict the Disneyland song title. Victory Week provided students with a break from the ordinary routine of schoolwork and let everyone enjoy the antics which resulted from the planned activities.

"Rent-A-Friend" auctions started the fun off as tough competitors tried to outbid each other to possess a favorite friend for a day. Boys and girls alike were seen roaming the campus in Halloween-like costumes, each rented friend sporting a sign declaring who were his or her owners. The temporary owners often made their friends push them to classes in wheelchairs or carry stacks of books, everything adding to the off-the-wall spirit of the week.

Victory week is a Lodi High success

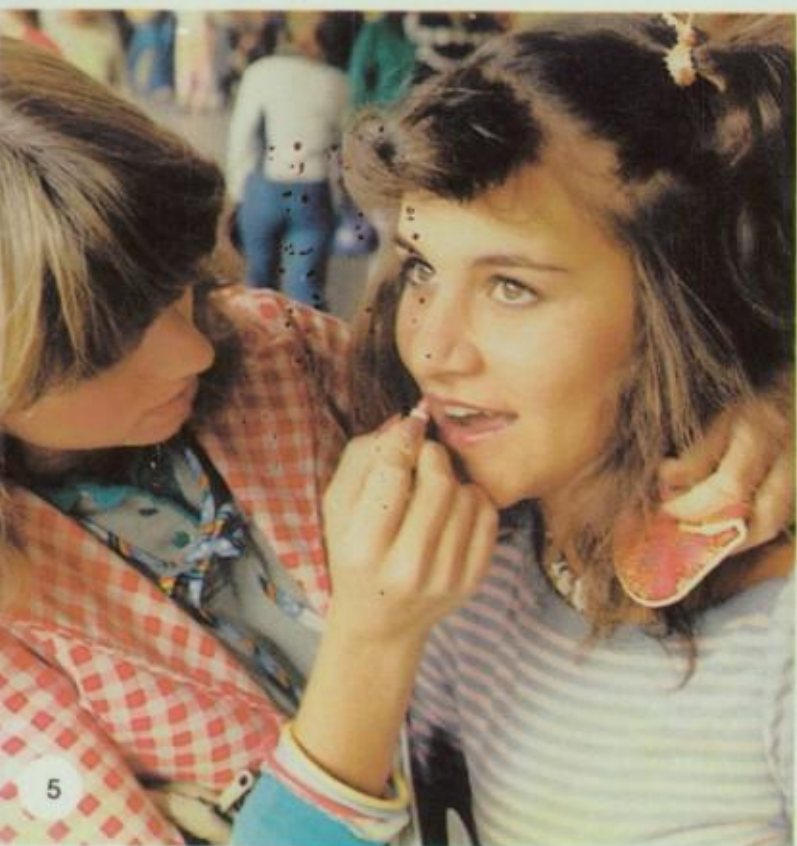

This year LHS added a new aspect to its Victory Week agenda. Instead of the customary Friday rally, a Thursday night rally was scheduled. Students arrived at the rally to witness Mitch Hirokane capture the annual Mr. Legs title, discover the winners of the previous night's hall decorating contest, and find out who would be crowned king and queen of homecoming. Also during the rally, the usual competition yell was held with the juniors winning the first time and the seniors 'out-yelling' the rest the second time.

The weeks activities wound down to a close Friday with the senior class-sponsored pancake breakfast and homecoming parade taking place during the day. Clubs and classes built floats that could be seen moving throughout downtown Lodi's streets and ending at Emerson Park. The German Club's float claimed the best of parade award, with the junior class float winning first place in the class competition. An after-parade rally followed the parade and the climax of the whole week's fun finished at the Grape Bowl when the Flames overtook the favored Lincoln Trojans by a score of 28-0 in varsity football action.

1982 anticipated lots of changes

Flocks of freshmen, sophomores, upperclassmen and new and old faculty members converged on the school. September 8, 1981 marked the first day of yet another school year. From the beginning this year seemed indistinguishable from those of the past, but behind the scenes, changes were indeed being made.

Lodi High School was receiving a new roof, a fact made evident by the amount of noise going on above the classrooms and the pungent smell of hot tar in the air. The School Improvement Program (SIP) was alive and thriving from numerous meetings and a new student advisement program was installed. A new attitude was also being cultivated: a Back To School Rally, dance and early activities tried to promote spirit and school pride.

The annual Grape Festival on September 17-19, took place among the usual fall activities, with many of the school's groups marching in the parade and participating in the various other activities it offered.

However, just as in the past, one could view freshmen scampering about the campus looking for their classes with bewildered expressions on their faces. Upperclassmen could also be seen meandering around, and of course everyone was wearing their new fall attire, ready to make the transition from summer fun to school work.

& WINTER FALL & WINTER FALL &

Summer breezes subsided and were replaced by cold, wintry gusts as the 1981-1982 school year progressed through the first and second quarters. Winter sweaters and heavy jackets took the place of cool summer shirts as students returned to a set routine and settled down to face another full year of homework and tests.

Cold weather also brought lunchtime sun-dwellers into the cafeteria and on rainy days the courtyard remained virtually empty. The change from Daylight Savings Time brought on shorter days and quicker nightfalls. Football season came to a close and basketball games replaced Grape Bowl action. Other fall sports like soccer, volleyball, tennis, waterpolo and cross country also ended their seasons with some LHS teams continuing on to section competitions. Clubs and classes worked to get car washes and other outdoor activities complete before cold, rainy weather rendered their efforts useless.

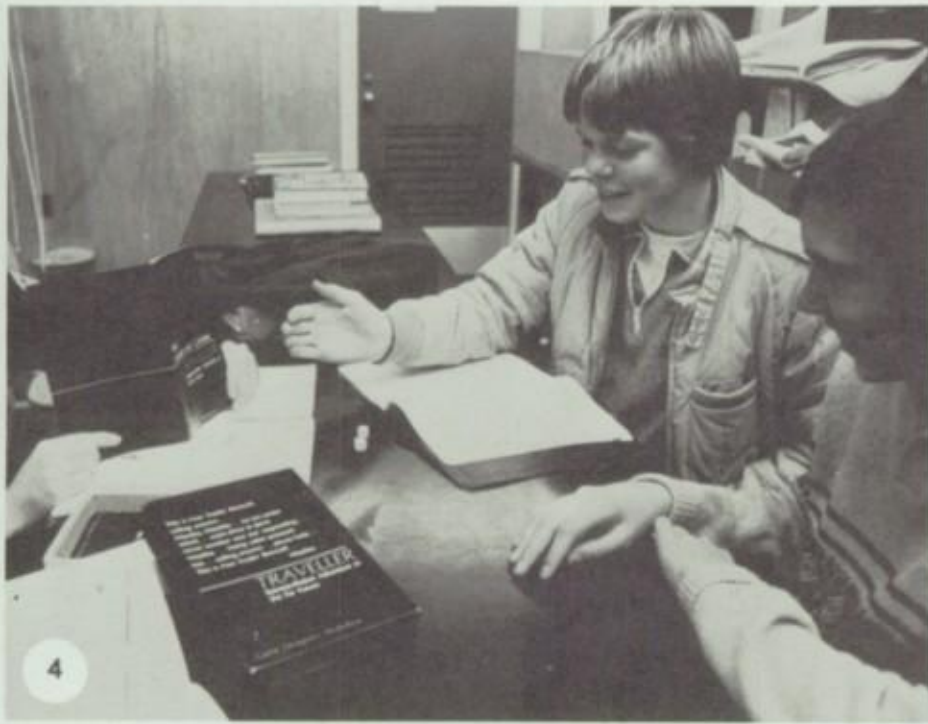

Accreditation and SIP meetings continued while SAB, Student Government, and the faculty kept trying to find ways to get students to join in the spirit of school activities. The issue of establishing a chewing area for tobacco chewers was ever-present as LHS chewers petitioned and tried to rally some student backing.

Victory Week, Thanksgiving, and Christmas highlighted the fall and winter months, providing welcome breaks of routine for all. Students enjoyed fun-filled homecoming events, hot turkey, and the joy of a two-week vacation, making everything seem just a little less monotonous.

Valentine dancers were big-hearted, raised one 'grand'

On February 11, about 200 people attended the Valentine's Day Dance, sponsored by the Lodi High Junior Class. A professional disc jockey from a local radio station was on hand to spin up a variety of records for the dancers' amusement.

Most people dressed up for the occasion, wearing clothing with featuring heart-shaped designs and motifs. Still others kept the Valentine spirit by showing up in red-and-white outfits, which also kept the LHS colors visible during the evening.

The event was judged a success, raising nearly $1,000 for the Junior Class funds. Everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves with the peaceful evening and the break from school routine. Senior Lenni Fischer said that it was, "...a good way to get into the Valentine's Day spirit."

1) Richard Quesada, Greg Tatton, Kristi Adolf, and Dana Burkhalter relax from the exhaustion of dancing. 2) Amy Robertson, Denise Swanson, Stephanie Dillon and Margie Hess enjoy the Valentine's dance. 3) Jim Kilber and Lisa Ward share a smile. 4) Alison Morgan snuggles up with a friend. 5) Kim Colbert dances the night away.

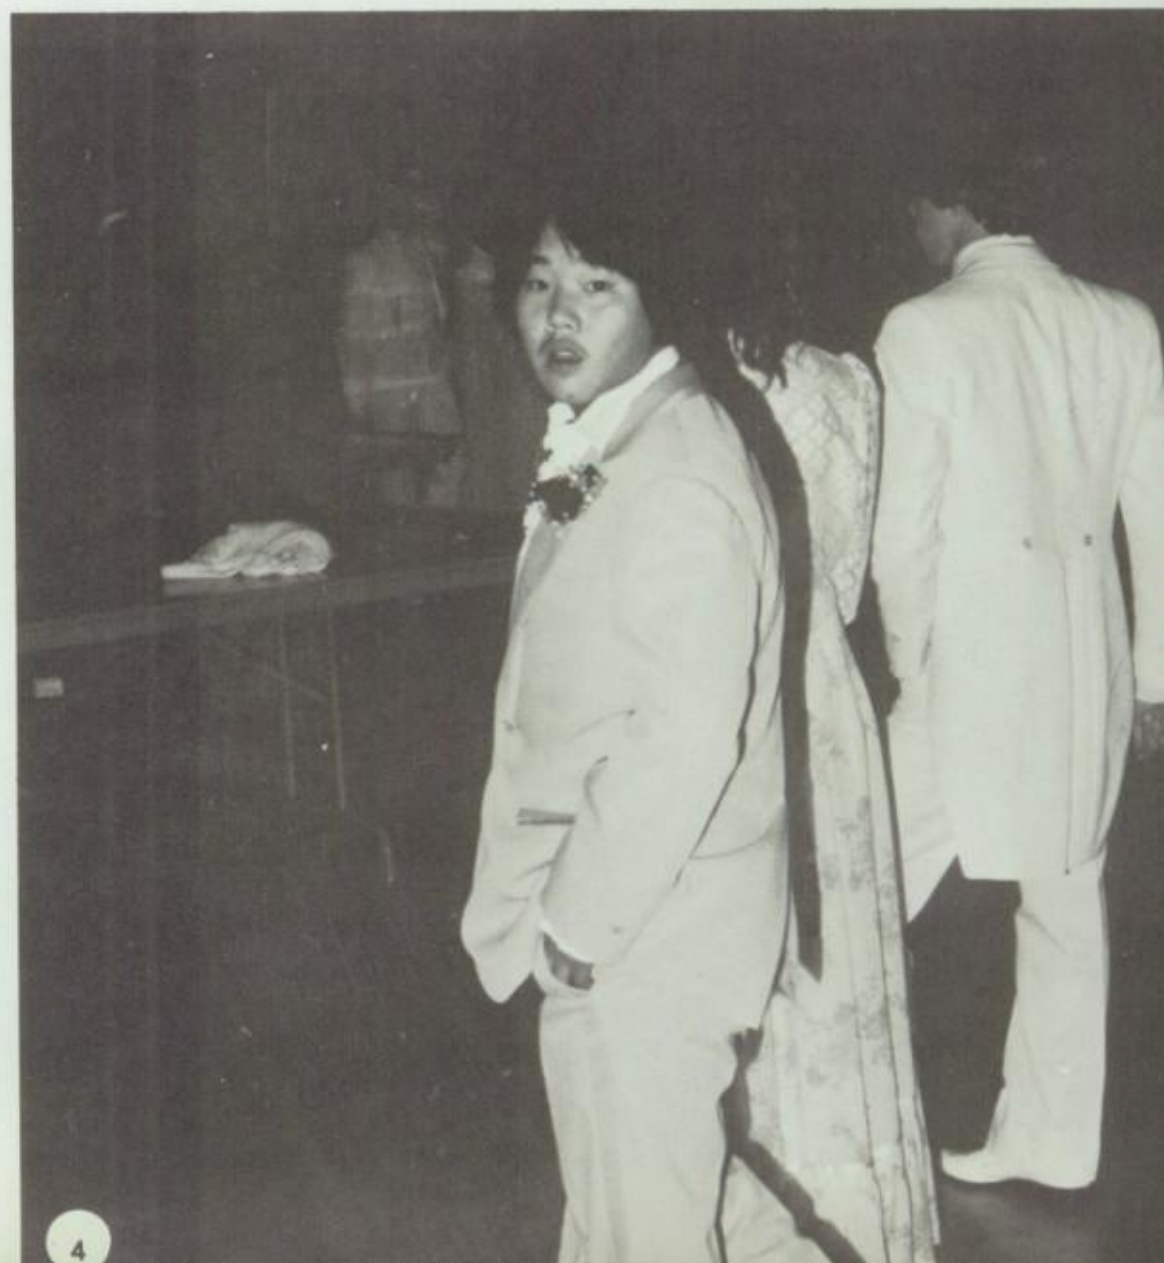

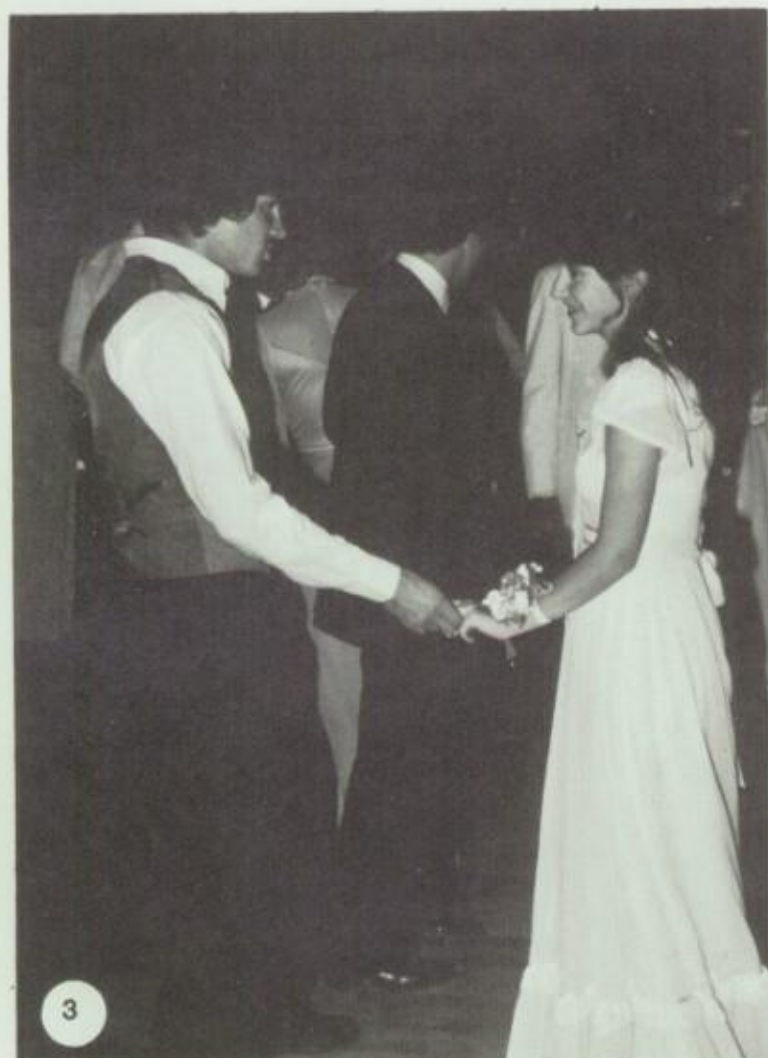

'Atlantis' featured at Pigskin Prom

The night of the 1982 Pigskin Prom provided music and a romantic mood for 400 couples from the Lodi and Tokay High Schools.

The turnout for this prom was better than expected. "The dance was sold out," explained Jill George, president of the sponsoring Junior Women's Club. Many couples commented that the dance was a great way to end an exciting football season.

The group, Atlantis, was the featured band at the prom. "Atlantis was a good band, and everyone seemed to enjoy them," said senior Tracey Ciboch.

Bid and favors were designed and distributed by Jill George, Michelle Blasl, and Susan Blomgren.

1) Rosie Cuevas and Craig Aguilar arrive at the prom, anticipating the evening ahead. 2) Lisa Mah and Kent Furuoka converse with their friends before heading back to the dance floor. 3) A tender moment is shared at the Pigskin Prom. 4) Chris Supnet takes time out to "Check it out." 5) Manning the refreshment stand was one of chaperone Julie Baumgartner's many duties. 6) Couples chat and rest their feet while waiting their turn for portraits.

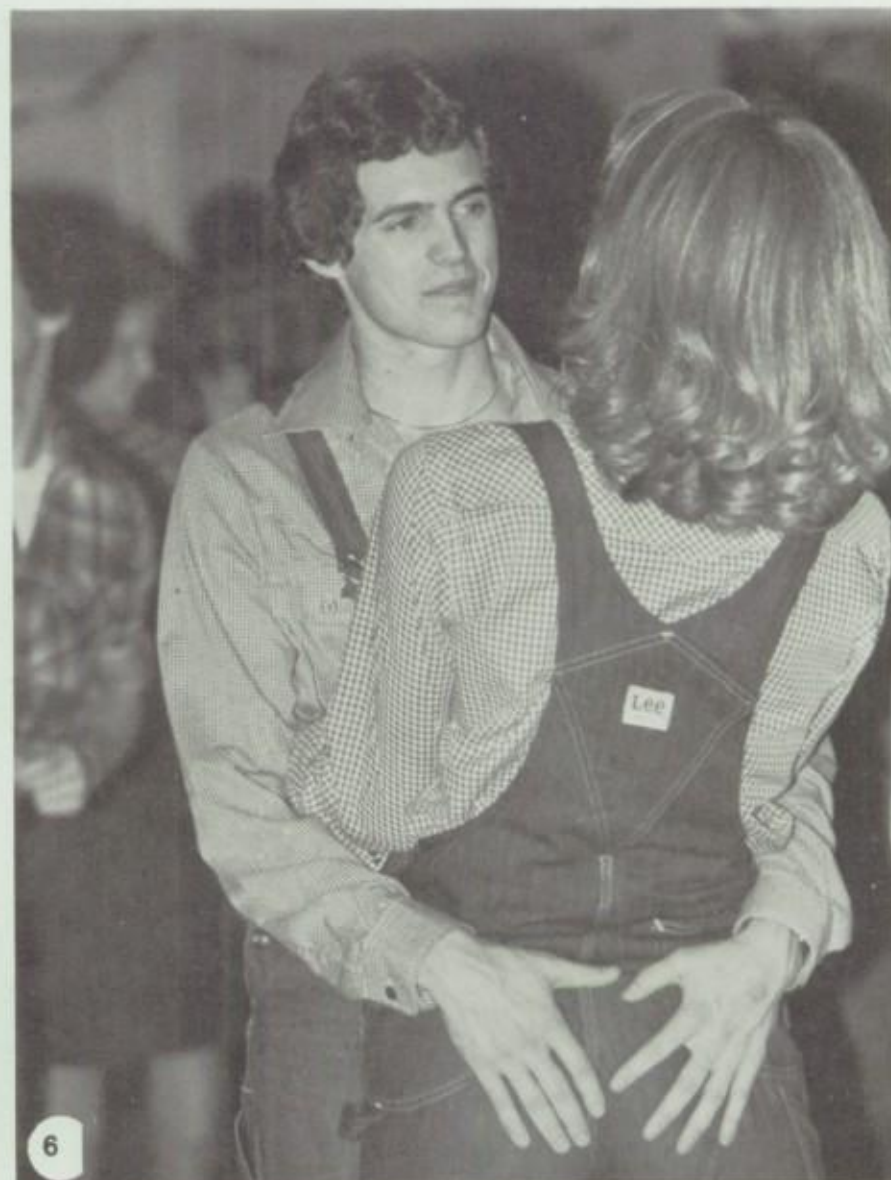

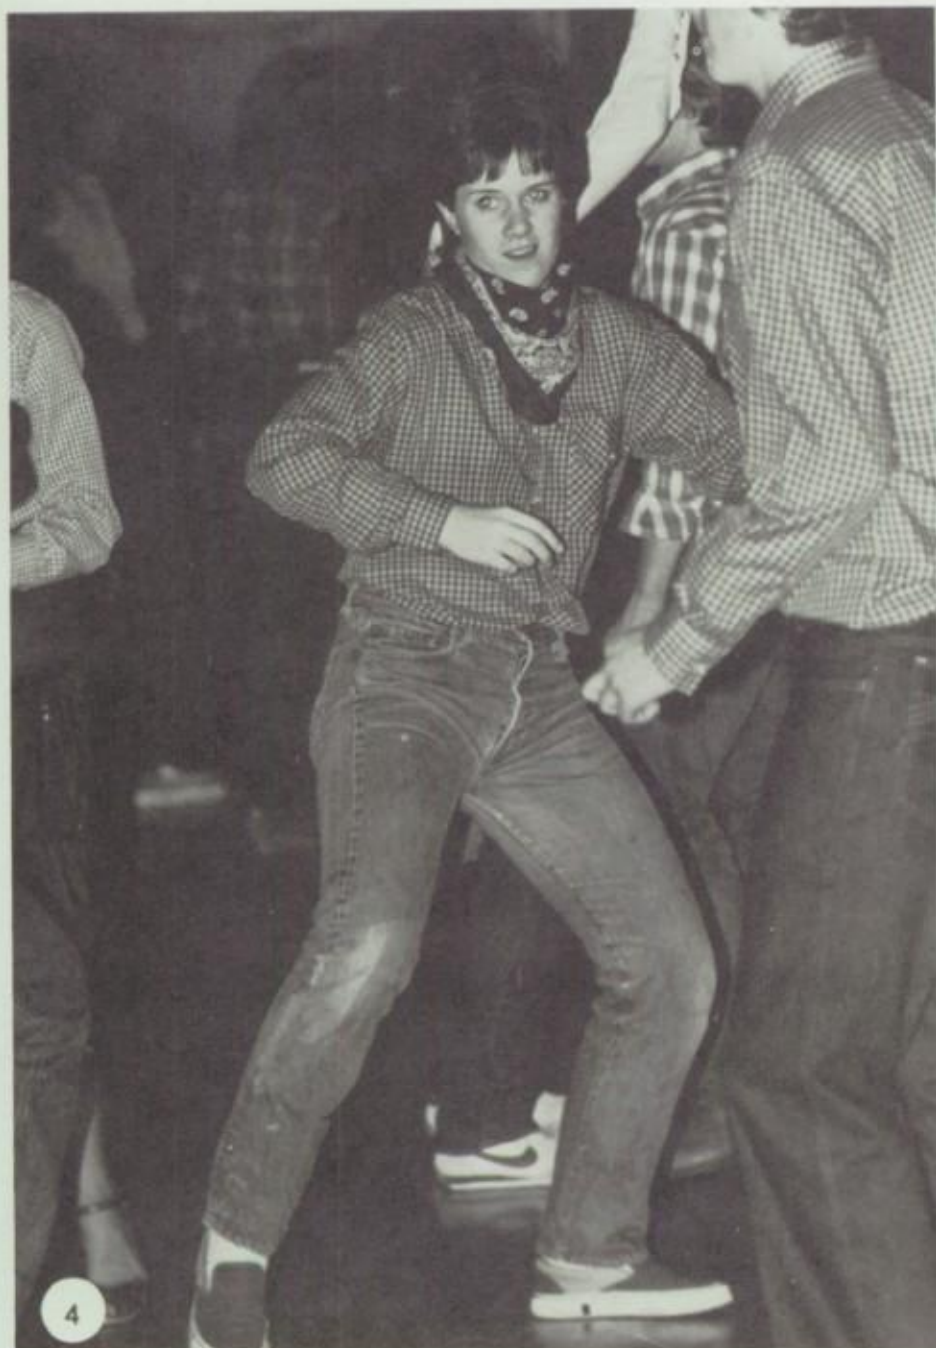

A "heel-stompin" good ol' time!

Cowboy hats, 501's and matching shirts adorned the Legion Hall for the annual Hillbilly Hoedown, sponsored by the Junior Women's Club. There were about 300 would-be cowpokes enjoying the evening of country-western flavored music.

"Visitor" was the featured band for the evening, augmented by some pre-recorded tapes during the breaks. Many people thought their music was very good, ranging from The Cars to The Kinks. Requests were sometimes taken from the audience.

Faces Faces Faces Faces Faces Faces

LHS enjoys multi-national visitors

Hosting students from overseas is one of the more pleasant tasks performed by Lodi High, and this year we were fortunate to have four exchange students on campus, each from a widely different section of the globe.

Eiji Yuasa came to us from a suburb of Tokyo, Japan, and stayed with the Paul Bingham family. Eiji hopes to become a dentist after college.

Norway From a more northerly spot, Norway, Morten Nygaard made his way to LHS. Morten stayed with Eric Anderson's family, and enjoyed the variety of classes offered in schools here. Acting is his principal interest.

From Argentina, we received Patricia Parrado, our only female exchange student. She was surprised to find the school stricter than the one in her home town of Tucuman. Patricia stayed with the Morris Family while in Lodi.

To round out our complement of nationalities, Franz Groen came to us from The Netherlands. Franz stayed with relatives here, and enjoyed a reputation as a formidable striker on the varsity soccer team. Franz hopes to return to the USA to start a business career later.

After much delay, students managed to enjoy a spring!

Once the early storms passed and the sun stopped playing hide-and-seek, LHS students were able to celebrate the arrival of spring. Warm, sunny days characterized the last eight weeks of school, and by the end of April the hot days were here!

Students at once took to the outdoors, basking in the sun, building up that elusive "golden brown tan," and leaving trails of peeled skin behind them. Others began to wear that "spring fever face" in class, with the characteristic blank stare. Spring clothes came out of the closet, as everyone discovered that they had legs and arms, after all.

Spring Vacation provided a much-needed break for students, and it was helped along by the first of the sunny days.

Elections for next year's student body officers took place under balmy, warm April skies. In all, the great release of energy and pleasure derived from the arrival of Spring weather was much appreciated by everyone at Lodi High School.

Science Camp

About forty Lodi High students attended science camp this year, working as volunteer counselors for grammar school children. The San Joaquin Outdoor Education Program sponsors the event, which is dedicated to teaching on-location science lessons. Each LHS member was in charge of six to twelve sixth-graders, a task which tested the older students' leadership and responsibility.

Senior David Merck said, "It is a great program. Everything about it is great...even the food."

Students are excused from school for five days to stay at the YMCA camp facility in Pescadero, California.

Rallies were hot!!

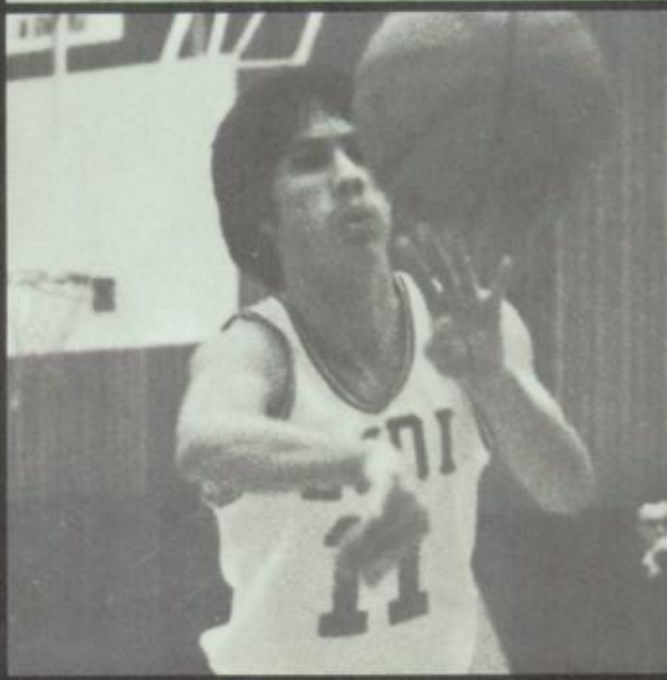

This year's school spirit has been raised to a higher level than any of the students could remember it being before, and it also marked the first night rally.

Crowd participation was a vital part of the rallies. Many athletes took part in the skits and the competition yells for the crowds, helping to promote more appeal to the students.

The energy levels were higher than before, perhaps because the students had had time to eat breakfast before the rally. The new rally time (between second and third periods) also gave more students opportunities to attend. Later in the year, rallies were made mandatory, meaning you had to attend or sit in the courtyard under supervision. Most found the rally to be a better choice than the courtyard.

Last year's seniors were thought to be misguided, believing that spirit was the same as causing trouble.

SPORTS

Varsity team ends in third

This year the varsity football team captured third place in the SJAA league, with the help of many outstanding players. The Flames finished with a 7-2-1, losing only to Tracy and Lincoln and tying with Tokay.

One of the team's many assets was running back Walt Harris, SJAA Player of the Year and the first modern LHS player to rush for more than 1000 yards in a season. Harris tallied 1021 yards in 159 carries, for a 6.4 yard average.

Quarterback Sean Haynie supplied the double threat the offense needed for a balanced attack. Haynie, Todd Stubbs, and Steve Schopp were also named members of the SJAA first team.

Physically smaller than in past years, this season's Flame football team had to compensate by being quicker, smarter, and more confident than their opponents.

Highlighting the 1981-82 season were the Homecoming game and the mud-and-slosh season finale against Tokay. Junior tailback Joey Ortiz said he felt the homecoming rally was invaluable in helping the players become enthused. Ortiz also felt the homecoming game was emotionally the most important, since the seniors had never won a homecoming contest and especially wanted to win this one. The Tokay-Lodi game ended the season amidst heavy rain and mud, during which the players fought to a tie in a contest which heavily favored both defenses. Although threatening to score several times, the Flames could not cover the extra yard or two to the end zone, and a blocked field goal capped off an otherwise shiny season.

Soph gridgers second with 8-1-1 league mark

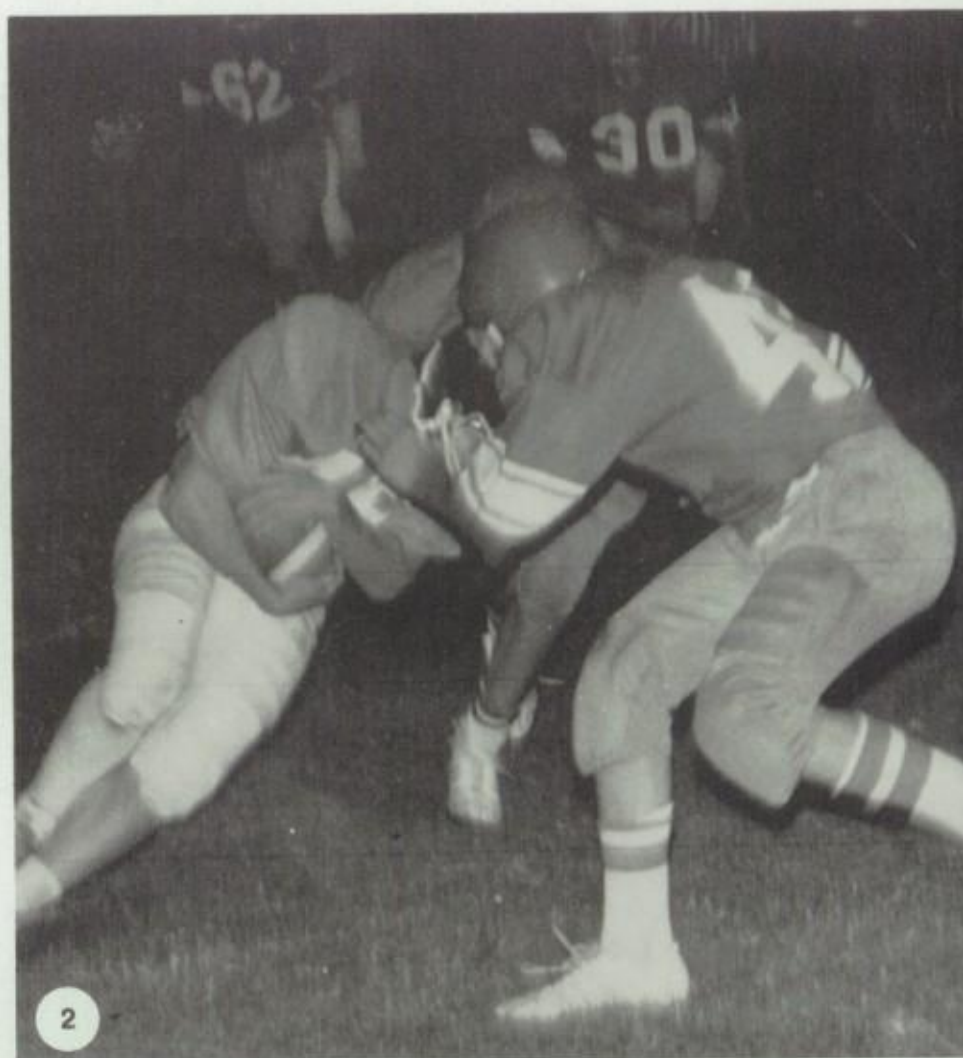

"They are a great team and will probably finish second behind Tracy," said coach Dan Salisbury of the Flame sophomore football team at the beginning of the '81 season. The team had already started strongly by sweeping it's first three games, and with a continuing string of victories went on to fulfill Salisbury's prediction.

The team commanded such fervor and intesity that it commanded recognition during the many fall rallies and was widely respected on the field. It was a close-knit team which could present a "united front" to it's opponents.

At the close of the season the sophs had won eight games and managed only one loss and tie in SJAA play.

Quarterback Richard Quesada led the offensive attack with the help of Russel Steele and Boni DeLeon. Also complementing the LHS team was a very good defensive squad. Salisbury felt that since the team was one of the top in the league, the upcoming varsity players promised an exciting future for Flame football fans during the next years.

Frosh gridgers share top honors

The past season was excellent for the LHS freshman football squad, with a 7-1-1 seasonal slate and a 6-1-1 league record.

The hardest game played this season was against Tracy at the Grape Bowl. "One mistake cost us that ball game," said coach Mark Ehlers. The Tracy victory was attributed largely to a blocked Lodi punt which was recovered inside the end zone.

According to Ehlers, "We had a very well-balanced team this year." The coach put his emphasis on how well the defensive squads held the opposition to minimum scoring. When asked what he thought of this year's freshman when they become next year's sophomore team, he replied, "I feel that they will be one of the top two or three teams, if not number one."

Strong showing by youthful LHS cross-country team

The Varsity cross country runners proved to be a strong force indeed this year, despite the lack of senior members.

"We did extremely well considering we only had one returning varsity member," said junior John Castro. "Next year, I expect we will do very well, because the majority of the team will be returning."

The runners had to deal with many illnesses this season, but there were no major injuries. Nevertheless, the team went on to win all but one league match, losing only to Stagg. This loss was atoned for later when the team placed first in the SJAA league, sharing the title with Stagg. Lodi then went on to place second in section championships at Sierra College.

Named for outstanding contributions were Dave Miller and Alfredo Martinez.

Lack of experience held CC team back

This year's junior varsity cross country team was led by Doug Silva, who explained, "I think I did all right this year, being that it was my first year, and so did everybody else." The team is looking forward to even better performances next season.

For 1981, the team ran a variety of practice courses, including a ten-mile route to Micke Grove Park on the southern edge of Lodi. The variety of terrain, it was hoped, would give versatility to the team preparation and add to their repertoire of running experience.

Dennis Richards, the second-year coach of the squad, felt good about the results of this season. He was, according to the statements of many of the team members, well-liked and respected in his position.

Injuries slow LHS Girls '81 CC team

"The team did well considering all of our drawbacks," said Mary Donovan, member of the varsity cross country girls team. Donovan was referring to the unusual and unfortunate amount of sickness and injuries which sidelined much of the team's members during the season.

The team was led by Shelly Smith, one of the few runners not badly affected by injuries this year. Especially crucial were the large number of injuries to the experienced members of the girls' squad. Donovan herself spent the season spectating, the result of an ankle injury before the first competition.

The story was somewhat different for the girls' JV team, which finished second in league in '81. Outstanding frosh runner Colleen Donovan led the team, as well as doing running duty for the varsity when the rules allowed. Donovan went on to league and sectional finals, typifying the spirit, dedication, and hard work this year's team used to overcome a lack of experience.

Soccer team has a rebuilding season in '81

Since much of last year's team had graduated, the 1981 varsity soccer team began the new season with a rebuilding effort. This year the Flames had only six seniors on the squad, along with seven juniors, two sophomores and six freshmen.

Plagued by early injuries and player inexperience, Lodi had a losing record for the first half of the season. A very close 3-2 loss to Franklin signalled the turn toward better play in the second half of the season, capped by a stunning 4-0 win over heavily favored Lincoln.

Reflecting on the season, coach Don Rostomily said, "Since the team was inexperienced, our most important goal was to improve, and I feel we accomplished that goal."

Top players for '81 were Leo Ramirez, Roy Chadwell, Franz Groen and Bill Williams.

Soccer completes defensive season

Inability to put the ball into the net after getting within scoring range kept the frosh-soph soccer team from realizing it's full potential this year.

While the team frequently dominated the play in the games, the scoring eluded them. The defensive play was stronger than in past years, and most games were decided by a one-goal margin. According to coach Steve Kirkwold, "The defense was strong and fast. Strength also lies in the goalies and in the ability to move the ball rapidly out of defense and into an attacking posture. The team's only weakness came from inexperienced forwards and ineffective shooting from a distance."

As with the varsity team, some unfortunate injuries sidelined players in the early season games. Since the varsity squad was short of manpower, several key players were moved up to that team, leaving the frosh-sophs a little under-strength.

The team finished the season with a 4-9-1 league record. Outstanding players were Will Williams, Eddie Palacios, Kyle Treude, and Rick Andrade.

V-ball hits sections

The 1981 varsity volleyball team did well this year, despite the injuries sustained by team leaders Tracy Spiekerman and Robin Spoor. The squad managed to fight their way into the sectionals, where they suffered a disappointing loss in the second round.

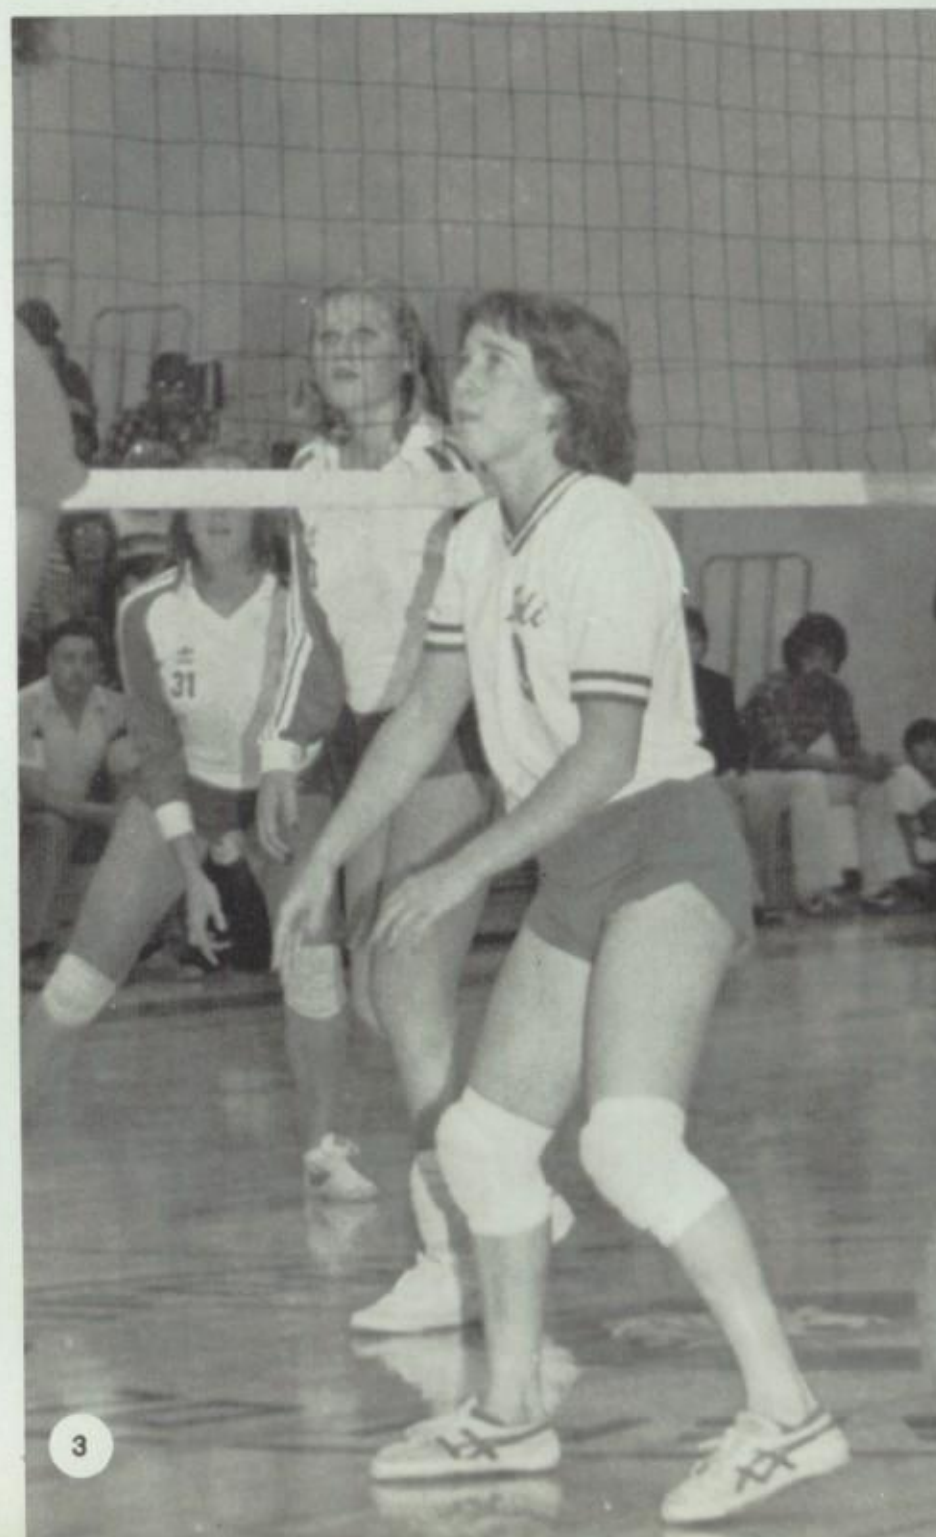

The team had earlier placed third in a Tokay tournament, playing without senior Nitsa Lewis. Overall, the toughest SJAA foe for the Flames was Lincoln, many of whose players were 4-year varsity players.

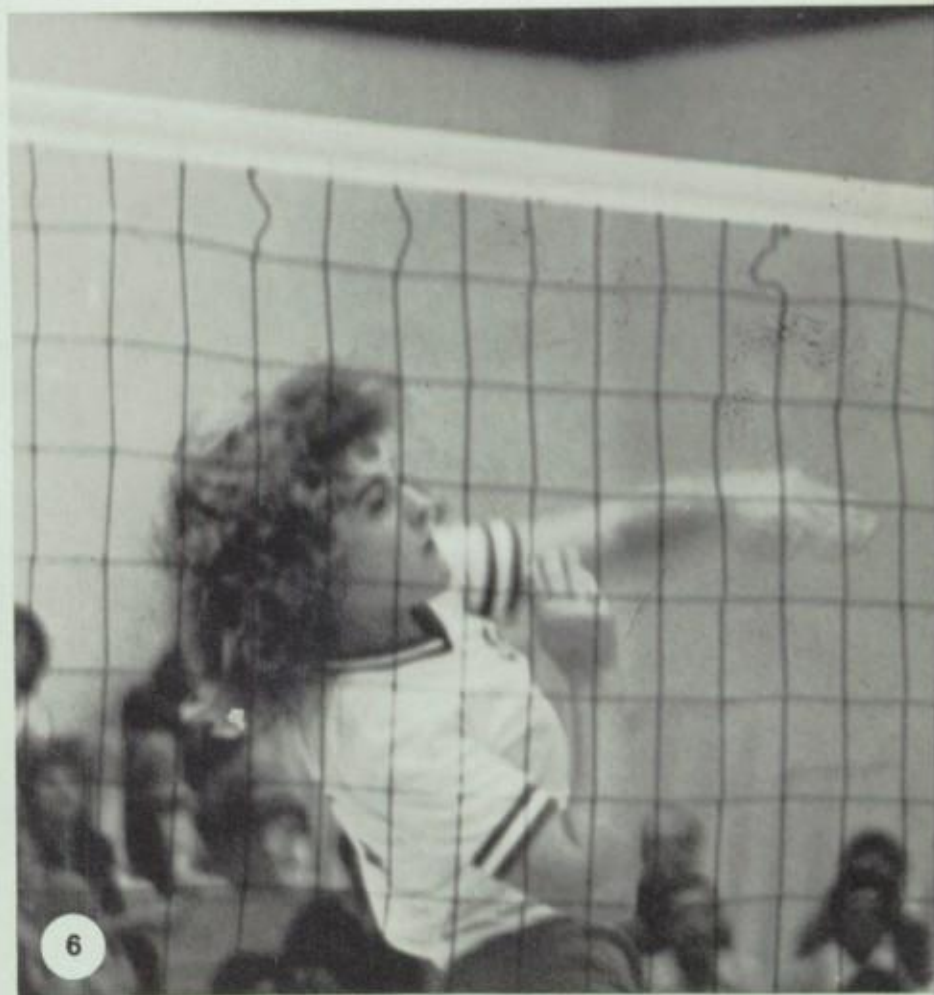

Veteran coach Tony Miller paid special attention to conditioning, including lots of running and jump rope drills. Team member Joline King said of the team, "We need to be more psyched-up, more into the game. At the start of the season we were just concentrating on their own playing...at the middle of the season we began to develop a better team. The team really worked hard on practicing our skills."

Spiekerman, Lewis, and Spoor were named the outstanding players of the season for LHS.

JV spikers sweep league with 13-1

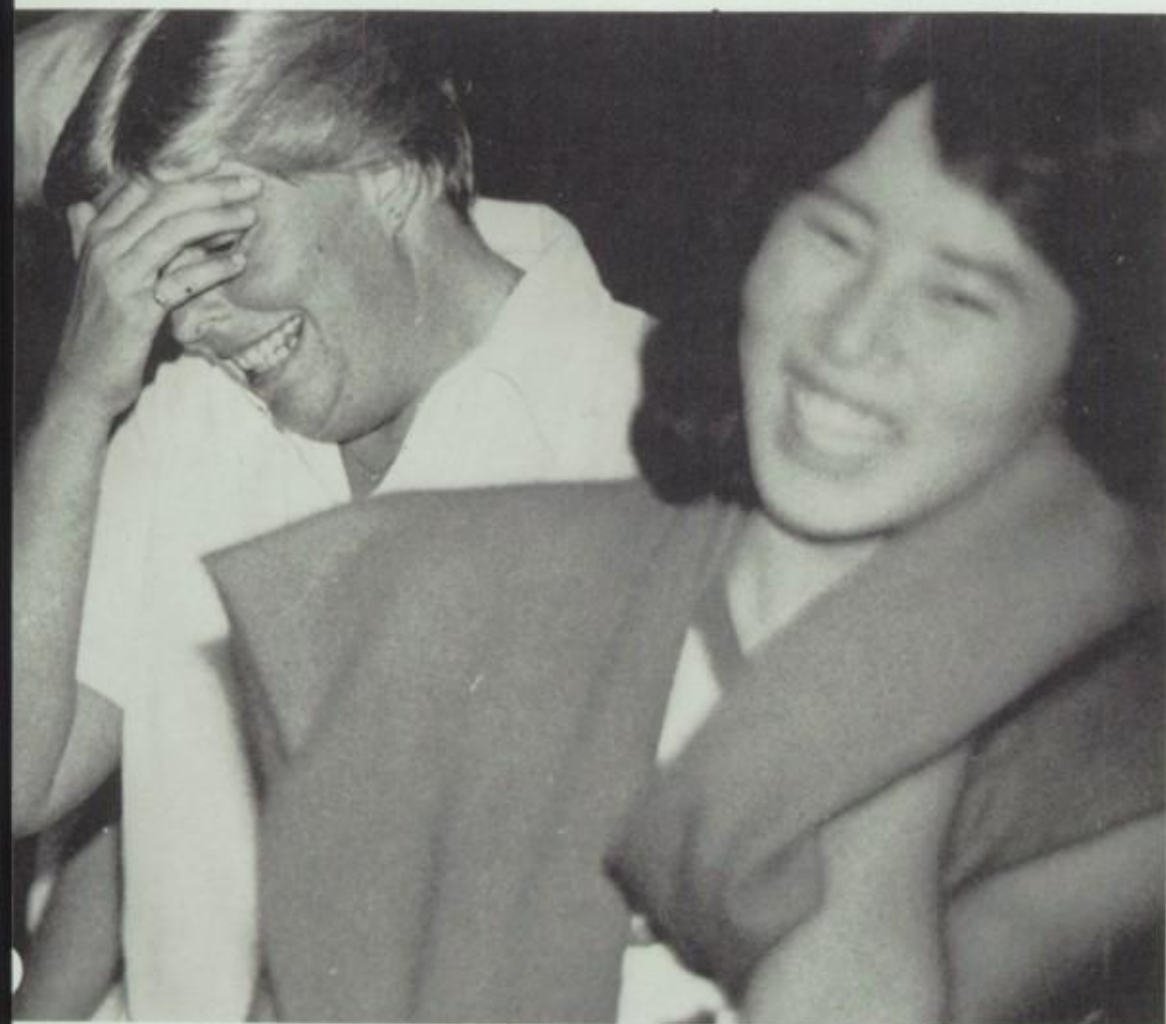

Teamwork paid off for the 1981-82 JV volleyball team, as the Flames amassed a 13-1 league record, good enough to capture first place in SJAA league standings.

Coach Karen Jensen feels that this year's team was the best she has worked with. Besides the all-important teamwork, another valuable asset Jensen attributed to the team was its ability to fight back after being behind. These two factors helped the team win the Davis Tournament as well as the league title. The sole loss of the season came against St. Mary's.

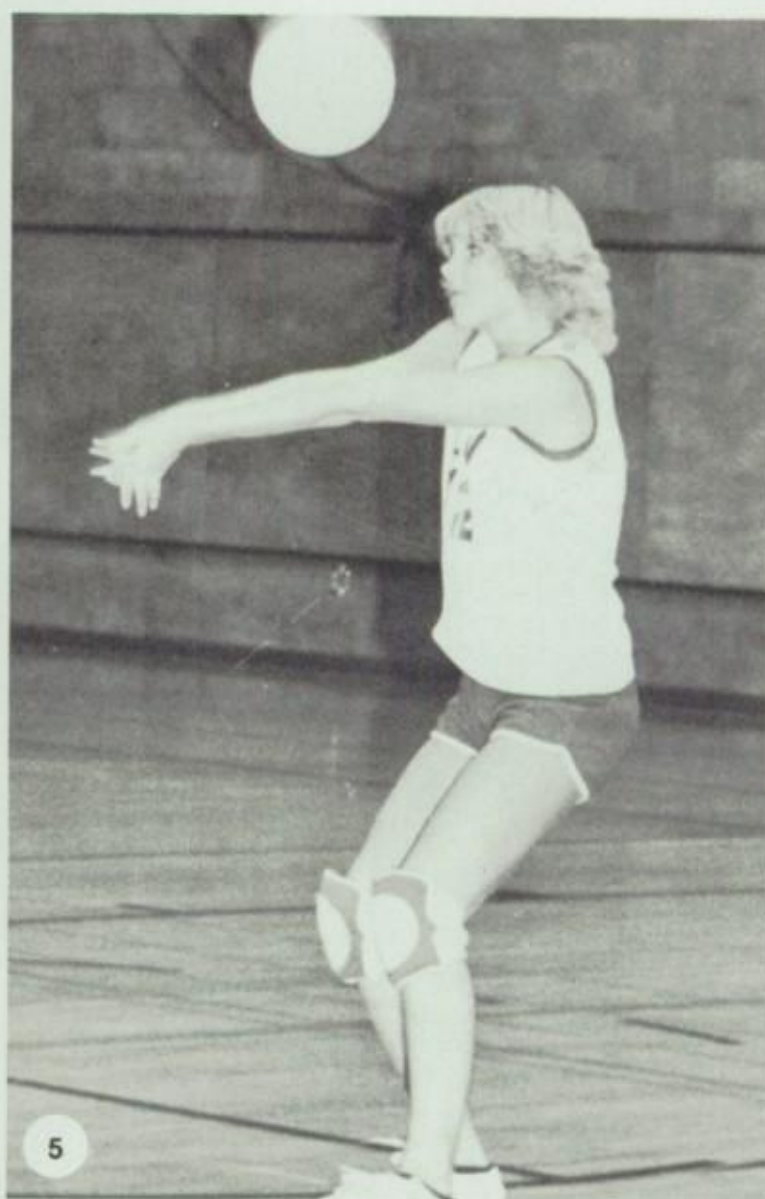

When asked the traditional question about who is best on the team, sophomore Stacey Siegfried commented, "I don't think that is very important, since we work as a team."

According to statements made by team members, Lincoln was the hardest team to beat in the SJAA. In the Davis Tournament a team from Holmes gave the Flames a good fight

Girls tennis climbs to top of SJAA list

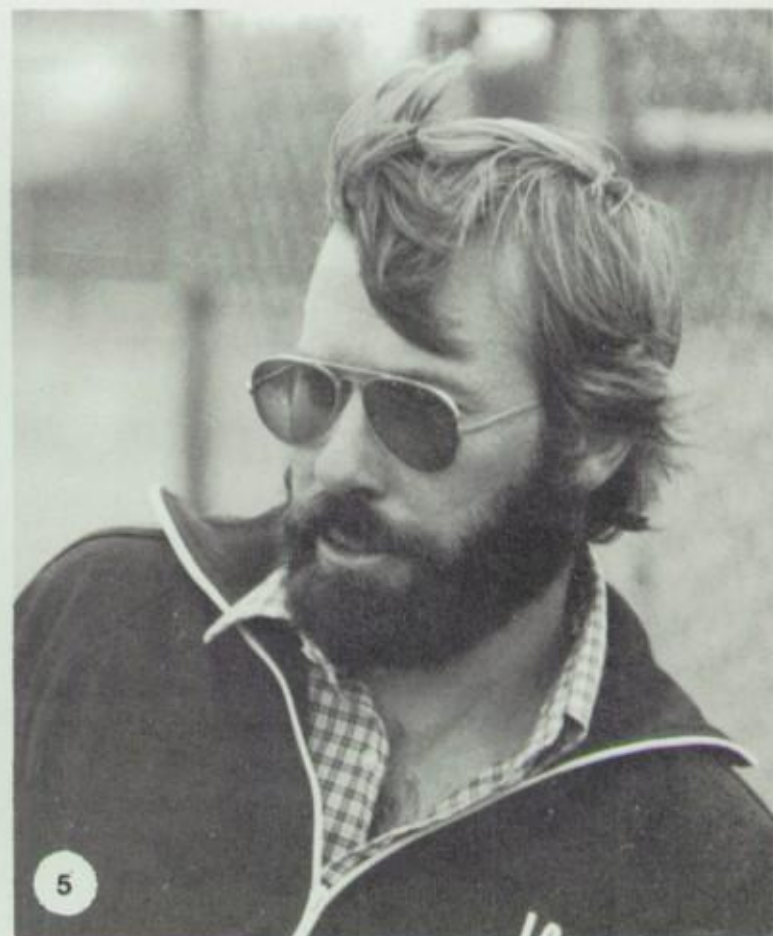

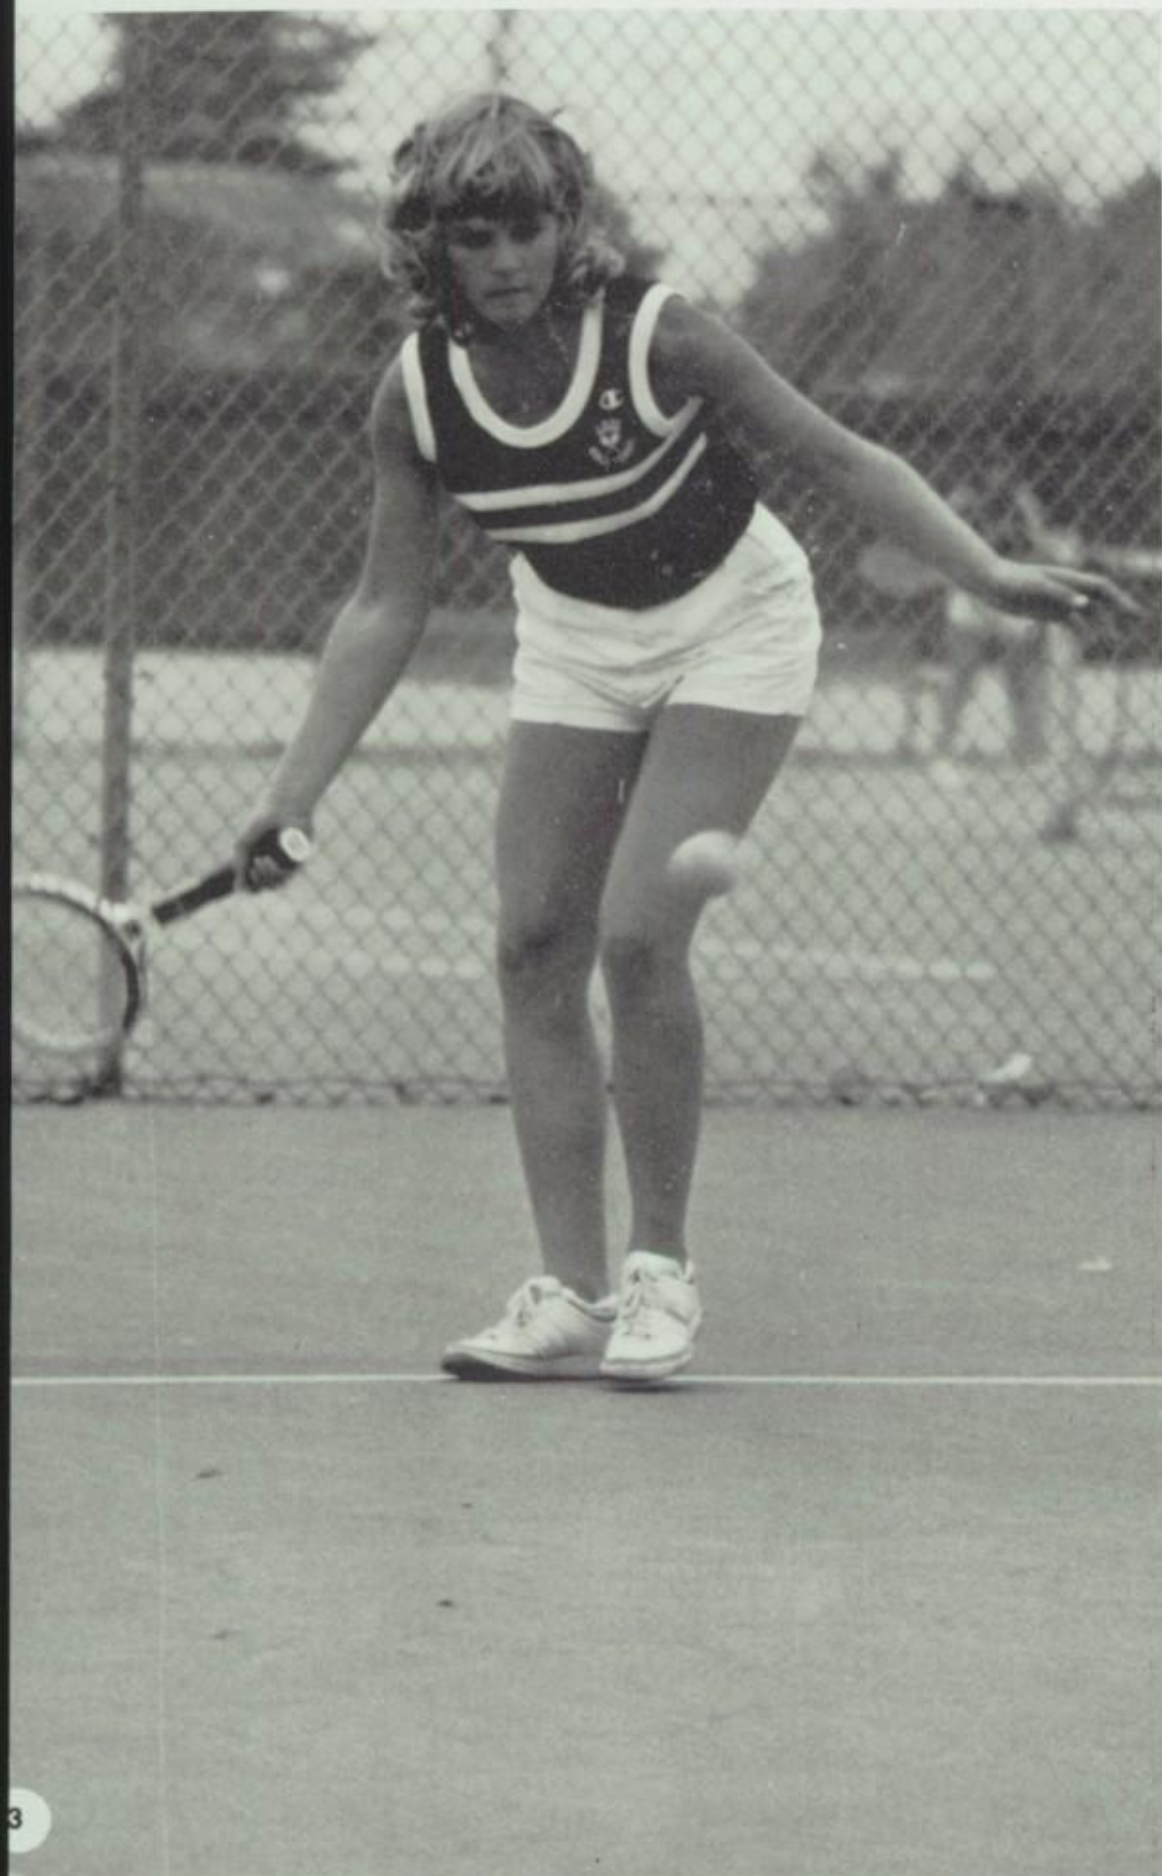

The 1981 girls tennis team continued the Lodi High tradition of excellent performance by rising swiftly through the rankings to the top of the league.

Although handicapped to some degree by the loss of five graduates from last year's squad, the team had enough strength left over to tackle the league this year. In regular SJAA play, the only team to beat the Flames was St. Mary's, another traditionally strong competitor for the top spot.

According to coach Gary Knackstedt, "We've got three girls carrying the team right now; Dina Neil, Jill George, and Stacey Markel." These players later went on to the League championship tournament at the season's end.

Good spirit and consistent practice were named by team players as the key to Lodi's string of tennis successes. Knackstedt concluded with, "Our tennis team had always been good, and we plan on keeping that tradition."

Poloists take 2nd despite small team

"We had a lot of inexperience this year, with only four seniors who started for us," stated water polo coach Jon Lapachet. The lack of experience and lack of players worked against the 1981 varsity water polo team's hopes of finishing in first place.

Their toughest match proved to be against Tracy at home. After winning at Tracy in the opening round, Lodi lost the return game, 7-8. Lincoln also was a strong opponent, splitting a pair of meets with Lodi.

In contrast to last year's team, the varsity had no conflicts with other teams and no injuries. Senior Pat Gallagher was named for outstanding play as the goalkeeper, and junior Dale Ellwein was cited as best field player.

The poloists finished in second place in this year's league. According to Lapachet, "I think this year was a building year and next year we'll have a lot of freshmen and sophomores to bring up...they should take the league next year."

Water polo shares first-place title spot

This was a good season for the Flame junior varsity water poloists, who finished in a split championship with Lincoln. The team was young, with five Freshmen in the starting lineup.

The goalkeeper, freshman Eric Larson, helped the team greatly with his defensive play. Sophomores Brian Hyllen and Tim Scheideman were also effective at field play. The team's only injury, a broken thumb, was incurred by John Kramer.

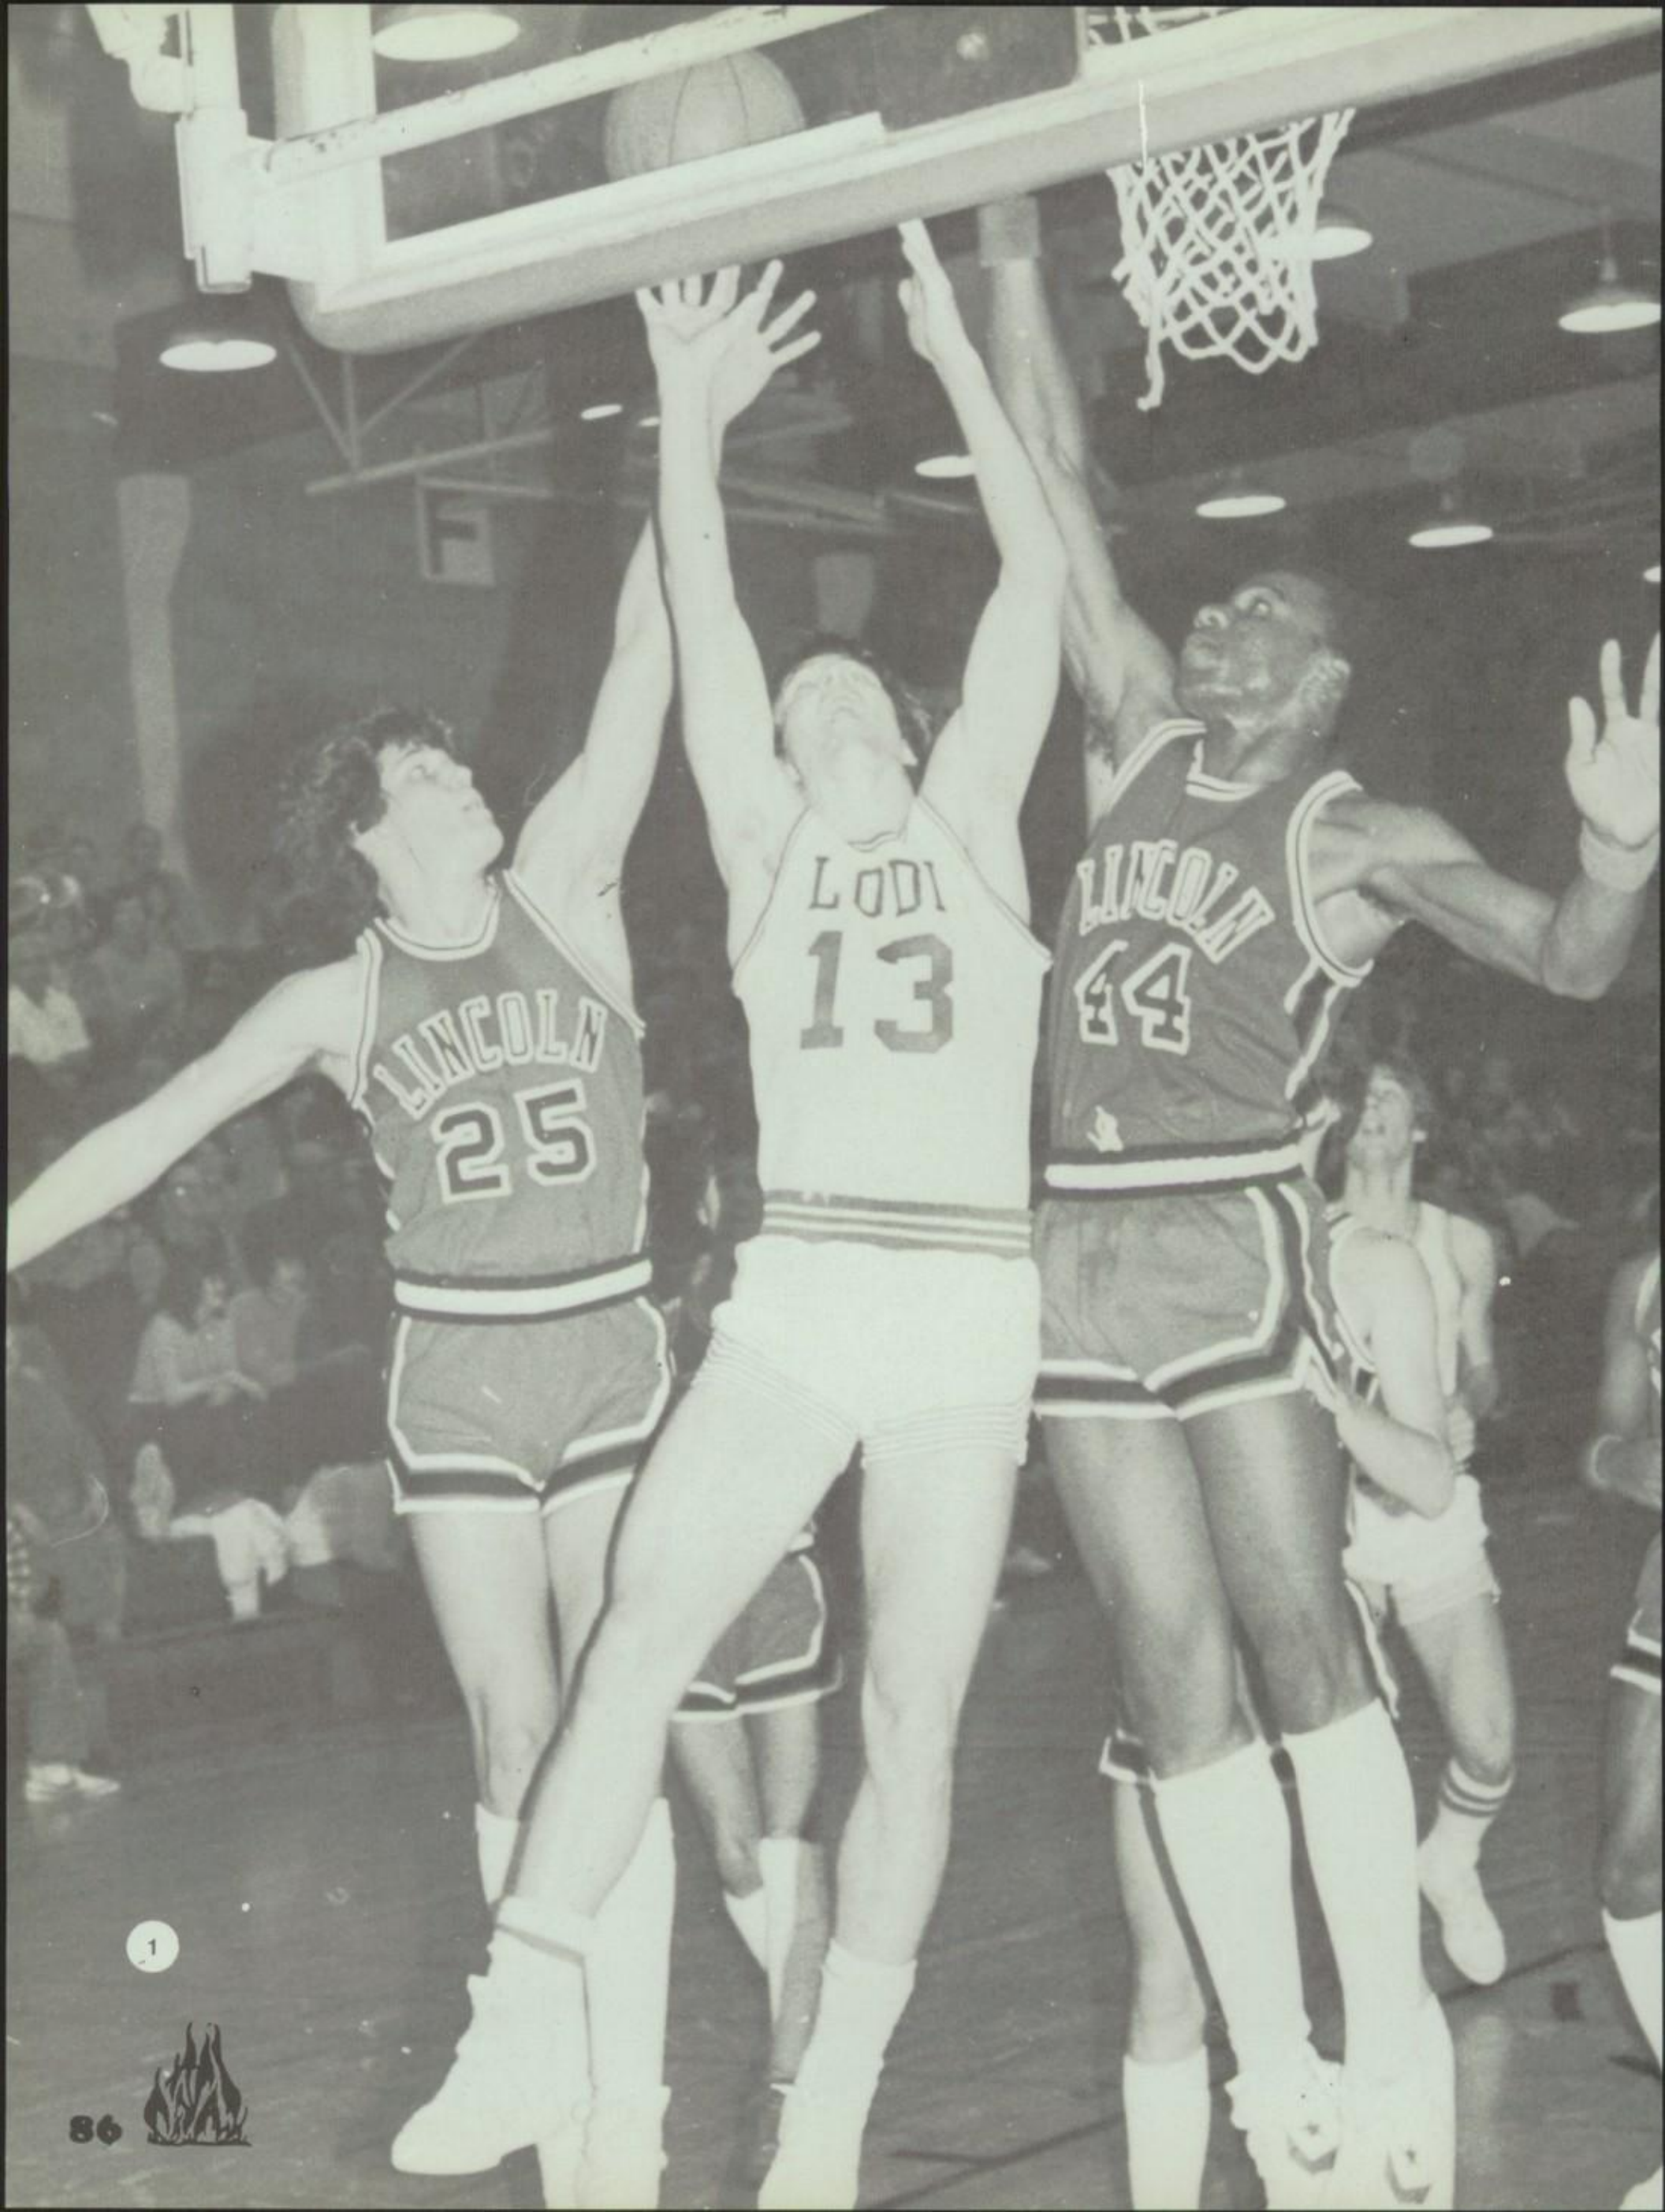

Lincoln, which ended up sharing the league title with Lodi, was "the toughest team to play," according to coach Jon Lapachet. The coach also stated that he was, "Pleased with this year, and is also looking forward to next season."

Varsity stronger with '81 returnees

With the return of six varsity team members from the last year's team, the Flame varsity basketball squad showed experience and skilled organization in the '82 season.

"We were every bit as good this year as we were last year," said senior player Todd Reiswig. This was proven to be true, as they had achieved a third-place league standing by mid-season.

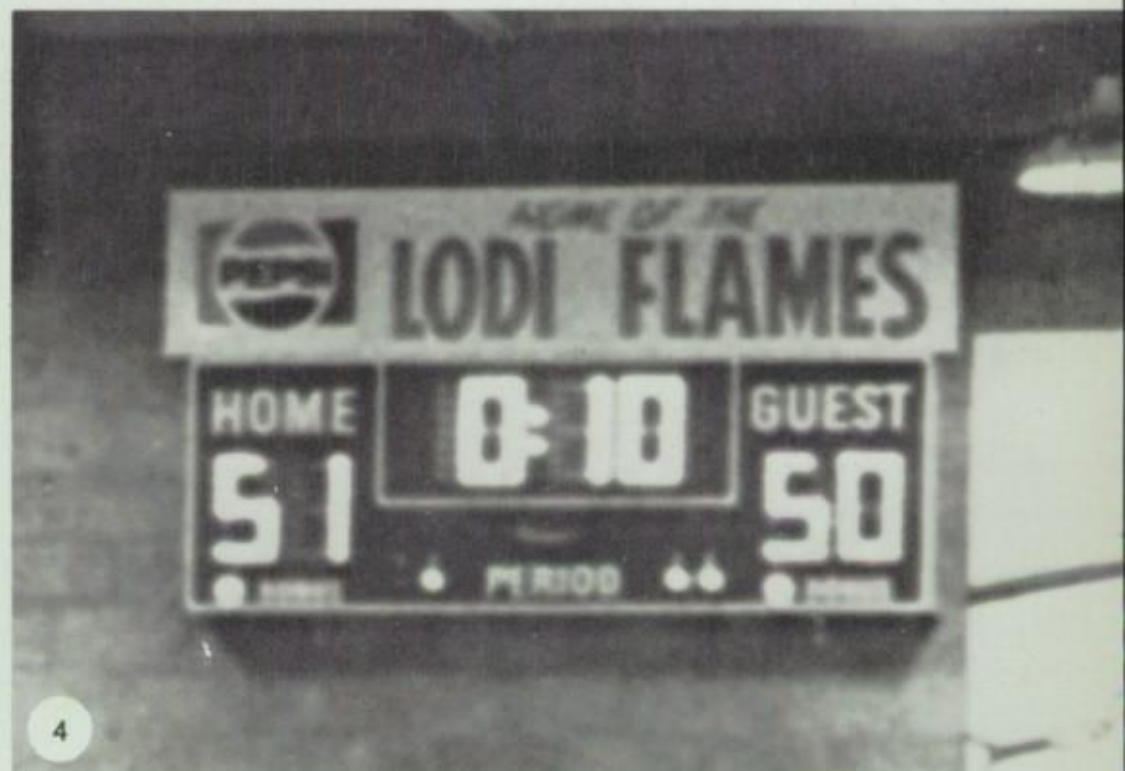

Although there were many juniors on the team, they proved to be courageous players and it is assured they will be the nucleus of an excellent team next season.

Outstanding players this year were Walt Harris, Mike Mutch, and Todd Reiswig. All three proved to be important for the team's success.

Hoopers finished high in standings

The 1981-82 sophomore basketball team, under the direction of coach Dan Salisbury, completed the season with a very respectable rank in the league standings. Their goal for this year was to beat St. Mary's and Tokay at least once. Unfortunately the team did not fulfill their goal. The team managed to place well despite this.

This season was in contrast to previous years. The team felt they worked very hard and had a great sense of teamwork and togetherness on the court, as reflected by their success in the standings. As each game approached, the team showed improvements in confidence and ability. The real key to success was their ability to work well with the two outstanding players on the squad, Steve Goin and Jon Foster.

Sophomore Robert Flippo stated, "This year the team did a lot better and ended up with a better record."

Frosh hoop stars see much change

The freshman boys basketball team had an average season and experienced many changes and a great many improvements during the 1981-82 season.

The freshman league consists currently of teams from Tokay, Tracy, St. Mary's, Lincoln, and Lodi. The Flame frosh managed to defeat cross-town rivals Tokay, but had more difficult struggles against other teams.

Second-year coach Jay Anema led the team through the season, trying to help them with the basic fundamentals and various aspects of team play in preparation for JV and varsity basketball.

Girls B-ball team a surprise leader

The 1981-82 varsity girls' basketball team had an outstanding season. The team outplayed all expectations, taking the early lead in the SJAA league and finishing impressively.

Coached by Fred George, the team consisted of one sophomore, five juniors, and three seniors. New additions to the team Joline King and Shawn Andaya provided the leadership and an added offensive boost. The two first-year LHS basketball players helped the team during their tremendous season. Andaya was selected 'Most Valuable Player' at a preseason tournament in which the Flames placed first.

Throughout the season, the team improved greatly. George said of the team, "We have to improve in every area of the game...but they really play hard." Also, with so many younger players, the outlook for next year's team is quite good.

JV girls basketball sure had great fun!

The JV girl's basketball team had an impressive season, finishing high in the SJAA league and taking a third place victory at the Franklin pre-season tournament.

The team, coached by Mr. Richard Marks, played well throughout the season and improved steadily as the season progressed. The team consisted of twelve players with only four girls returning from last year. Freshman Michelle Sasaki and Freshman Sandi Perry continually scored well and helped to make the team's season successful.

Marks felt that his team play quite well during games and relied much on their superior speed to beat opposing teams. Utilizing a man-to-man defense and defense pressing were two aspects of the game that the team worked to improve throughout the season.

Long practices and personal sacrifices went with being a member of the team, but sophomore Stephanie Theis felt it was "all worthwhile and a lot of fun."

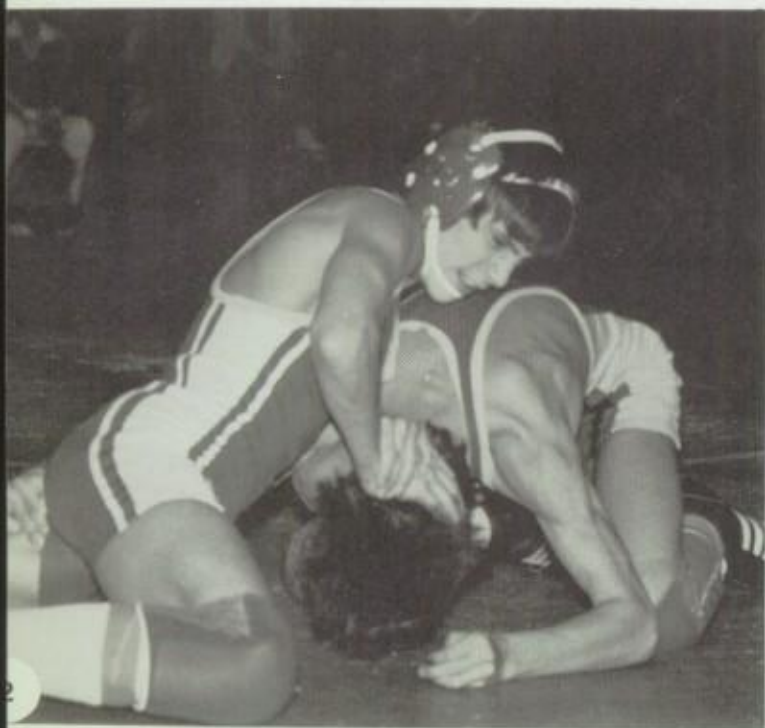

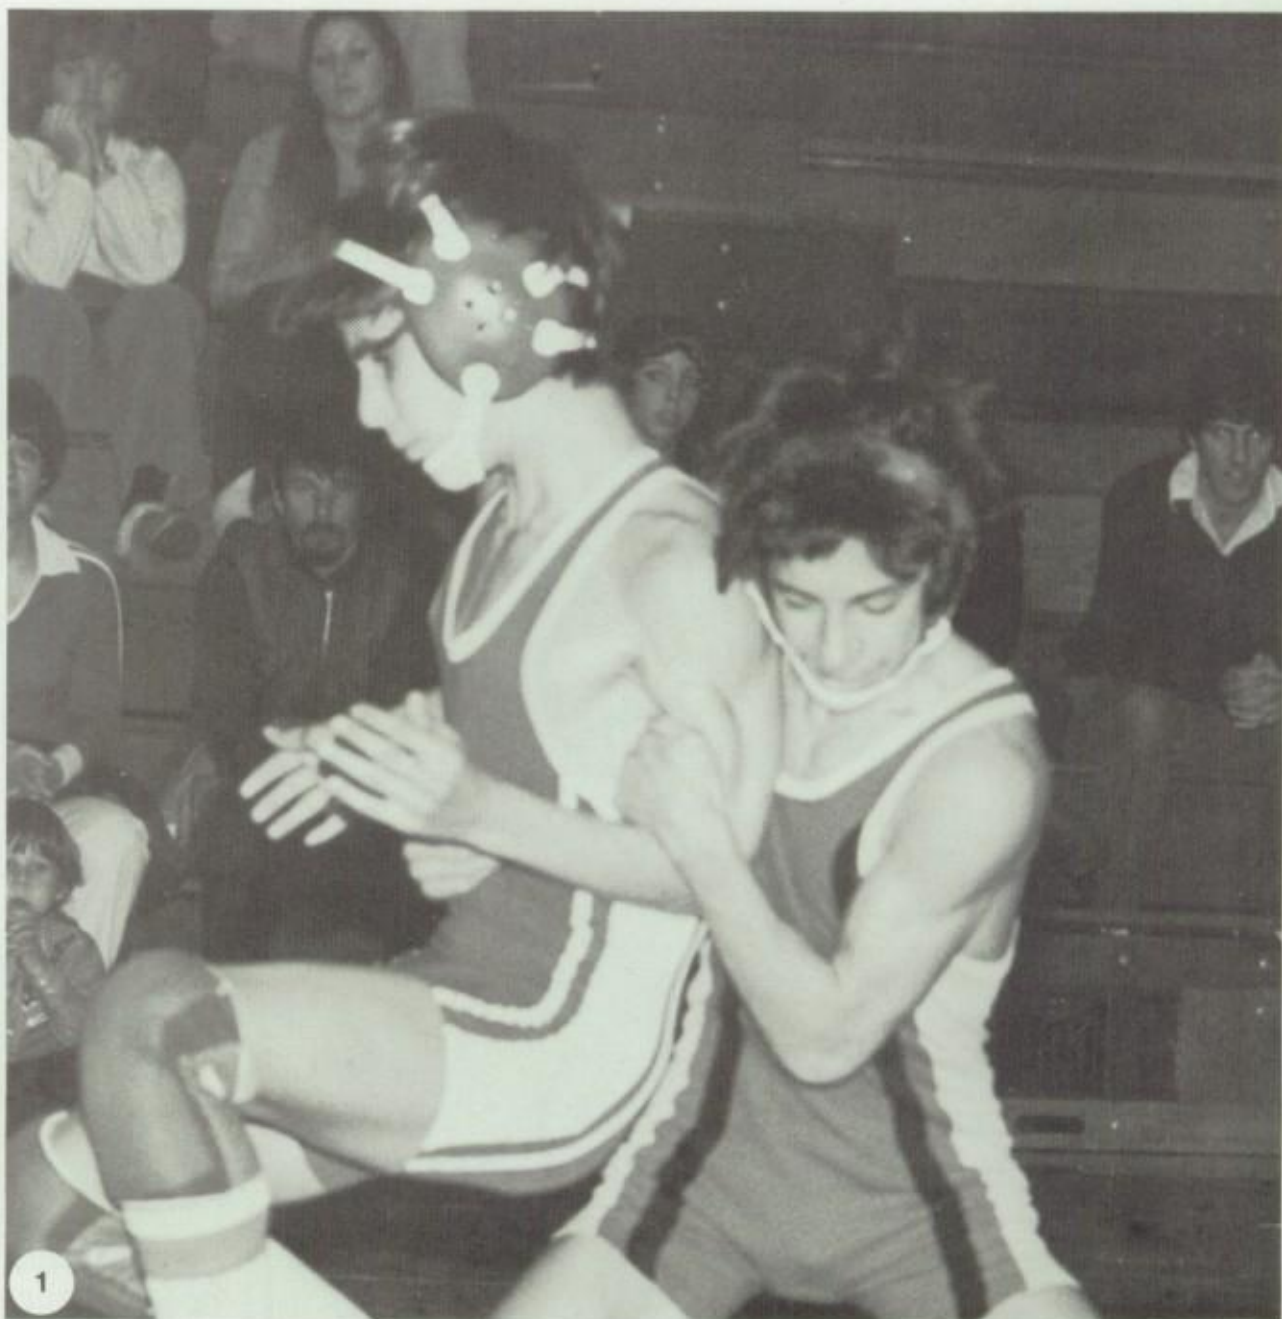

Wrestling team was injury-ridden

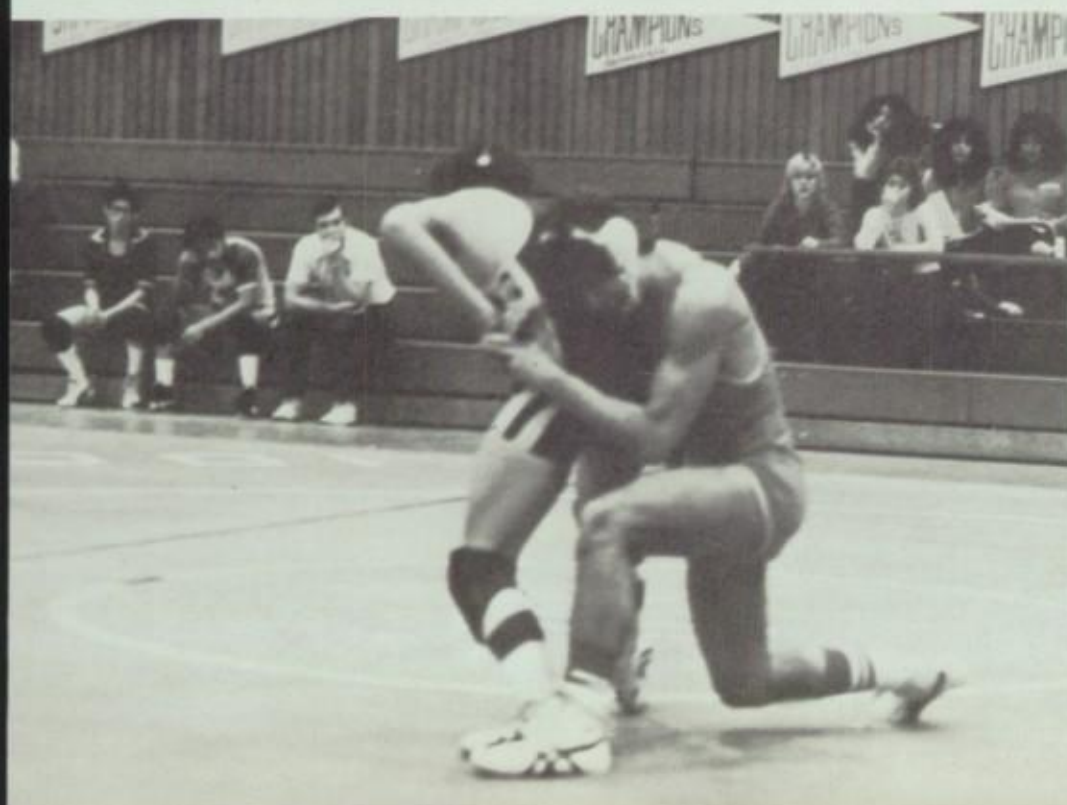

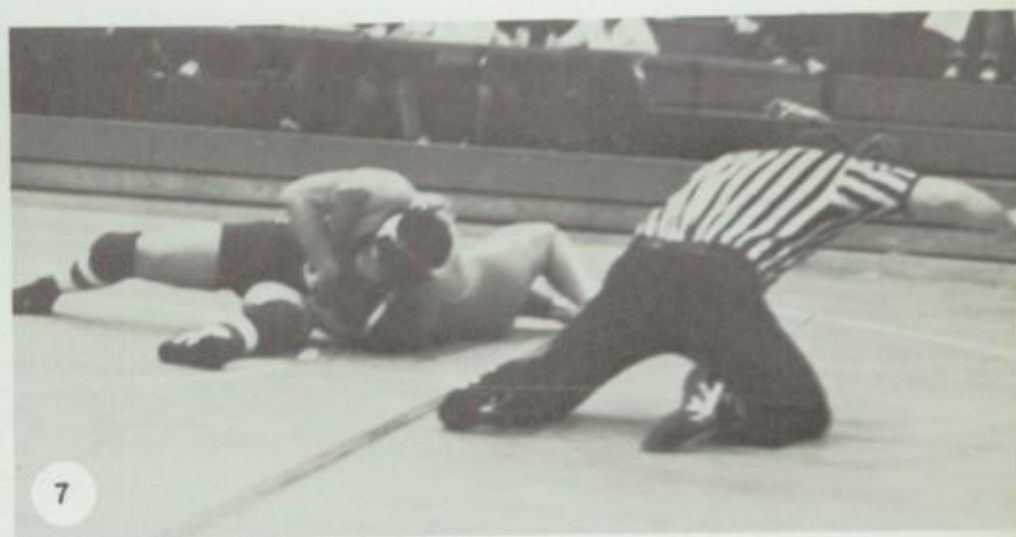

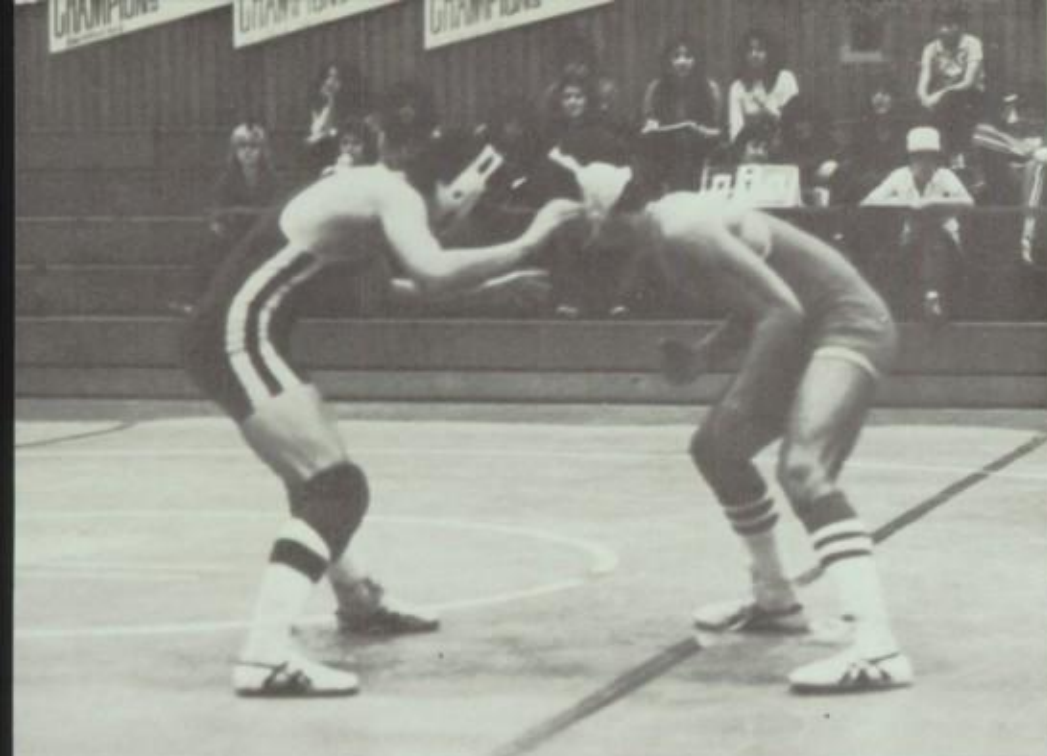

Many injuries plagued the 1981-82 wrestling team, adding to the uncertainty of becoming accustomed to a new head coach. Sidelined by injuries for the season were Mel Whittaker, John Castro, and Robert Sommerfeld.

New for the team this season was coach Ron Taylor. Team member Robert Sommerfeld remarked about Taylor, "He knows what he's doing. He really works the guys. All the work shows at the matches and you know you're going to win."

One of the problems facing the squad this year was keeping down to the weight limits. In order to participate in a match, players would often fast and do vigorous exercises to reach wrestling weight standards. This sometimes created side effects which kept players from practicing on occasion.

At press time, Jeff Mencarini, Greg Davenport and Alex Adams were noted for their outstanding achievements in this season.

Strong spring rain drowned first half of 1982 seasons

Unusually heavy rains made 1982 the seventh-wettest in California's history, dumping uncomfortable amounts of water on the valley areas and leaving record snow levels in the higher elevations.

Locally, the foul weather meant the cancellation of most spring sports for nearly all northern-state teams. Baseball and track were perhaps hardest hit, suffering first from rained-out events, then from loss of facilities for practice as the fields became flooded. By the beginning of April most high schools in the Lodi area had played little or no league contests, except for the remaining badminton season and the swim teams.

By mid-april, the storms had decreased, leaving behind soggy fields and tracks, and frenzied attempts by coaches to make up lost games in the little remaining time before the end of school.

1) Gray, ominous skies were a regular feature at Lodi High School for a substantial part of the Spring. 2) Umpire Pete Sacco takes temporary refuge in the Lodi dugout while the teams wait for the rain to pass. Some time later, the game was allowed to continue. 3) The LHS parking lot was the scene of some minor flooding, causing many students to drive home with wet feet. 4) Many students found it hard to 'be a Pepper' with so much rain at hand. 5) Just about the only sport not affected by the weather was swimming, and even the coaches had to use temporary shelter sometimes. 6) Colleen Brophy bravely splashes to class during a downpour. 7) At least someone found the rain to their liking...8) Two students take advantage of a momentary break in the clouds...to get even wetter!

Mutch and Harris lead Lodi baseball through wet start

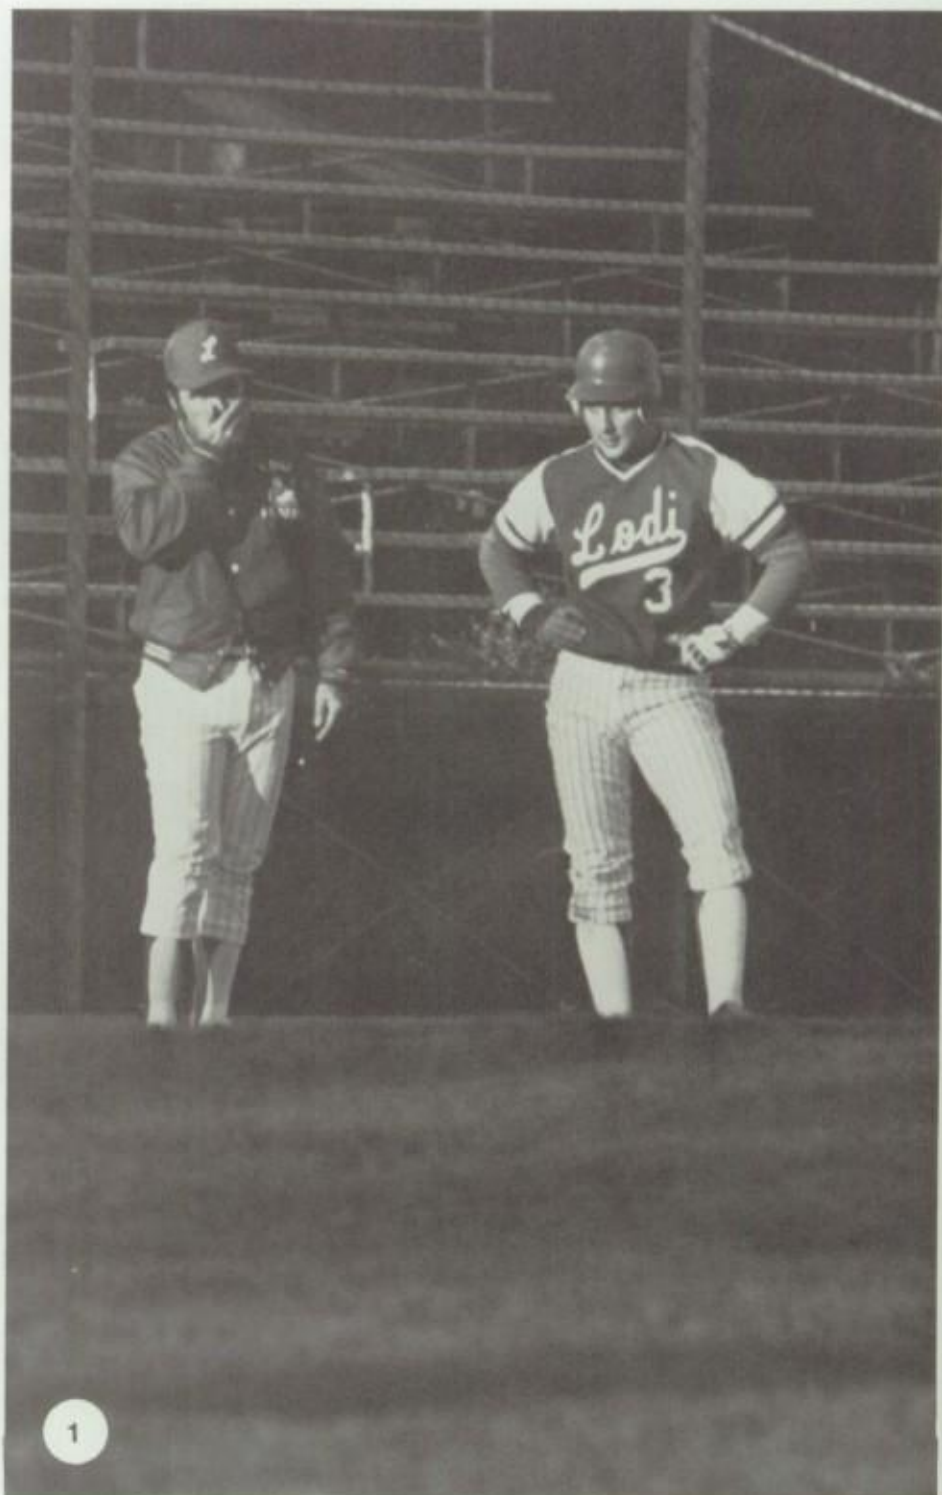

Although it looked at first like league games would never get a chance to start, the record-breaking spring rains finally let up in mid-april, allowing the SJAA games to be held. It was a clear case of 'better late than never,' as the Flames had several games in a row rained out after the first league match against Tracy.

Struggling to overcome the loss of practice caused by impossible field conditions, the baseballers saw action in a wet tourney at Lodi during Spring Break, the first letup in the soggy conditions.

Senior Walt Harris at centerfield led the Flames as a three-year varsity letterman and all-SJAA player. Mike Mutch, another senior, spurred the team on from the shortstop position, making many key infield plays.

This season's pitching staff were Mike Belanger, Pat Kelly, John Curlee, Kieth Kosaka, and perhaps the most useful hitter was first-baseman Matt Gibson. The team was coached by Don Rostomily.

Frosh Flames had weeks of waiting, weather-watching

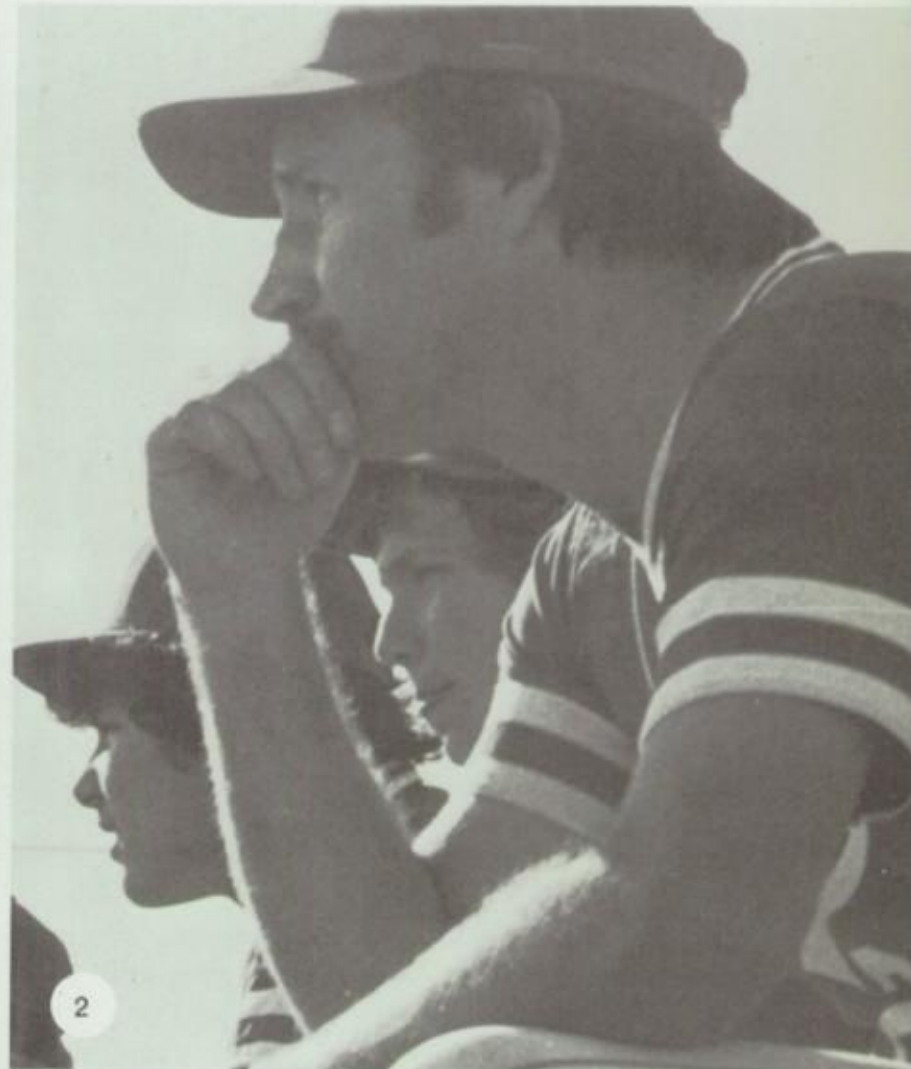

Like all other sports this Spring, freshman baseball got off to a slow start. However, they were able to get in a few games before the rains and winds rendered the fields unplayable.

The team, coached by Bob Whittaker, consisted of twenty players. Pitchers Mike Turner, Jim Mickelson, and Scott Heinrich led the Flames through the season, with a strong infield complementing the squad's ability.

In their league, the freshman fared well, matching up with Lincoln, Tracy, Tokay, and St. Mary's. 9th-grader Curtis Travis felt the team had a great amount of potential and was extremely strong in the hitting department.

Coach Whittaker wanted to ensure that his players had complete command of basic baseball fundamentals before moving on to sophomore competition, so he held long and strenuous practices whenever the rains allowed.

Year of rebuilding for racquet squad

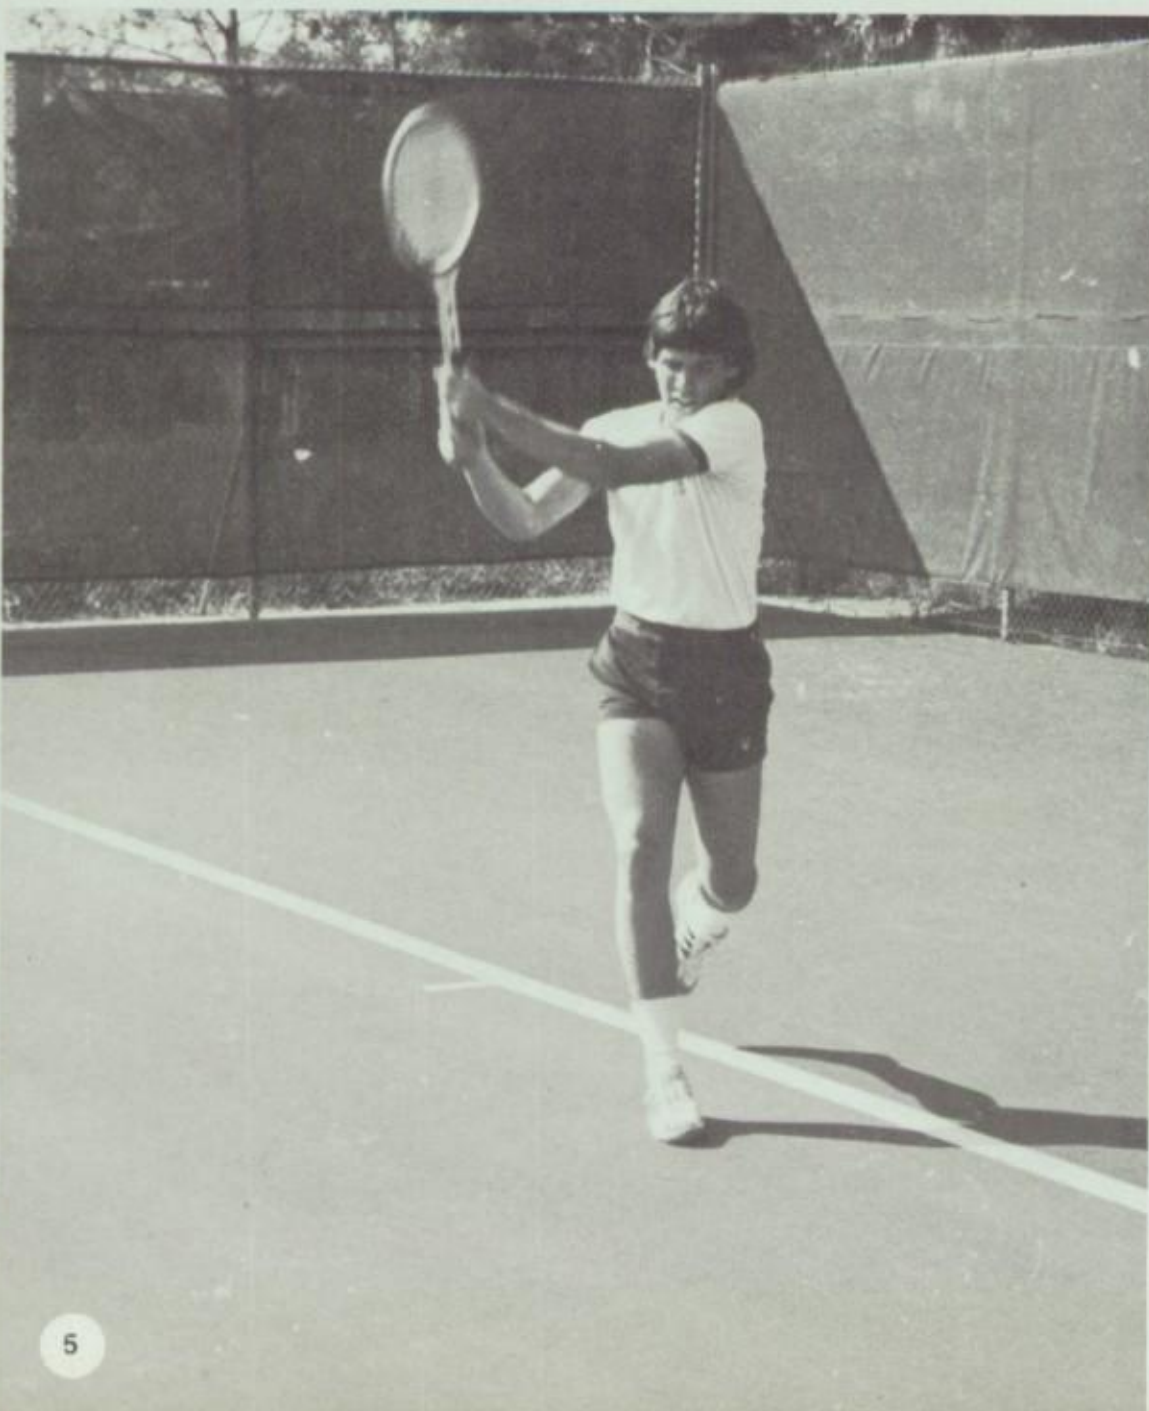

For the first time in several seasons, the LHS boys tennis team was not favored to capture the league title.

With the loss of at least one top player from last year, the team was not off to a strong start. Other teams in the league added key players, making the competition even tougher this year.

"Unlike the last few years, the team is going to suffer from a severe lack of experienced players," acknowledged Bob Robillard, a senior on the squad.

Richard Marks was the coach for the second consecutive year, and Shaun Hayes remained the top player. Hayes hoped to repeat his league championship once again. Other top seniors were Robillard, Mark Reis, and Mike Friedli. All teams experience periods of rebuilding, and the Flames looked forward to training and polishing newly-emerging skills in the new team members.

Track experienced loss of practices, too many rainouts

The varsity track team suffered greatly throughout the first half of the season, as the stormy weather lasted and lasted. The track and field were put out of commission by mud and puddles, and forced cancellation after cancellation. At press time in early April, the tracksters still had not been able to host a home SJAA meet.

Perhaps worst of all was the poor practice conditions, denying much time to any field events, and forcing the running events to be content with distance runs to Lodi Lake. This was expected to hurt performances when the rain eventually stopped and competition was resumed.

The only hopeful note in the situation was that all the other schools in the SJAA were in exactly the same circumstances.

1) Peggy O'Brian clears a hurdle during early practice. 2) During what must have been the only dry day in the early season, Ken Nietschke gets in some form-improving repetitions. 3) Tammy Simpfenderfer laps consistently. 4) The 1982 varsity track team. 5) Leading the hurdlers are Dale Del Hierro and Shaun Piazza. 6) Todd Stubbs tries to catch up.

JV tracksters got a hopeful starting

Positive attitudes, lots of new people, and new coaches were some of the standout qualities of the 1982 JV track team. Coach Gary Knackstedt said of his charges, "This year's team is better-organized than in years past...the kids are more interested in winning, best start they've ever had."

Everyone who really wanted to make the team did so, as evidenced by the small number of cuts made in the roster. There was, however, a smaller number of sophomore athletes present than what is considered average for LHS.

Sophomore Richard Quesada said of the team, "This team has a future...with a better girls team than in the past. More talent is here for the JV team as a whole...there could very well be a possibility for the team."

Strong finish seen for '82 JV softball

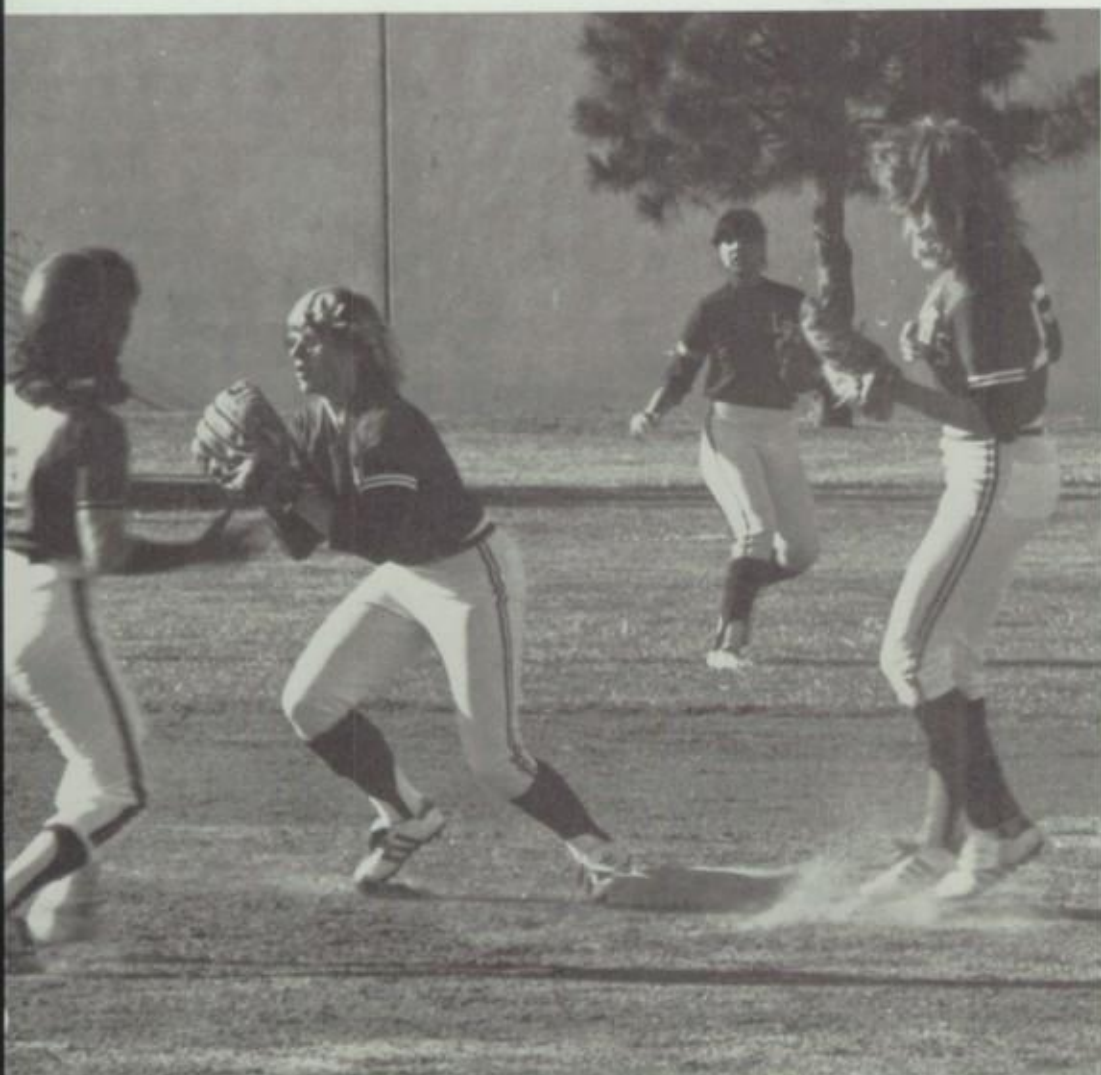

The junior varsity softball team had a good season, capped with a strong finish in the SJAA standings. The team consisted of 16 players with only 5 returning from last year.

A slow start was something the softballers shared with all the other spring sports, caused by rainy weather for half of the season. When the sun finally came out, the team gained momentum and managed a series of wins over other league opponents.

Toni Miller coached the team for the second year in a row, and was happy with the ability of all her players. The team members were all very close in ability level, which provided the team with a lot of depth.

All in all, the team also had a good number of promising freshman talent, making next year's outlook quite nice.

Senior power led softball to success

A number of talented players enabled this year's softball team to a finish in the top three of the league. Leading this talent were four seniors who sparked the squad to consistently good performances throughout the Spring.

Coach Rick Spieckerman felt his team was a hard-working group and were tough competitors. Handling the pitching chores were seniors Debbie Defenbaugh and Traci Spieckerman, along with talented sophomore Shawn Andaya. Five juniors and two sophomores gave a balance of experience to the team roster.

Cindy Bo, a sophomore who played catcher for the FLames, said she enjoyed playing on the varsity team, and liked the tougher competition. "While playing and practicing is a lot of work," said Bo, "...the fun and experience was worth it."

Young swimmers aimed for honors in sectional meets

The swim team was filled with freshmen this year, taking fifteen of the 27 spots in the team roster. There were, in addition, four sophomores, six juniors, and only two seniors.

Coach Betty Locke expected at least five girls out of twelve to achieve sectional placings this season, as they were the top team last year. According to Locke, Lincoln was felt to be the team to beat this time.

The boys are hoping to end in one of the top three spots, and the frosh-soph team hopes to take the league title. Lincoln and Tokay should provide the strongest competition.

Coach Locke stated that "No team at school puts in more hours toward practice than the people on the swim team."

1) Katrina Anagnos leaves the pool after a strenuous warmup. 2) This year's swim team was: (front row, l-r) Sandi Walker, Pam Siewert, Dale Ellwein, Steve Jensen, Ken Schnell, Katrina Anagnos, Mari Onoyama, Mike Piazza, Eric Larson, Eric Schneider, David Polson, (back row) C Coach Betty Locke, Melinda Wilson, Joan Dayton, Wendy Larson, Liz Dayton, Todd Hausauer, Phillip Schaffer, Christine Hansen, Kristi Mayer, Ann-Marie Koth, Larry Aacker, John Kramer, Steve Martin, Rob Sutter, Ivan Wiker, Coach Jon Lapachet. 3) Junior swimmer Wendy Larson tucks her hair up before getting wet. 4) Dale Ellwein makes the turn against St. Mary's. 5) Pushing to the limit is sophomore Joan Dayton. 6) Working off some pre-race jitters, John Kramer enters the pool with a "cannonball."

Four-person dive team showed lots of medal potential

Diving coach Earl Johnson starts his twenty-sixth year with the LHS diving

Earl Johnson started his twenty-sixth year as the LHS diving team coach. Even though there were only four members on this season's team, he expected to do well. "Lincoln will be the hardest team to beat," he predicted.

The team included Kathy Locke, who won her spot in the conference meet last year, and finished third in sections. Conference third-place winner Kathy Watson is also back again this year. According to Johnson, she showed real improvement.

Freshman Brian Mee was expected to do well after recovering from an early-season bout with a virus. Brad Elkins returned to the team after a year-long absence, bringing, in Johnson's words, "...good depth and skill." Though small in numbers, the diving team hoped for a strong finish by the season's end.

LHS golfers were league power team in '82 link season

Coach Steve Wolf declared "We are the team to beat...in order for any other team to take the sections, they'll have to beat us!", as the season began after Christmas.

The team's basic strength lay in eight players: Jack Lipelt, Mel Smalley, Mike Joseph, Jon Wieshoff, Craig Steely, Denise Butell, Kyle Bergstrom, and Mary Machado. In addition to the more experienced eight, three new players show some good potential. These were Marlys Bergstrom, Matt Surber, and Doug Easter.

Wolf, in his sixth year as the golfing coach, felt that the teams to beat were Tracy and St. Mary's. Based on past performances, Tokay and Lincoln were counted as forces with potential, also.

1) Mary Machado was one of three girls on the golf team this season. 2) Craig Steely is all concentration as he readies his drive. 3) One of the strongest of the golfers, Mel Smalley. 4) Denise Butell returned for her fourth year as a golf team member. 5) The Flame golf team was: (back, l-r) Coach Steve Wolf, Jon Wieshoff, Troy Steele, Jack Lipelt, Mel Smalley, Doug Easter, Jim Marshall, Andre Makapagal (front) Kip Johnson, Kyle Bergstrom, Mary Machado, Denise Butell, Marlys Bergstrom, Craig Steely and Matt Surber. 6) Holding down the team's number one spot was Jack Lipelt.

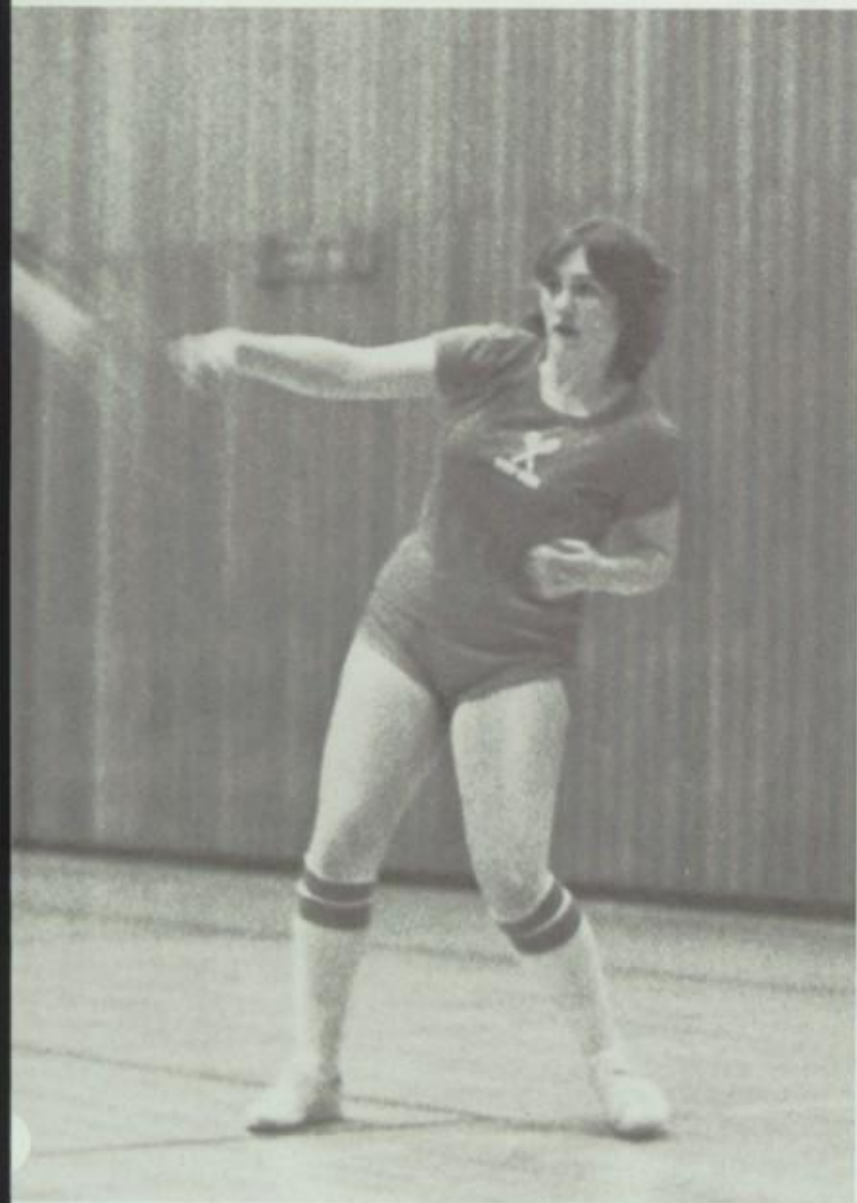

Badminton team hopes for a better season than ever

The badminton team began the season on a hopeful note this year, with a successful 1981 performance behind them. Competition for the top league spot was expected to be very tough this year, with Edison, Lincoln, and Tokay billed as the major rivals.

Led by Suzanne Yip, Gina Garcia, Jaydee Reeves, and Jill George in singles and Elsa Tsutaoka, Diana Schmidt, Debbie Yamamoto and Stephanie Virrey in doubles, the varsity set out to garner an impressive record. Third-year coach Karen Jensen was pleased with her team's potential, and hoped for a strong finish at the season's end.

Lots of freshmen helped swell the team ranks to 24 in 1982, including four boys. The JV team was especially large, and was favored to finish in the top three.

Write-in president takes charge !

A write-in candidate led the student government in improving school spirit. The main concern was to raise student participation and pride in Lodi High.

ASB president Robert Bostwick and his followers were credited with a successful job of raising spirit, along with the efforts of the senior class in general.

Mr. Bruce Lattimer, advisor to Student Activities Board (SAB), said, "SAB is the glue that holds all the social activities and Lodi High together." Many events were successfully completed by SAB, including the Ruby presentation, victory week, Christmas party, and others.

The executive branch was headed by president Bostwick, with Tina Anagnos as secretary and Darbie Johnson as assistant secretary. Other members included treasurer Scott Laurente, commissioner of public relations Corey Okazaki, attorney general Paul Bingham, commissioner of internal relations Jesse Galvan, and commissioner of publicity Lynett Hieb.

We made some Improvements!

Cleaning up the old Tokay School site in exchange for Ruby, the antique fire engine, was a big project for the 1981-82 Student Assembly.

Ruby will be used by the LHS students for special school functions. Many of the campus organizations and clubs were involved with the Assembly in donating their time to make the old Tokay campus into something sueful for the city of Lodi.

Projects completed by the Student Assembly were numerous, including updating college catalogues, redistricting, updating track records, and public-relations work. Additionally, much effort went into cleaning up trophy cases and the plaza area, and organizing freshman orientation. Most of these projects were under the supervision of Assembly speaker Gayelynn McDaniel and advisor John Fletcher.

Band had a year full of successes

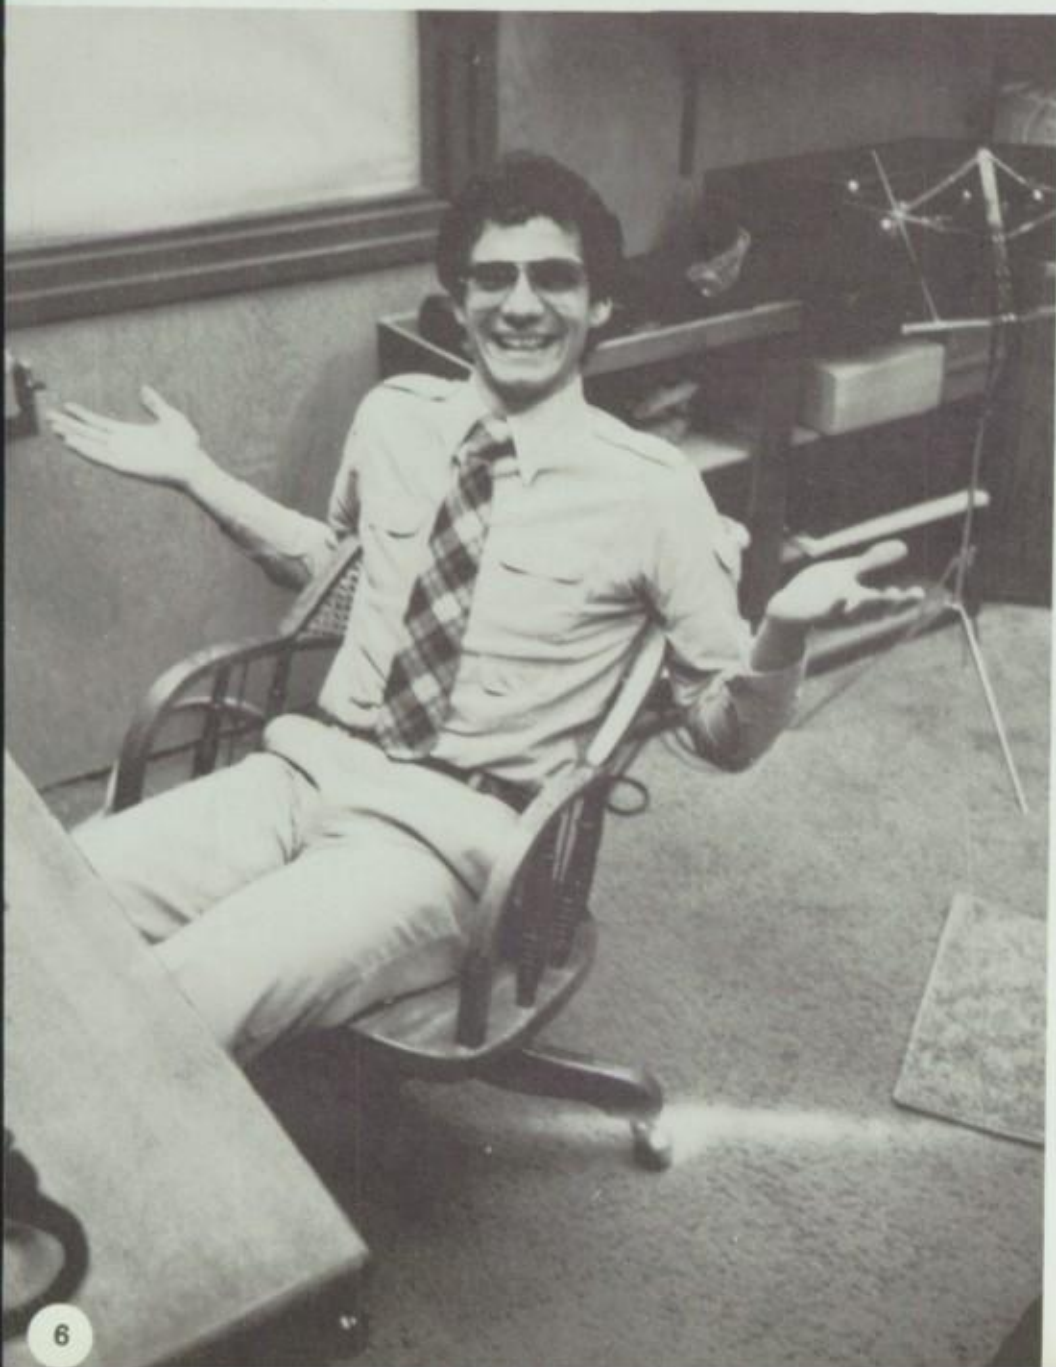

The "Pride of Lodi" was brought to a smooth-running operation by Mr. Luis Gonzalez in his first year as band director for LHS.

Senior musician Steve Abatangle explained, "There have been a lot of reasons for our success this year. It is mostly based around our new director, because his motivation for us to work kept us going...we became more like a family."

The band had a terrific year, sending the maximum number of musicians to the All-County Honor Band. Lodi High was also the only band to send 5 members to the State Honor Band. To cap it all off, the band also won their first overall sweepstakes award in competition.

Among their many activities, the band hosted their own band review, gave a spring pops concert, and enjoyed a trip to Disneyland. They performed in competition at Long Beach, where rain forced them to strut their stuff indoors. Overall, the band members felt it had been a successful season indeed.

Block "L" had a year of fundraisers

Being a member of Block L represents an accomplishment in athletics at Lodi High. Members qualify when they earn a varsity letter in their field of sports.

Stewart Geisler was this year's president. Vice-president was Quay Richerson, with Tracy Spickerman as secretary and Todd Stubbs as treasurer.

Block L activities consisted of attending a Golden State Warriors basketball game, and a baseball contest featuring the Oakland a's. Most of their fund-raising was handled through concessions at ball games.

Choir achieved a rating of 'excellent'

1981-82 was another outstanding year for the Lodi High A Capella Choir, who were again voted one of the best choirs in Northern California.

The choir received the high honor of singing at the CMEA state convention in Los Angeles. After this, they took their '82 tour to San Diego and Arizona. In order to take the tour, the choir had several fundraisers during the year. Later the choir joined those of Lincoln and Clovis high schools at the Invitational Choral Festival held at the University Of The Pacific.

During the school year, the choir went out into the community to present their talent. At Christmas they entertained at the California Youth Authority facility. They also held four concerts and an ice cream social.

Senior Mariana Duspiva stated, "We've done an excellent job. There was a lot of hard work, but it was worth it. All four of my years in choir were enjoyable." Choir director Doug Riddle also admitted, "This is the best choir that I have had in the last five years."

Academic leaders filled CSF ranks

Being a club based upon academic standings, CSF takes their membership from among the best grade point averages on campus. In order to insure consistent high quality, membership is reviewed and renewed each semester.

This year's CSF secretary, Elsa Tsutaoka, found her position an easy one to maintain. "There was not a lot to be done, and there were no meetings held,...so I had basically nothing to do," she said.

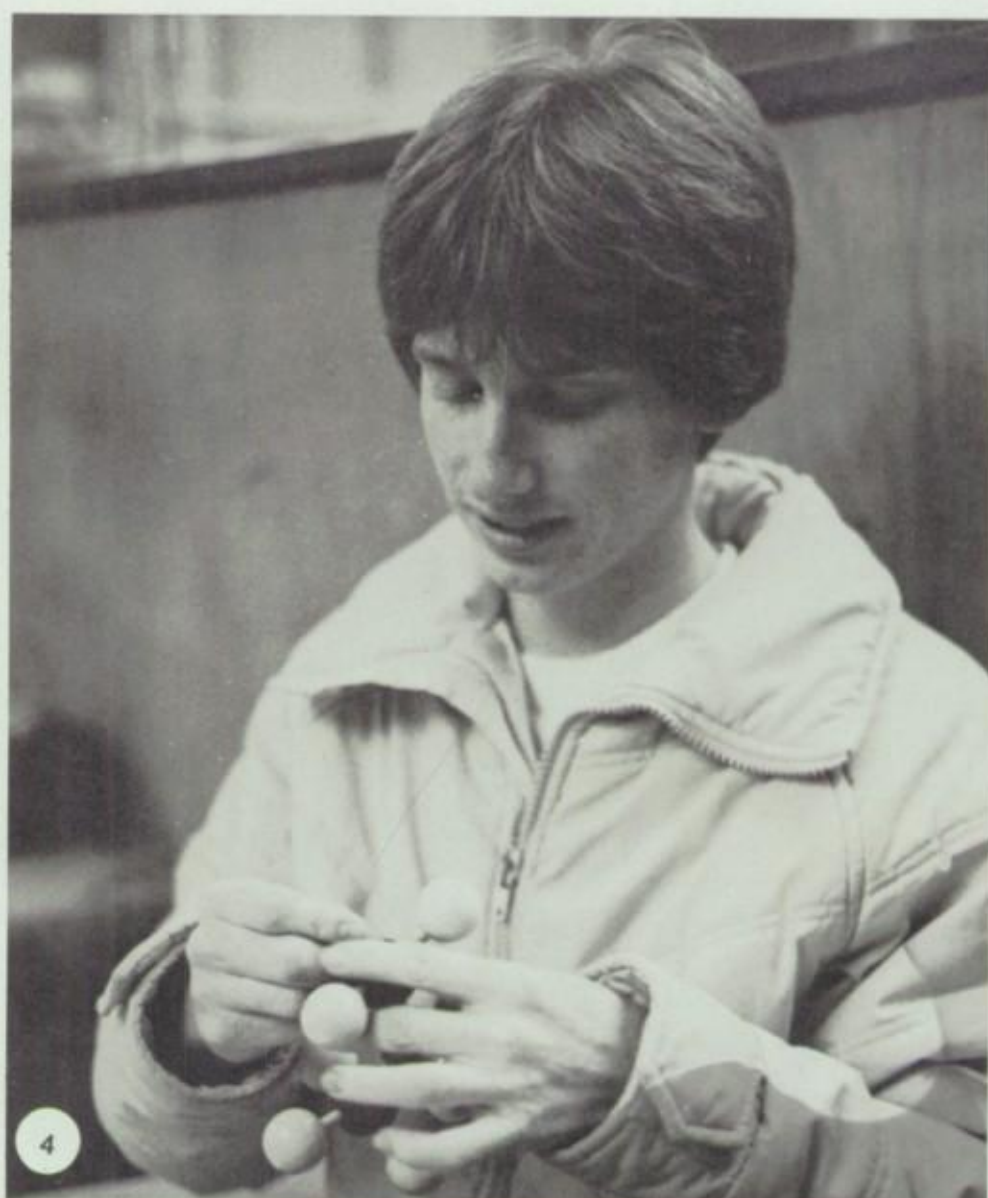

This year the club's activities included decorating a Christmas tree for the cafeteria and an honor day in the Spring.

The Physics and Advanced Chemistry classes participated in many strange and diverse activities this year. Physics projects included dropping eggs from the rooftops to measuring the power of a mousetrap.

Advanced Chemistry performed experiments of all kinds. Students measured light waves, calculated chemical reactions, and even made peanut brittle for a Christmas treat.

Both classes proved to be a challenge for ambitious students.

Sauro returns for dance leadership

This year marked the return of Gail Sauro to the P.E. department's dance staff. After a year's leave of absence, she was warmly welcomed back by the students. Senior Lizette Joehnnsen stated, "We all like her, and respect her enthusiasm."

Part of Sauro's enthusiasm was to acquire more male dance members to the club, so that more variety of dances could be performed. Sauro requested that the girls enrolled in Dance ask the guys to join. Since this effort was made, the male enrollment in the clubs has nearly tripled.

The performance schedule for the Dance Club included the annual Christmas Production and the Spring Dance Concert. A new rule was included this year requiring all participants in the productions to be club members. The group also made a few trips to the San Francisco Ballet with the money raised from the productions.

“Damn Yankees” featured by drama

The Drama Club accomplished much this year, with a run of several successful plays and performances.

The greek tragedy, “Antigone,” from the classical era, was the feature performance of the Fall season. The Christmas play, a tradition at LHS, was the lighthearted “Winnie the Pooh,” a children’s play. This was performed for grade-school and pre-school audiences.

The major production of the year was the musical, “Damn Yankees,” about a baseball team’s contest against the superstars of the day.

Besides play productions, the Drama Club attended workshops in Sacramento and Stockton, to share experiences and ideas with other theatre groups. Later, they held a drama workshop of their own.

Working within a framework of vocal, dramatic, and dance instruction, the drama club members received a variety of instruction which would increase their ability to entertain others.

1) Jennifer Hansen awaits her cue to enter from the wings. 2) Students help build sets, one of the many chores required of all drama members. 3) A hopeful talent auditions for a part in the Spring play. 4) Two of the outrageous costumes required in "Winnie-The-Pooh." 5) The members of the Drama Club take time out from a rehearsal: (l-r back row) Renee Jeremic, Scott Littlefield, Marci Fermier, Clatyton Litwinenco, Barb Vetter (row 2) Kevin Mettler, Erin Whitmore, Morten Nygaard, (front) Kristin Marshall, Stacey Mettler, Jennifer Hansen.

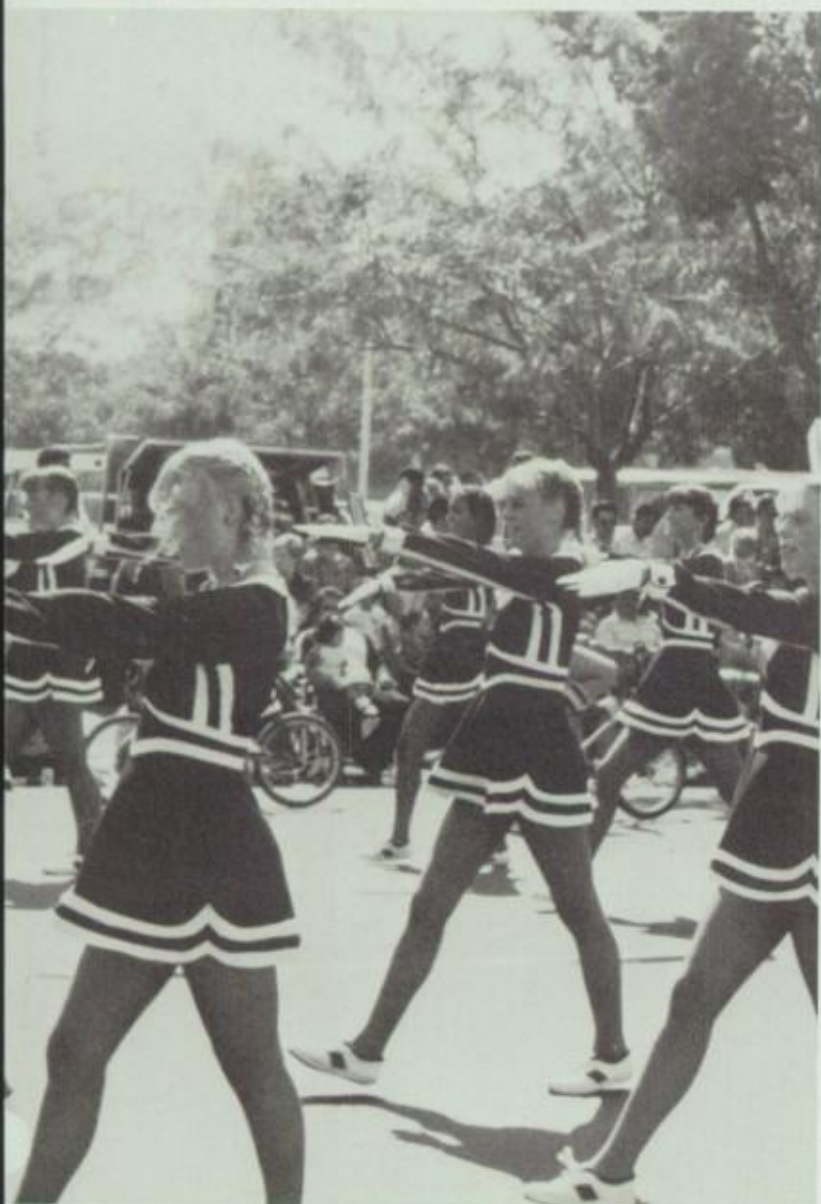

Drill team enjoyed a year of success

This year the student body at Lodi High greeted the Drill Team with enthusiasm and support, fitting recognition for the hard, disciplined work and polished results the girls displayed.

Exciting routines involving precision and talent highlighted many rallies and games. The team also entered competition against many other similar high-school groups, an activity which kept all the members quite busy.

Lizzette Johennsen and the rest of the Drill Team members offered a special thanks to Mrs. Mary Hill, the advisor to the group: "Without her, our team might never have been so successful...we owe it all to her!"

Spirit soared in 82

Spirit groups began the new school year with a brand-new advisor, Mrs. Juliet Uehling of the English department. Uehling gave much of her time to bettering the group's performances, a difficult task.

According to one of the spirit leaders, freshman Amy Mattheis, "Being a spirit leader is hard work...many people don't realize how much time is spent planning rallies. At the Lodi-Tokay game rally, B-Yell spent three to five hours just making posters."

All of the hard work paid off in much-improved student body spirit, which was noticeably higher than in the past three years at LHS. "Homecoming Rally had the best turnout," said Mattheis.

During the summer, the spirit groups went to a cheerleading camp, which is designed to improve and promote their skills. There the Lodi High squads won many spirit awards and A-Song captured a Superior trophy. They had also won the honor of going to the 49er-Dallas Cowboys football game.

Mattheis also volunteered the opinion that "...getting more experience in leadership and learning to work together without fighting," was the most important thing gained from the spirit leading experience.

1) B-Yell members for '82 were (top 1-r) Pam Hinkson, Michele Edwards, Lisa Peters, (bottom) Lana Fink, Ann Jyono, Amy Mattheis. 2) Amy Mattheis, Lana Fink, Robin Stading, Charise Corpe take a ride in the Homecoming Parade. 3) In a rally at Emerson Park Ann Jyono and pam Hinkson get the spirit going. 4) Cheerleaders Hinkson, Fink, and Jyono relaxed and happy after Lodi beat Lincoln in a home football game. 5) Suzanne Nakamura and Marian Hinkson lead the cheering at a rally. 6) The Homecoming Parade was a high point of the football season. 7) Dave Goehring cheers at Emerson Park. 8) Charise Corpe and Robin Stading wait for traffic to speed up during the parade.

Embers anticipated a prizewinning '82

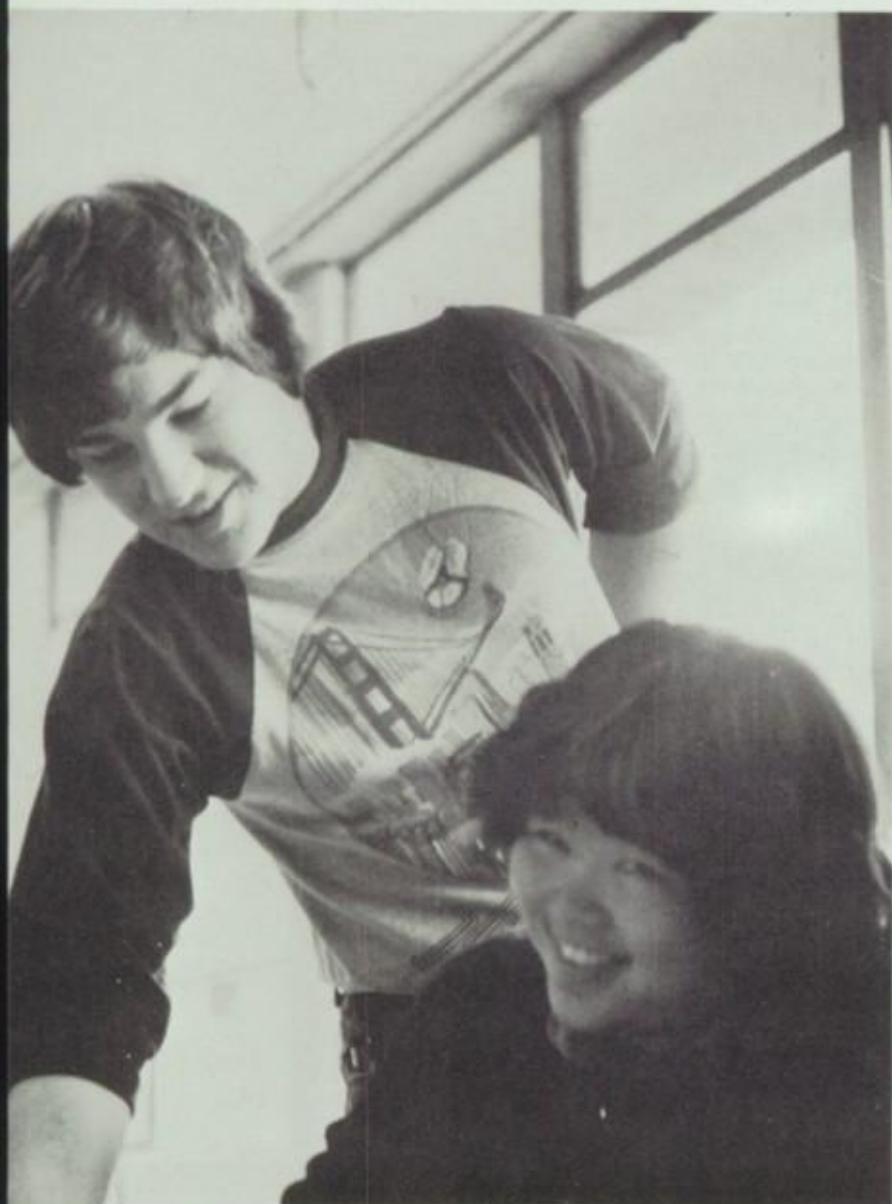

The 1982 Embers was produced under the editorial direction of Tom O'Connor, strove to be the best yearbook produced in recent memory at Lodi High. Flame Publications, the yearbook-newspaper branch of the Creative Arts department, was blessed with more skilled photographers than in previous seasons, and it was hoped that the print quality of the publications would rise accordingly.

The pictorial ability of the staff was increased with the acquisition of six used cameras and lenses, to bolster the two used last year. There was no longer a long line of students waiting to use the equipment, and in general, Embers photo persons had more negatives produced per item.

In particular, the color sections were more meticulously assembled this year, and it was hoped that the quality of that section would set the tone for the rest of the book.

Senior Curt Anderson performed photo-editing duties while junior Elsa Tsutaoka filled second-in-command to give the hard-pressed O'Connor some valuable help. Yearbook representative John Stevenson spent long hours patiently scrutinizing copy and layouts, and making the vital connections between color printers, graphics production, and other loose ends associated with yearbook production.

Young staff copes with newspaper's varied demands

An inexperienced staff and an unruly typesetter were just two of the problems besetting the Flame newspaper editing staff as this school year began.

Seniors Susana Jaime and Mary Donovan surmounted these and other problems during the school year, and produced another run of quality newspapers covering the campus and local teen scene. A staff of 25 did the demanding and often exhausting work which accompanies journalism, and did so without the advantage of a large number of senior workers.

The paper staff also competed locally in Stockton and Fresno journalism contests, as well as in the national-level Columbia Evaluation.

New camera equipment and some needed repairs to the typesetting machine helped boost the capabilities of the Flame staff, and the quality of the paper grew steadily with each issue.

Sibole represented Lodi FFA chapter at nat'l gathering

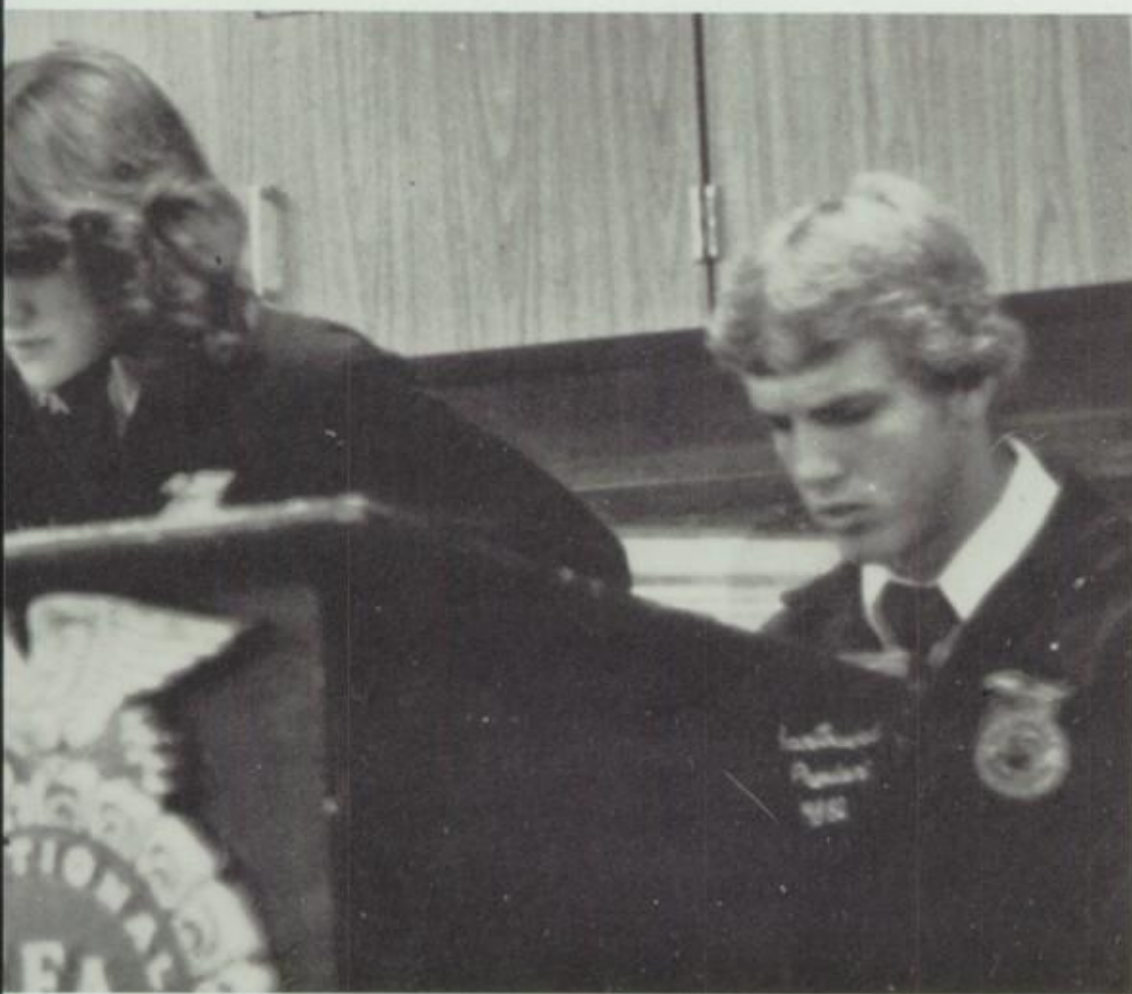

When the words "active, busy, fun, work and play" are used, one club which comes to mind is Future Farmers of America. The Lodi chapter of FFA was usually the most active one on campus, and also boasts the longest continuous history. Lodi High has the distinction of having the first of all the FFA chapters in California.

Lodi's FFA was a very active class and organization, always involved in many simultaneous projects involving livestock, machines, or other agricultural or agribusiness applications.

This year the FFA sent Sonda Seible to Kansas City to represent us in the FFA convention. The excursion also included a trip to the White House for a tour.

FFA officers for 1982 included Jay Batth, Bart Lauchland, Sonda Seible, Melinda Perrin, Kevin Soucie and Eric Anderson.

Mecha was active with new advisor

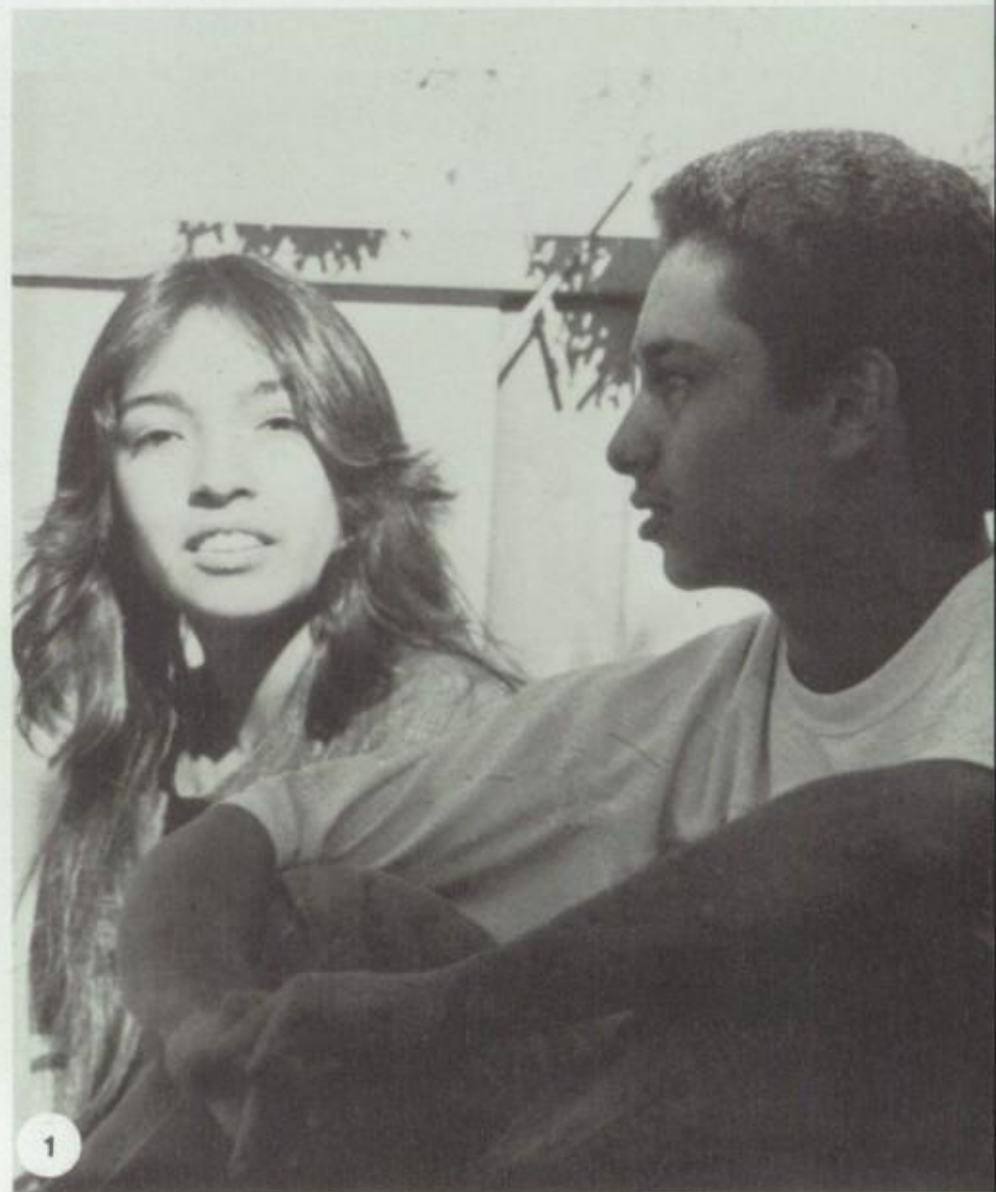

"I think we've had a good time and learned about each other," said John Whitted, Mecha Club advisor and LHS psychology/family living teacher.

The club, under new advisors this season, participated in many activities. They started the year by hosting a basketball and volleyball tournament with Tokay's mexican-american-oriented group LSU. Mecha's second annual tamale sale was successful, as was the Christmas party.

At most of the meetings, Mr. Whitted held rap sessions on such topics as dealing with prejudice, interracial dating, and educational opportunities for minorities. "It helps a lot of people to solve their problems," said Mecha Club President, Ramon Valencia. "I feel this year was successful with Mr. Whitted as our new advisor, and different things going on."

The club also boasted an increase in membership to make them the third-largest club at Lodi High, with a roster of approximately 47 dues-paying members.

In addition to Whitted, co-advisors Jesse Serna and Patsy Hood worked with club officers Manuel Valencia, Mary Quesada, and Olivia Lopez to ensure a productive year.

Pegasus had a productive year !

Pegasus Club membership flourished as more and more students wrote stories, poems and other short essays to become members of the English Honor Society.

The Club planned to see two theater plays, attending Dicken's, "A Christmas Carol", in December as their first trip of the year.

The club also produced their annual publication "The Winged Horse" with a selection of student written material. "Winged Horse" editor Laverne Mah hoped to bring more quality to add to the overall effect of the publication.

Along with advisor Mr Maclise, the club also tried many fundraising activities. The club officers for the 1981-1982 school year were President Dave Miller; Vice President Laura Levy; Secretary/Treasurer Michelle Heminger; Editor of the "Winged Horse", Laverne Mah; and Kennete Yoshimura in Publicity.

Spanish, German clubs had their fun

This time the Spanish Club had an active year highlighted by many planned events and a number of fundraisers.

Under the guidance of advisor Mrs. Vicki Wright, and officers Marlys Bergstrom, President; Kennete Yoshimura, Vice President; Marcelle Knobloch, Secretary; and Gina Garcia, Treasurer.

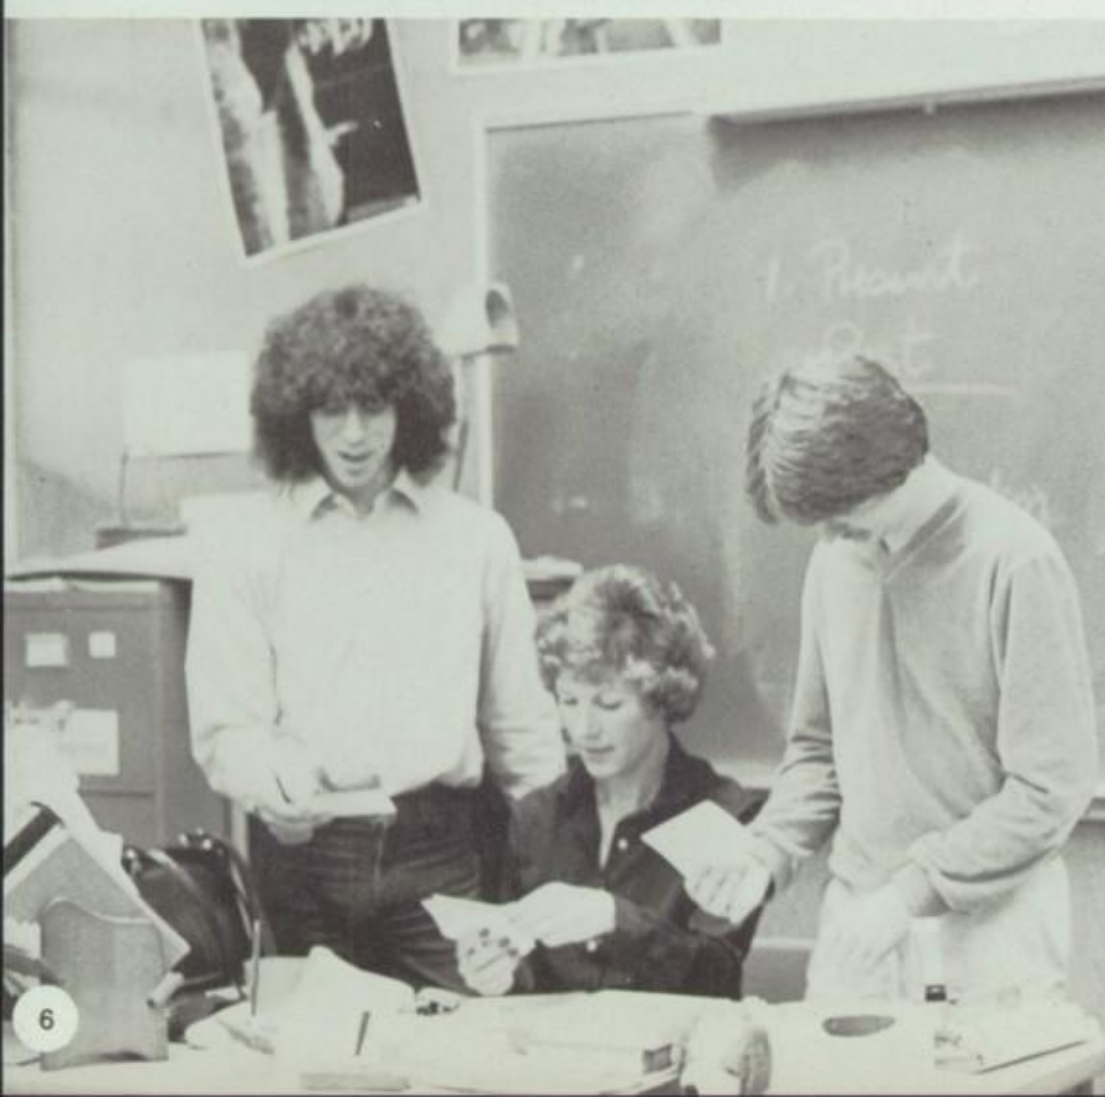

Members of Spanish Club worked hard selling candy, Sees' suckers, and having bake sales; as a result, the club became one of the richest clubs on campus.

With this new found financial freedom the club was able to schedule many more activities such as a dinner at Porfis' mexican restaunt, ice skating, and an eventual trip to Marriotts' Great America.

Lodi Highs' German club also had an active year. With Mrs DeBerny as advisor, Henry Freeman, President; Jack Lipelt, Vice-President; Julie Wagers, Secretary; and Tim Elston, treasurer.

Skiing, candy sales, and fundraisers helped provide the club and its members with a fun-filled year.

Speech team did well in Berkeley, Fullerton debates

The 1982 Speech team proved to be very successful this year, competing in league tournaments and invitational at Berkeley and Fullerton.

Team president Carolyn Goin commented, "This year has been the most successful year for the team and for myself, in the last three years that I have competed. It's nice to be on a winning team in your senior year."

The team of Goin and Carole Schliecher had a record of 13-2 as a debate team, and a number of members had a good chance of competing at state level.

1) Sherry Roberts, Julia Liesek, and Rachael Roberts laugh at their mistakes after a speech exercise. 2) instructor Tom Montgomery gives the class some pointers on technique. 3) Jeff Zahorowski and Mike Webb compare speech topics. 4) Team members displayed their trophies last Fall. 5) Robert Bybee and Jay McGowan search through the card files.

VICA led students toward a technical job opportunity

Lodi High School's Vocational Instructional Clubs of America (VICA) chapter had a very exciting and busy year, giving the members ample opportunity to display and sharpen their wide variety of skills.

Club advisor Ted Heinrich devoted lots of time and energy organizing and encouraging the VICA students. "Mr. Heinrich is a great teacher," said member Tod Howard. "He's done a great deal in organizing VICA and preparing us for the contest."

This year the outstanding members were Joe Quesada for architectural drafting, and Tod Howard for the alternate in that field. Jody Barnes was also noted for metal shop work.

Uplings & Health Careers clubs see a year of activities

It has been a busy year for the Lodi High Uplings Club, which boasted several activities on the agenda. An "Unhalloween party" was promoted by them, featuring the band, "Face to Face." Uplings also collected toys for needy children during the pre-Christmas season, and entered a float in the Homecoming Parade.

Uplings is a service club, organized around a common but non-denominational interest in the belief in God. Their primary intent is service to students and community, and the emphasis is upon helping others.

This year the club officers were Laurie Adams as president and Laura Levy as vice-president. Mrs. Dolores Levy was the faculty advisor.

This year the Health Careers Club was a cooperation school and hospital organization which promoted interest in health-related areas. The organization met once monthly throughout the year. Members did volunteer work at the hospital, and receive a service pin at the end of the year. The Health Career club is aimed at promoting job decisions toward the medical profession.

Every year the club participates in the Homecoming Parade, usually with a float entry. Additionally, they organize field trips to medical facilities. The club also holds fundraisers to defray the costs involved in transport for the trips.

The club officers for 1981-82 were president Karen Leal, vice-president Michelle Boggiano, secretary Margarita Jaime, and treasurer Carol McLung.

1) Uplung Club members were Laura Levy, Laurie Adams, and advisor Mrs. Levy. 2) Uplings entry in the homecoming parade. 3) Health Careers club shows their spirit during homecoming week. 4) health Careers Club members were (front) Andrea Stevens and Kim Just (back) Advisor Mrs. Hansen, Michelle Boggiano, Debbie Ridling, Sherri Gambetti, and Karen Leal.

Lodi's Key Club reactivates interest

"We kicked off the year to interest people with a pizza party that the club paid for, and since then we've been working very hard," said Mark Robinson, president of LHS Key Club.

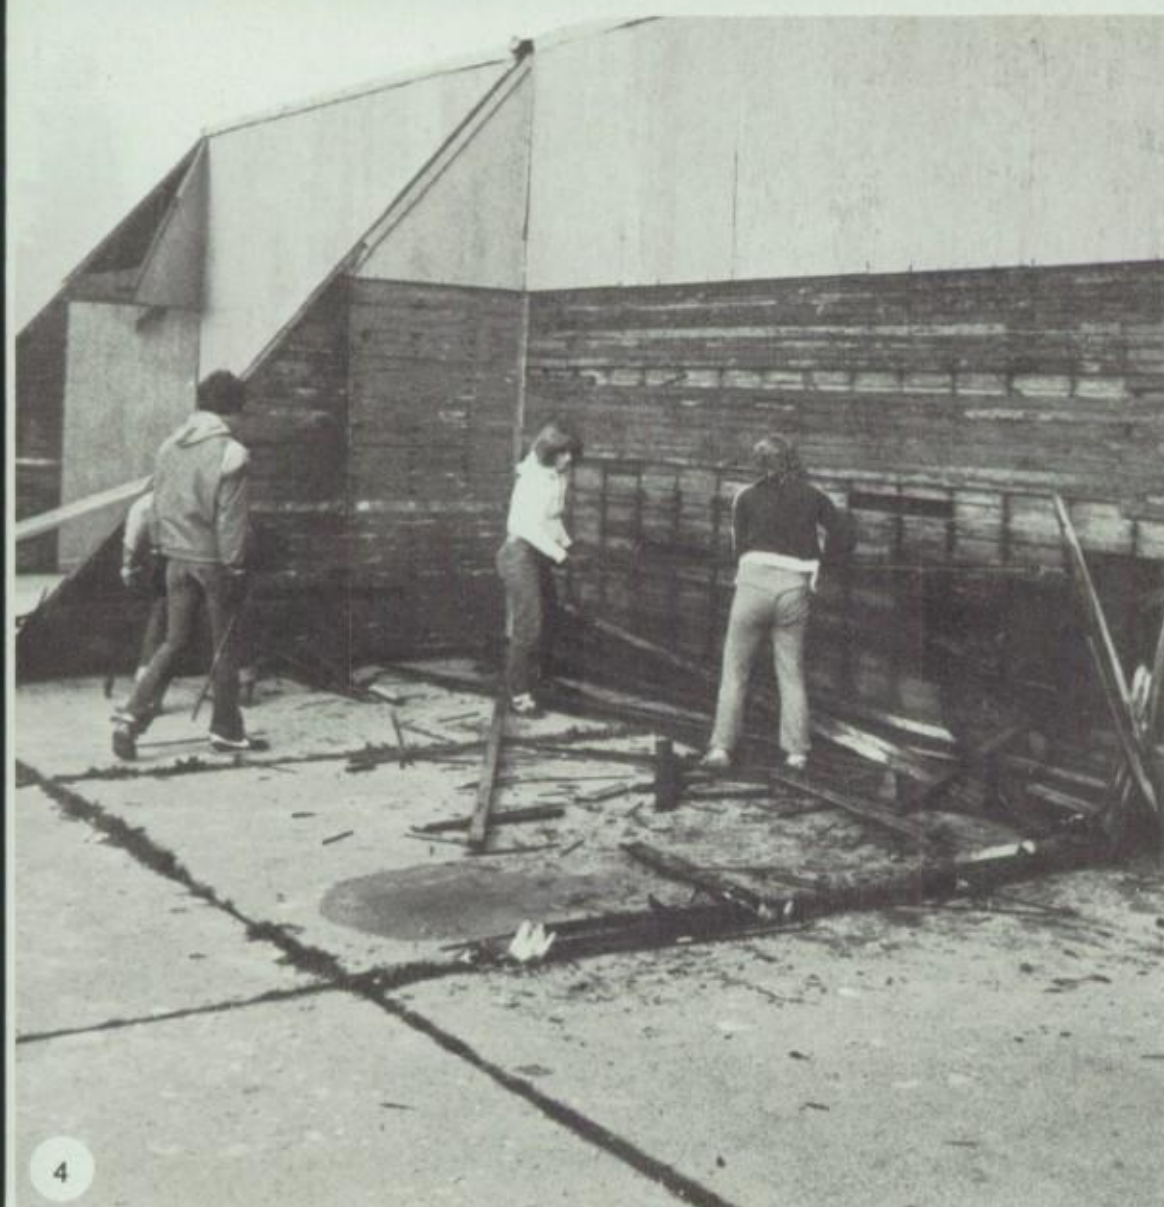

Once popular on the Lodi campus, the club was restarted this year with the help of the sponsoring local organization, the Kiwanis. A hefty turnout of 45 members seems to indicate a strong future for the Key Club.

Organized around the concept of community help and public service, the club has been working with a project for the San Joaquin County Department of Aging. Members worked with senior citizens who are handicapped or immobilized. Club members make contact with the elderly patients, taking interviews and gathering information, bringing some outside contact into their lives. "The elderly people really appreciate the contact the members give them," said Robinson.

Key clubbers also worked through the Lodi Community Center, doing projects like dismantling part of the old Tokay campus for disposal.

Officers for this year's Key Club were led by Robinson and vice-president Patti Kim, and included secretary Carole Schliecher and treasurer Lisa Forrest.

1) Key Club members pick away at the remains of the handball courts at Old Tokay campus. 2) Key Club officers were Patti Kim, Stacey Markel, Lisa Forrest, and Sarah Gillespie. 3) Members of the Key Club this year were (front) Nitsa Lewis, Stacey Markel, Sarah Gillespie, Shirley Smith, Patty Marin, Karen McWilliams, Doran Barnes (middle) Denise Swanson, Lisa Garvey, Carole Schleicher, Heidi Liebelt, Lori Stack, Jeanette Stanmeyer, Lisa Forrest (back) Doug Easter, Kathy Locke, Robert Cima, Todd Motoyama, Matt Surber, Kevin Jones, and Patti Kim. 4) The abandoned handball courts at old Tokay campus were torn down as a public service project.

World events are violent, confused

The school year 1981-82 saw news headlines covering more world conflicts. Most frequently in the news was the progress of the Workers' Solidarity Movement in Poland. Communist leaders feared the reoccurrence in Poland of possible anti-soviet uprisings like the ones suffered by Hungary and Czechoslovakia in earlier years. The threatening military presence of soviet forces and the imposition of martial law in Poland caused worldwide controversy and tension.

Terrorism continued to be one of the fads of the decade. Internal religious factions inside Egypt sponsored a terrorist assassination of that country's President, Anwar Sadat, in the autumn of the year. Sadat was considered to be a peaceful influence in the volatile Middle East, and had been called a valuable ally by the U.S. government.

Also in the Middle East, Israel made a surprise move to annex the Golan Heights area separating Israel from its' Islamic neighbors. The Heights had formerly been used as a military stepping-stone during invasions of Israel by Arab countries. The move was denounced by the OPEC nations, and even the USA imposed limited sanctions against the Israeli takeover.

Red Brigade terrorists kidnapped an American general attached to NATO forces in Italy, and thus precipitated an intense, 48-day manhunt in that nation. The general was eventually freed unharmed by U.S. and Italian anti-terrorist forces in January.

South Africa caused controversy by sending military expeditions into neighboring countries to search out and destroy "terrorist bases" accused of harboring guerilla armies threatening the South African borders. While South Africa claimed a success, worldwide opinion seemed to indicate inconclusive results.

Western countries continued to watch with interest as rebel forces in Afghanistan continued to wage a guerilla war of resistance in this third year of Russian occupation of that country. The Afghan freedom fighters are not defeated by any means, and even Moscow admitted that soviet forces had encountered far greater problems than they had anticipated. The USSR was roundly condemned for the use of chemical warfare and anti-civilian bombings.

On a happier note, world leaders met a giant conference on world poverty and hunger in Cancun, Mexico. While the problems were too vast to solve quickly, at least a dozen countries began initiating long-range programs to stabilize economic and agricultural production, and to address the more pressing needs of afflicted areas.

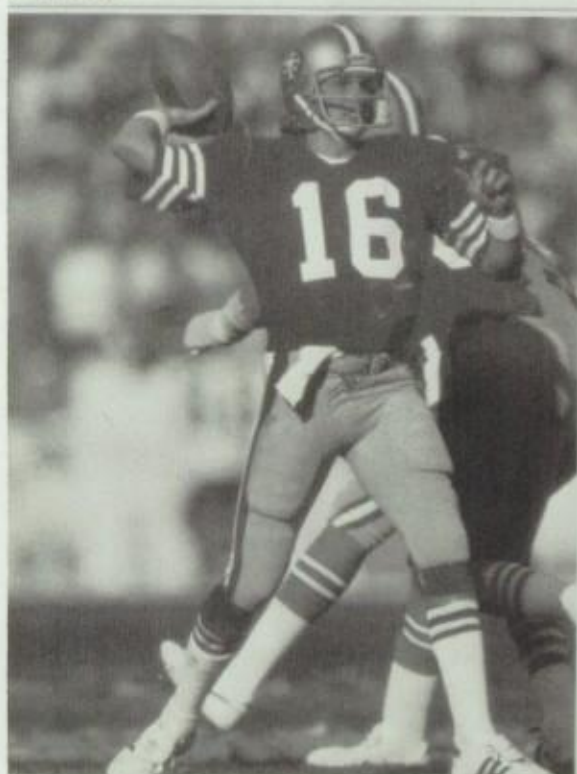

In perhaps the most highly-publicized wedding in history, England's successor to the throne, Prince Charles, wed a 19-year-old member of the British nobility, Lady Diana Spencer. The summer nuptials were viewed by approximately one billion television viewers enjoying live satellite coverage.

The still-experimental space shuttle program flew again in the end of summer and while the mission was shortened due to technical problems, enough testing and evaluation was accomplished to gain the mission a successful status.

National events

This year was one of mixed blessings for the national scene. While the new administration of President Ronald Reagan led the nation off to a hopeful start, some the unfulfilled campaign promises soon proved to be an embarrassment for the successful actor-turned-politician. Unemployment soared to a new national high of nearly 9.5 percent, and inflation kept steadily higher. President Reagan gained some allies within the business community for proposed tax and import reductions favoring U.S. corporations, but many of the elderly voters withdrew their support of Reagan after his failure to cancel his attack on aid and benefit programs which the aged and disabled had relied on.

The forbidding interest rates offered by traditional banking sources created a slowdown in spending, forcing many industries to cut back production and manpower. Hardest hit were the national construction and automobile industries, where massive layoffs and unemployment of blue-collar workers contributed to a further reduction in spending.

Gasoline prices unexpectedly took a minor drop in mid-winter, giving a margin of relief to the beleaguered economy. Most consumers were skeptical of any long-term promise of cheaper energy costs, though.

Record low temperatures caused severe winter damages as a rash of blizzards, freezes, and torrential rains battered the western and central sections of the country. Mudslides and flooding caused major damage on the West Coast, leaving deaths and staggering costs in their wake.

Sports news

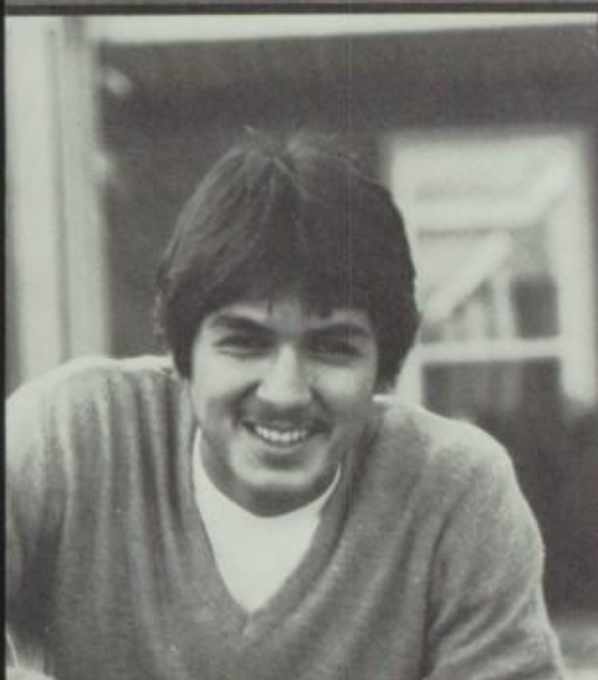

On the national sports scene, the summer was capped by the World Series of baseball victory for the Los Angeles Dodgers. After losing the first two contests to the New York Yankees, the California team swept the next four to return as world champs. Steve Yeager, Pedro Guerrero and Ron Cey provided the power for Tommy Lasorda's Dodgers turnaround triumph.

At the mid-winter mark, big news was the Superbowl victory by the San Francisco 49'ers. The Bay Area team had gone from a 6-10 previous year's record to an incredible Superbowl season with a 13-3 record. In the final, the Cincinnati Bengals bowed before the 49'ers, 26-21. It was the first-ever world championship for the famous San Francisco team.

FACULTY

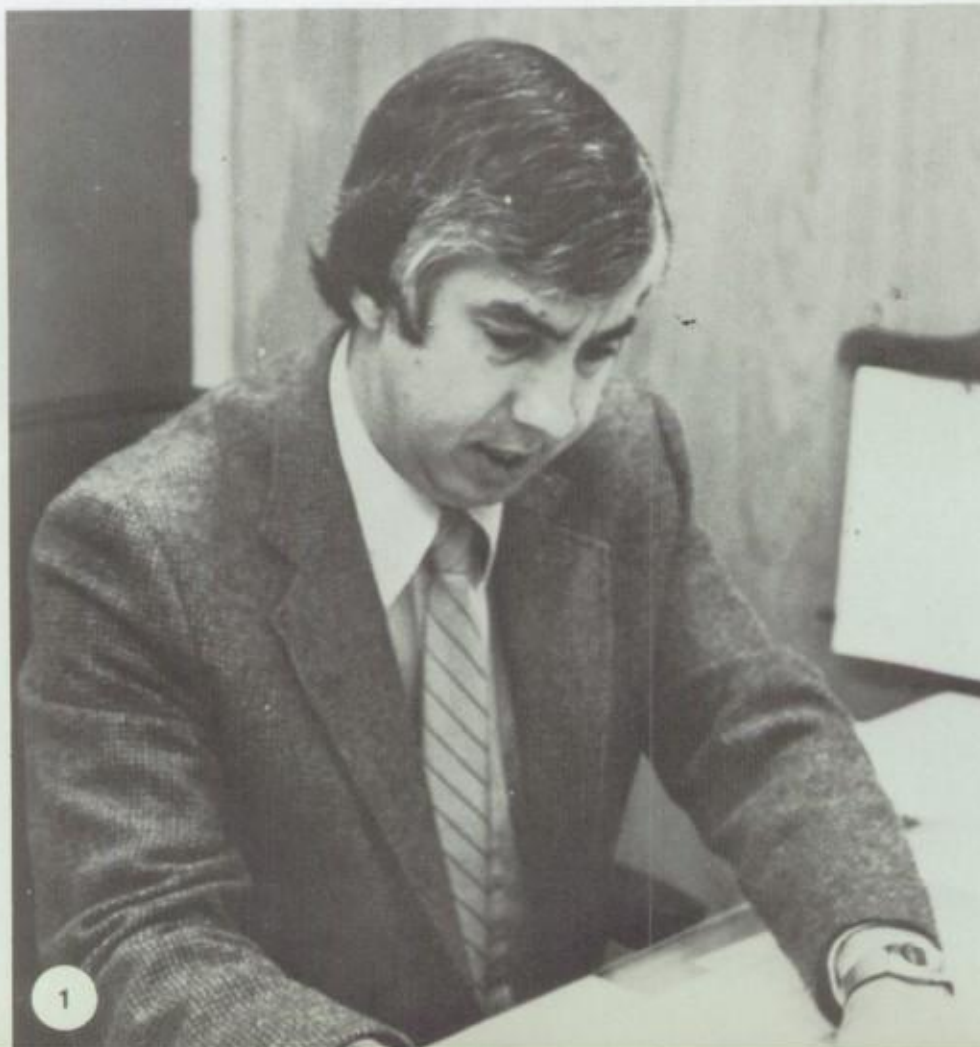

Administration

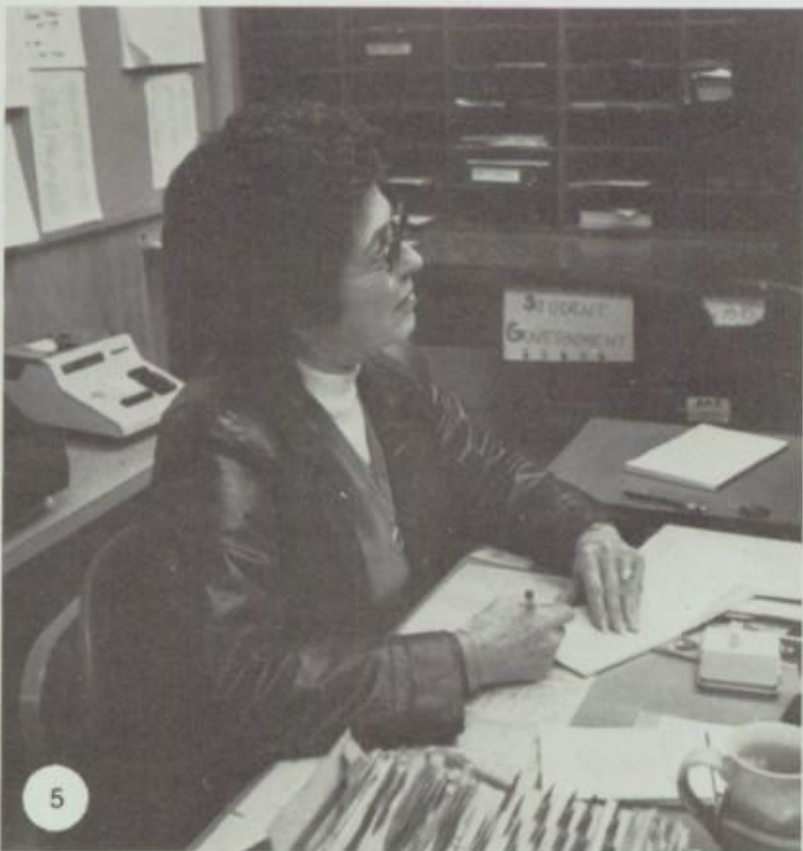

Newcomer Richard Abel was welcomed into an assistant principal's position, replacing Eugene Jackson, who accepted the principal's chair at Liberty High School in the fall. Abel was one of three assistant principals this year, sharing the duties of organizing and maintaining disciplinary and guidance procedures at LHS.

The administration department, through its component parts of clerical and attendance workers, also devised a new attendance system using a computer. The system was installed in an effort to speed up and improve the attendance procedure.

Happily, some of the personal conflicts between students which had previously taken up much of the administration's time began to diminish in 1981. Part of this was the result of the Conflict Management program, now in its second year at Lodi High School. Program Coordinator Jesse Serna led this experiment in student-controlled crisis prevention, and the quick successes were shown in the dramatic lowering in the number of students suspended for fighting, compared with the average for previous years. The administrators pointed with pride to the fact that students handled their own conflicts and arranged their own non-violent solutions.

Another concern of the administrators was the organization of the various groups formed to facilitate the state-mandated WASC evaluation, an accrediting process designed to evaluate the capabilities and weaknesses of each school in California. This is done once each six years for all public schools.

1). New assistant principal Richard Abel acquaints himself with the procedures at LHS. 2) Joanne Taddei kept things organized as secretary to the principal. 3) Struggling with the ever-present attendance problems, Josephine Jones tries to track down a truant student with a phone call to the parents. 4). Lodi High School Principal, Floyd E. "Dutch" Williams was optimistic about the new school year and it's programs.

5). Dorothy Switzenberg supervised the mailroom-duplicating center for the year. 6). Vice-principal Elvira Melby ponders the difficulties of scheduling some of the year's activities. 7). Assistant principal Beverly Lacy catches a brief quiet moment to chat with a visitor on campus. 8). At a home football game, assistant principal Abe Gonzales adjusts an amplifier for the drill team's performance.

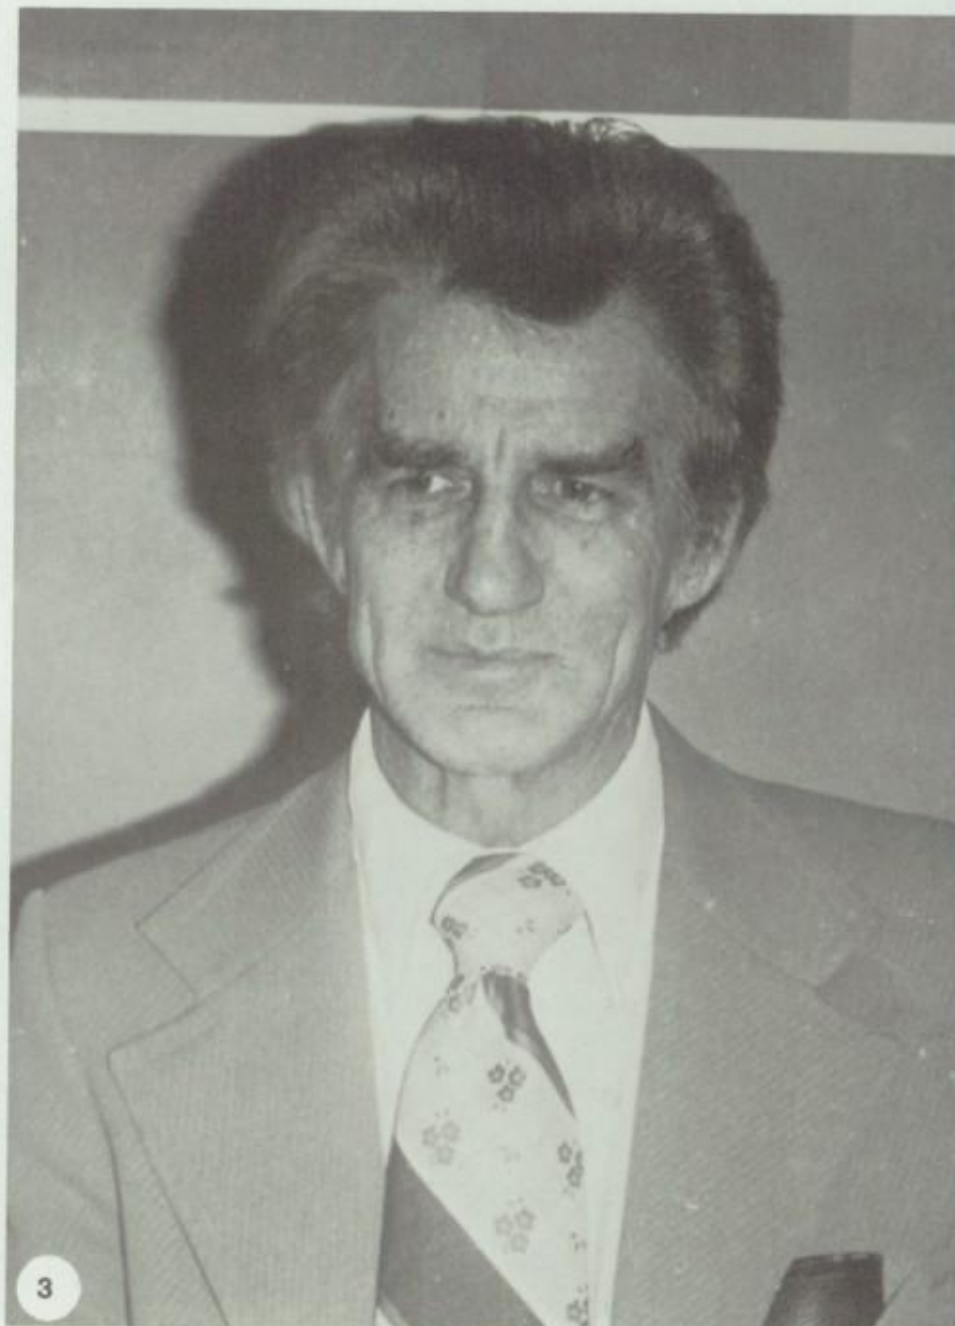

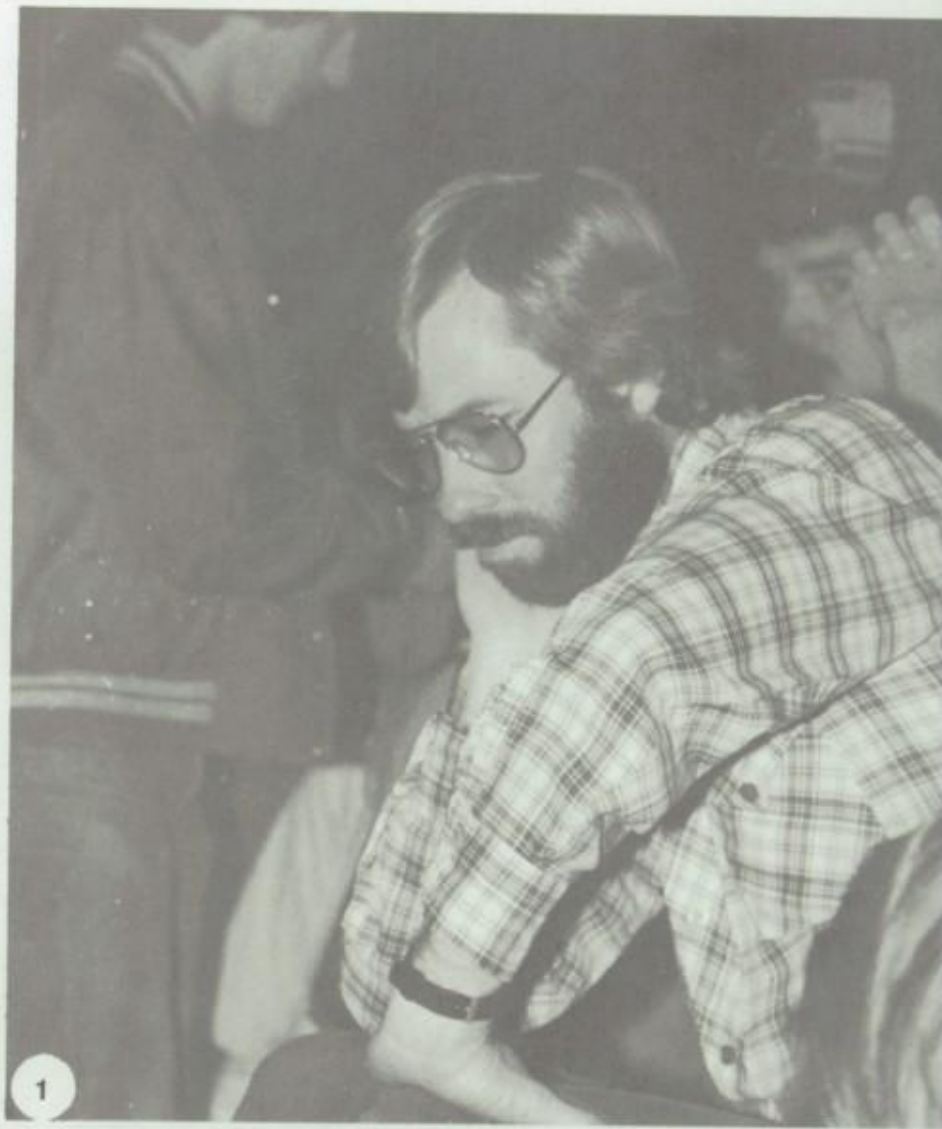

Business classes stressed skill, and a boost to futures

The Business department had an active year, giving an increasing number of students a chance to learn to improve the skills they will need in the world of business and commerce.

Accounting, typing, shorthand, and business English were among the classes taught during the 81-82 school year. The courses were designed to make competent business workers out of students and motivate them toward goals and successes.

Tests were administered to the students to make sure they had mastered each skill before moving on to the next area.

The department also had a career decision-making class which helped underclassmen to select courses and career choices which they might find attractive. The new course, taught by Karen Woznick, was in its second year and was quite popular with students.

1) Gary Knackstedt of the business department helps supervise a rally in the gym. 2) Mrs. Gladys Watson takes attendance. 3) Mr. Ray can smile at a student's prank...this time. 4) Mr. Bob Cole reviews his assignments. 5) Like all of the LHS teachers, Mrs. Churchill spends some time waiting for her turn at the ditto machine. 6) Mrs. Rushing seems absorbed by her students' actions.

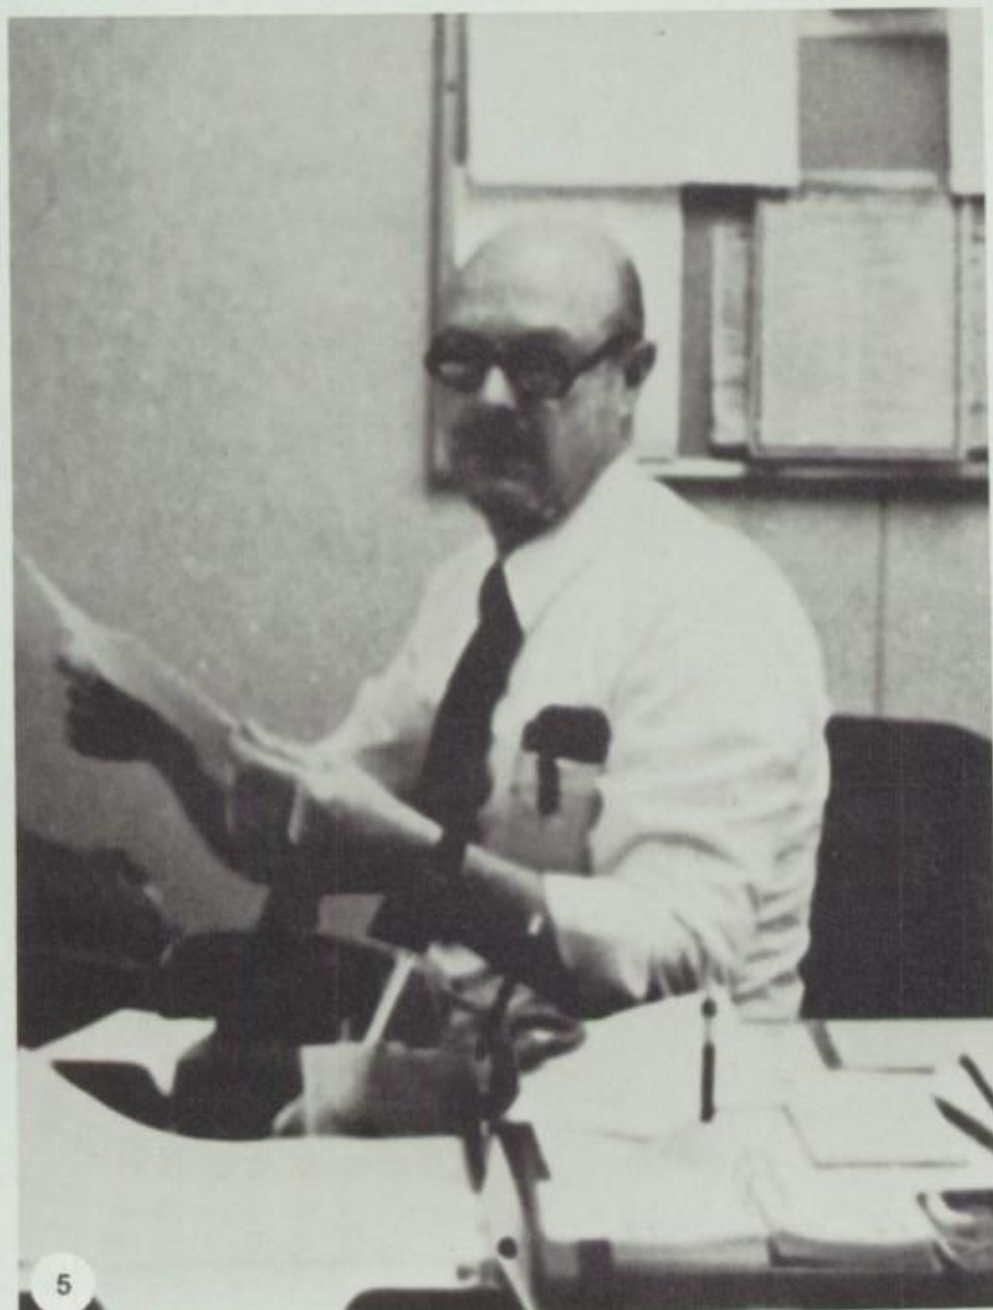

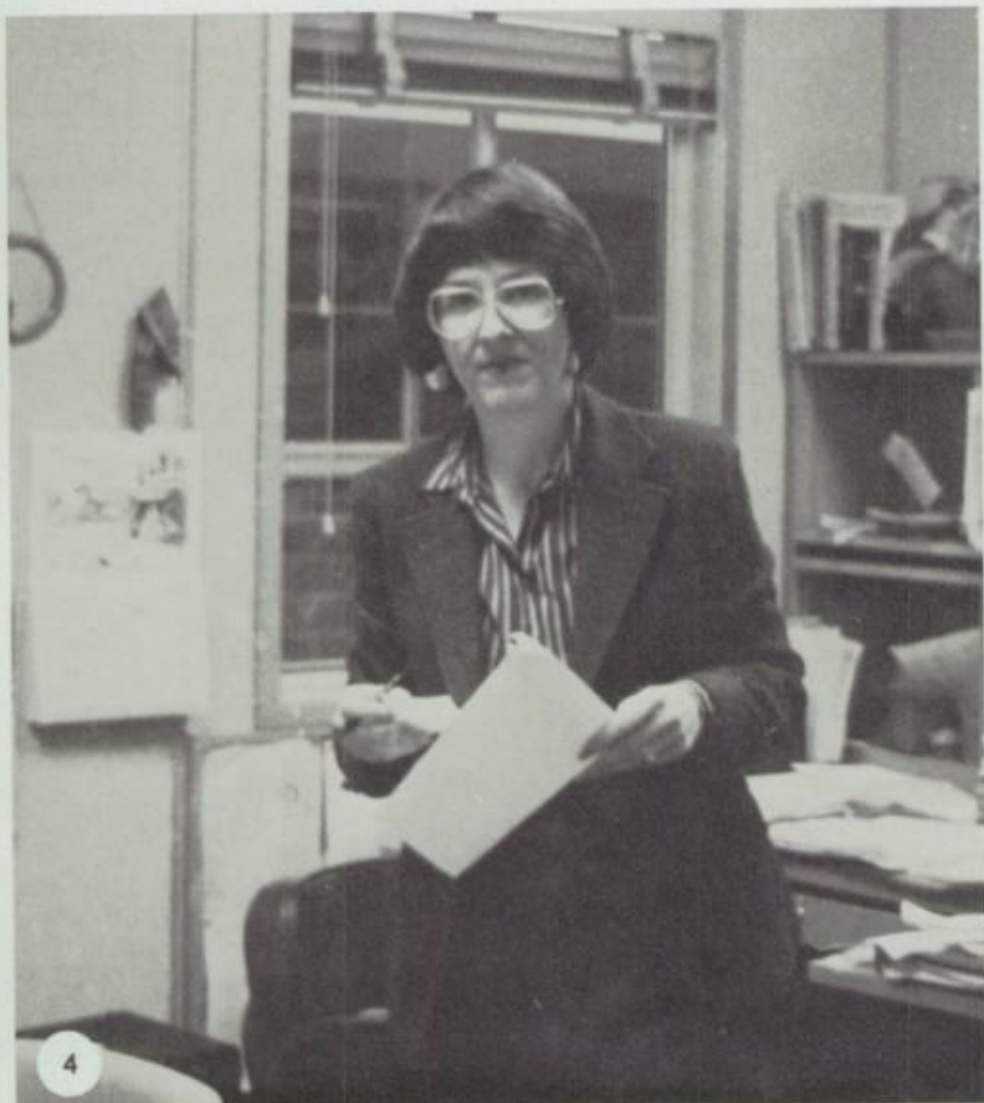

Counseling group tried new program

As more and more students joined the LHS student body, the counseling department seemed increasingly overworked and understaffed. This year the counselors were forced to deal with even more students, which often meant they could not deal with individual students as effectively as they would have liked to.

SAM (Student Advisement Meetings) were instituted to help lessen the counselors' burden by dealing with graduation, class program scheduling, and helping students with career choices. SAM was to remove some of the routine minor work and give the counselors more time to work with problem counseling. It would also give more time to students whose needs had lower priority than some of the more urgent counseling duties.

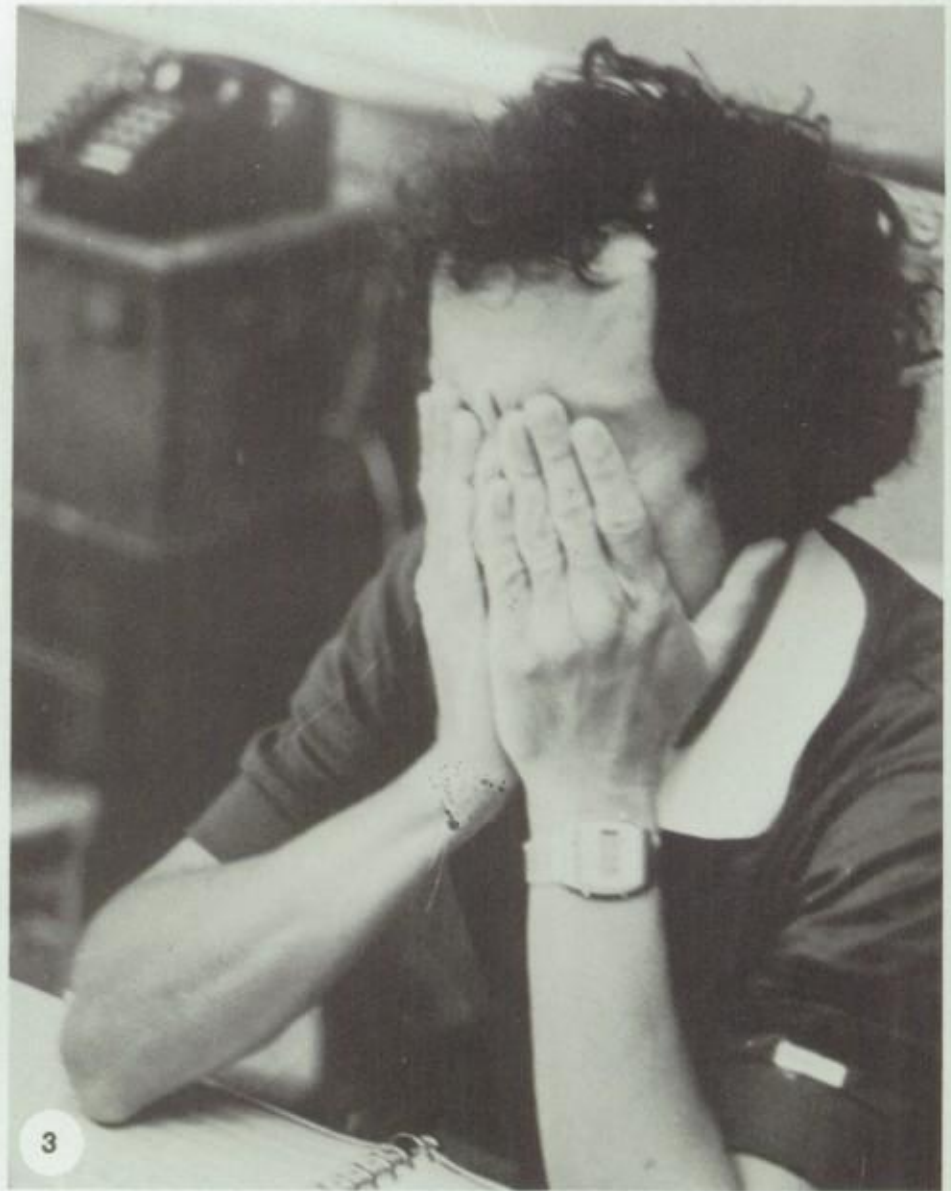

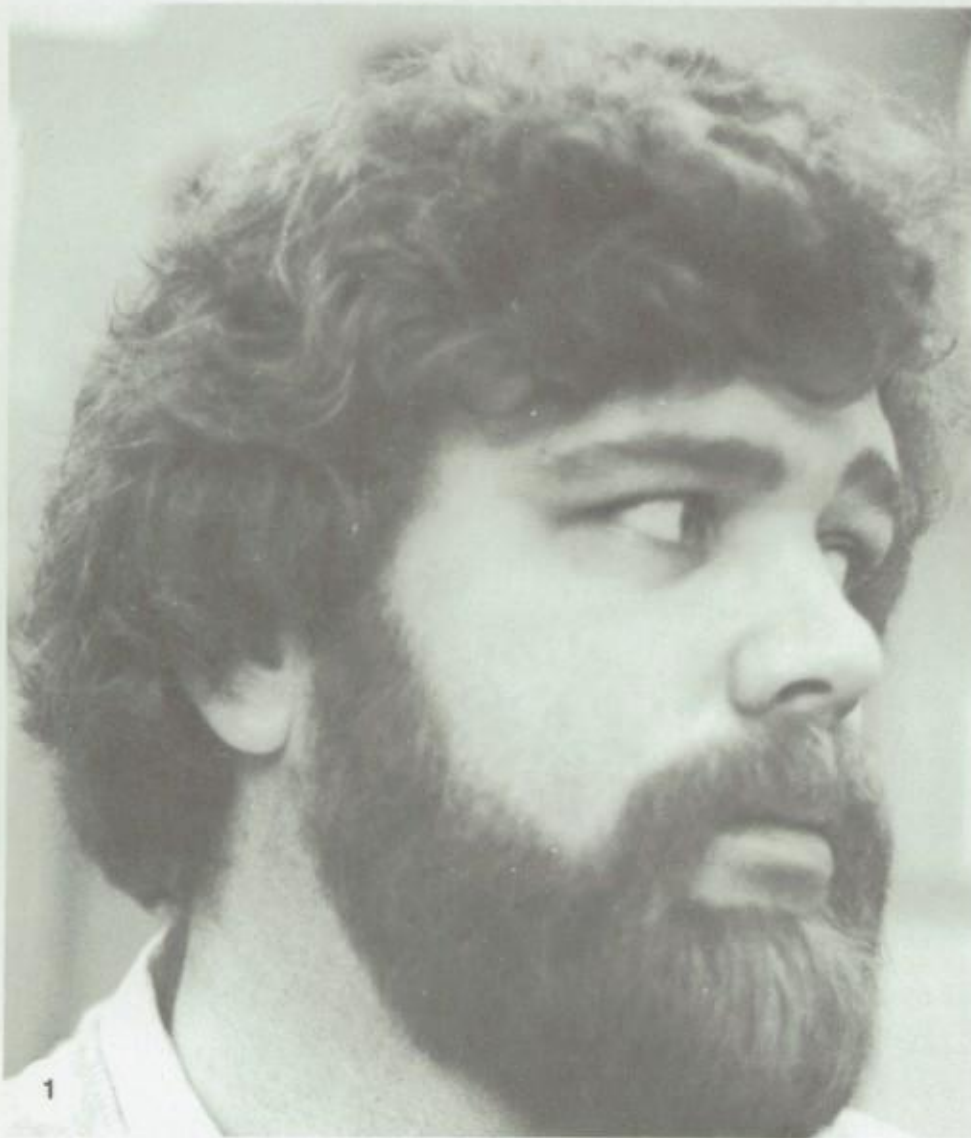

SAM was not designed to replace counselors, however, and the counseling center retained the bulk of the work formerly done there. It was a place of "perpetual motion" as counselors and students kept a constant flow going, dealing with the many issues and questions at hand.

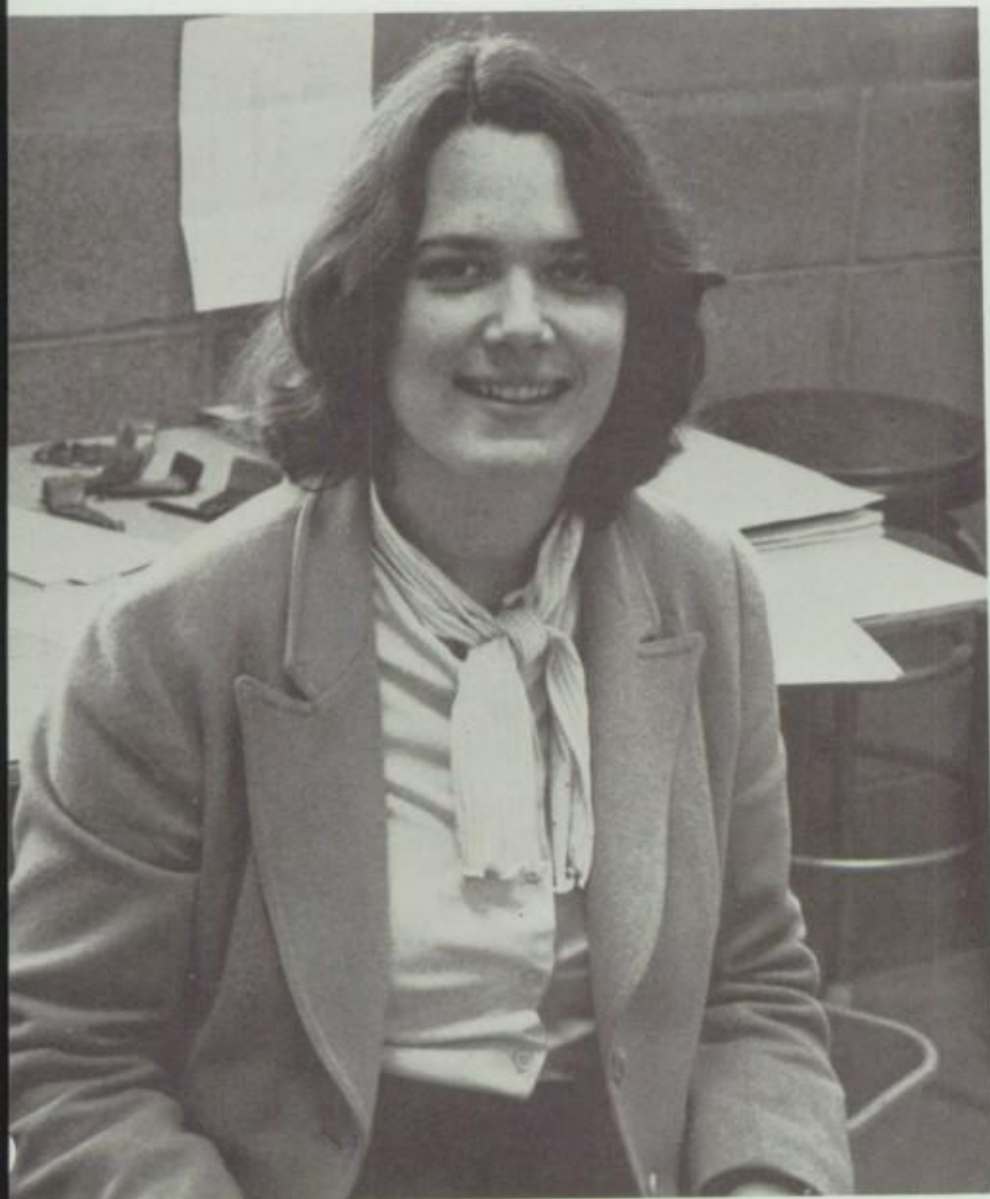

1) Mrs. Hughes checks the files for one of her 460 students. 2) Mr. Burns and Mrs. Morgan take a rare break from the daily duties of counseling. 3) Mrs. Currie checks her appointment book. 4) One of the veteran staff members in counseling is Mrs. Ives. 5) Wendell Davis enjoyed his second year as head of the LHS counseling department. 6) Mrs. Woznick keeps the endless paperwork flowing in the center's offices.

1) Doug Riddle has been choir director at LHS for the past five years. 2) Delores Levy goes over an assignment for the art class. 3) Steve Kirkwold rubs tired eyes at a late-night newspaper deadline. 4) Keeping attendance records is part of every teacher's duties, as Mrs. Maria Myska knows. 5) Susanne Wilbur looks over a drama book. 6) Shawn Allen gears himself up to face another day with the students. 7) Speech department projects are handled by Tom Montgomery.

Creative arts had new band director and much variety

The Creative Arts Department, headed by Tom Montgomery, provided LHS students with an outlet for their talents.

Along with art, music, band and choir, classes such as drama, speech, and journalism enabled students to take a variety of classes aside from their academics.

The drama classes met with much success in presenting three major plays, Antigone, Winnie The Pooh, and Damn Yankees.

The band and choir also had successful years. Under the new direction of Luiz Gonzalez, the band was awarded many trophies for their music and showmanship. In what has become a Lodi tradition, the choral groups continued to gain achievement awards and recognition.

The classes offered in the Creative Arts department have become some of the most popular electives available at LHS.

Language basics stressed in English

The English department had a successful year with the addition of two new instructors. Mrs. Juliet Uehling and Mr. William Goudie were placed on the staff, and helped ease the constantly-increasing class load for the department. Both teachers were experienced, having moved in from middle schools in the surrounding area.

The department kept an emphasis on the basics of English grammar and literature. The overall goal was to increase students' proficiency in communicating skills.

A variety of courses were offered, dealing with very basic subjects and introductions for non-English-speaking students, to more complex and advanced studies of specific literary forms and fields. Upper-level students were offered Rhetoric, Creative Writing, British Literature, and a host of college-prep classes.

The range of subjects and the importance of fundamental communication makes this department one of the key elements of the Lodi High curriculum.

1) Mrs. Julie Baumgartner enjoys a laugh with her class. 2) Cat Ricketts weighs an idea. 3) Giving students time and space to think, Mrs. Rhodes supervises from behind a desk. 4) Mr. MacIse explains a literary fine point. 5) A student listens as Mr. Goudie goes over the work. 6) Mr. Stevenson researches information for his presentation. 7) The day's new assignment is discussed by Mrs. Gavin. 8) A joke is good for everyone, including Mrs. Padula. 9) Mr. Thomas caught in a moment of contemplation. 10) Department chairperson Carol Beuchler has a lot on her hands. 11) Julie Uehling had her first year on the LHS staff, teaching English and supervising the cheerleaders.

1) Spanish instructor Vicki Wright plows through the mountain of homework generated by every class. 2) Language instructor Gisela DeBerry also doubles as the advisor to the German club. 3) Gus Wagonhoffer gives a concerned look to one of his students. 4) The paperwork shuffle is familiar territory to Mr. William Hahn. 5) A time-out for German teacher and soccer coach Otto Lindberger.

Language section enjoyed popularity

German, Spanish, and French are the three languages offered by the Foreign Language department, which tries to give students a basic key to understanding foreign people and cultures. This year's department program offered four years of study in German and Spanish, and three for French. Department head Otto Lindberger explained that as students approach their fourth year of a language, the emphasis changes from written work to more of a conversational and cultural basis.

With a good percentage of students enrolled in the Foreign language classes, a side benefit is that there are enough for two clubs to offer the students. Spanish and German clubs met regularly throughout the year and were among some of the most active clubs on campus.

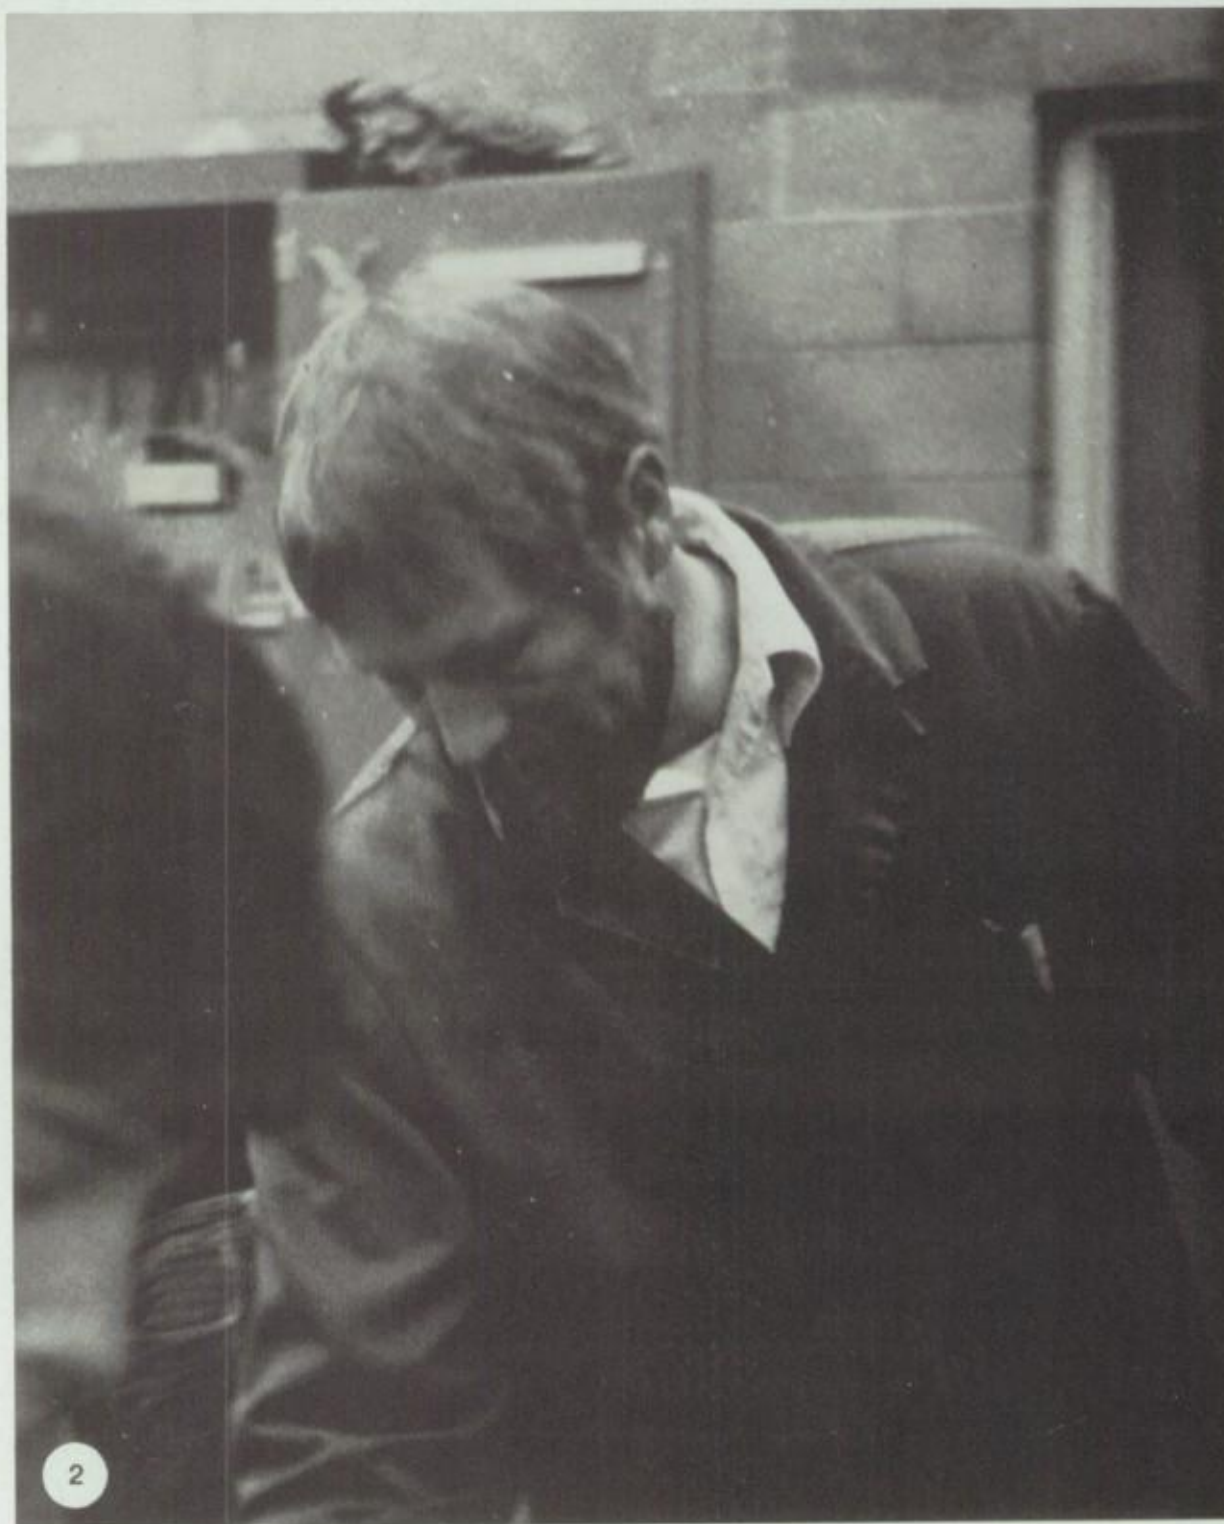

New class in math perks IA program

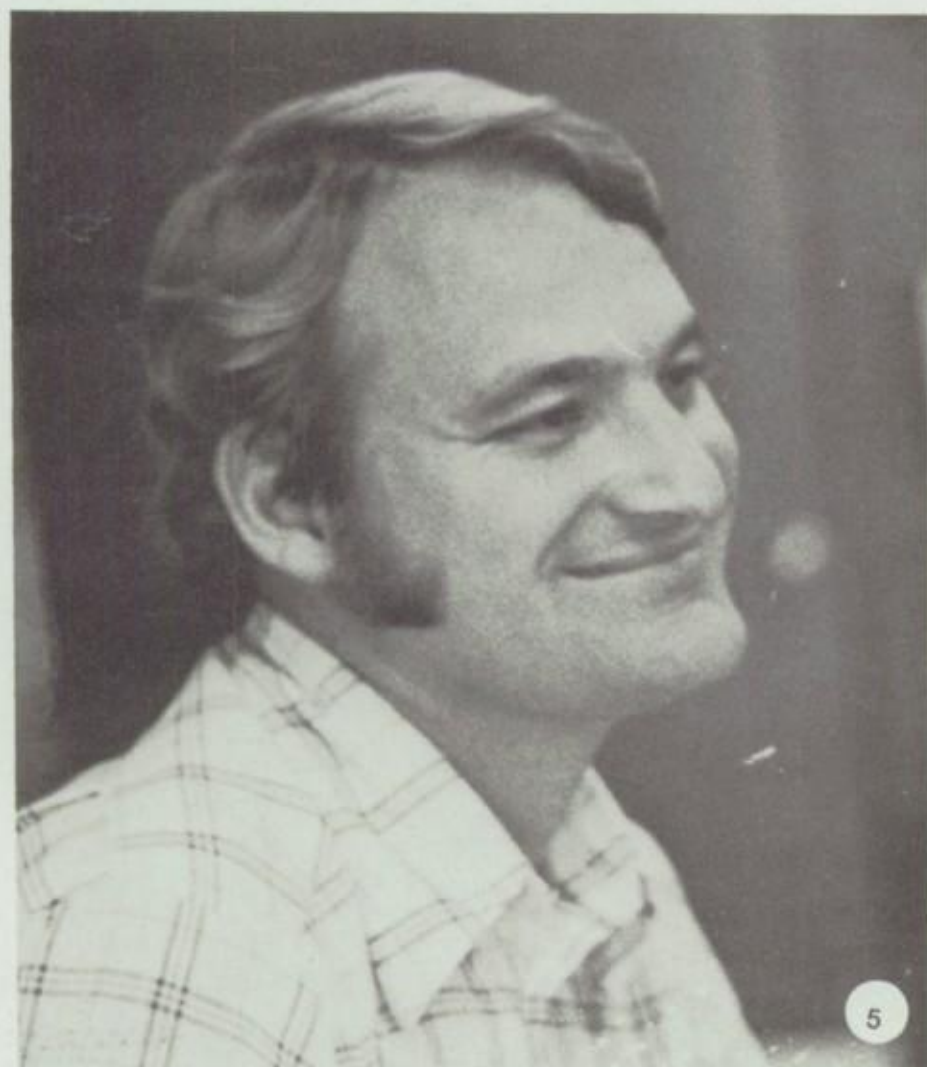

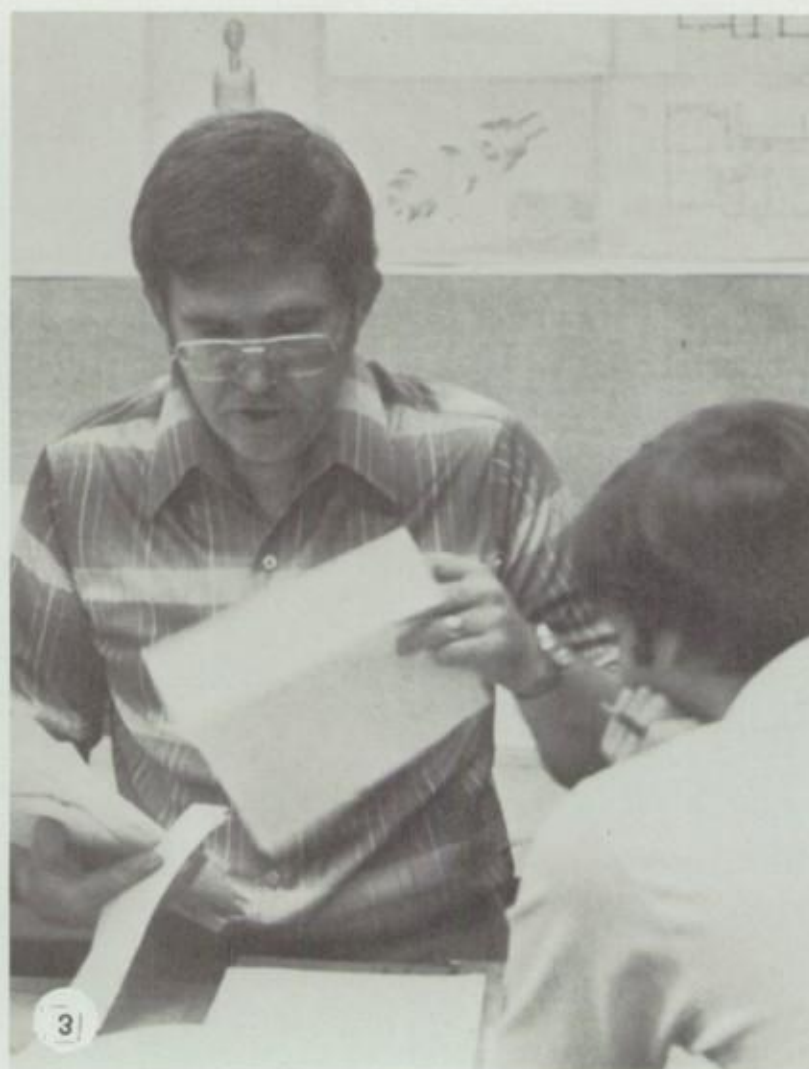

Industrial education was given a boost this year with the creation of a new Technical Math class, and the availability of more classroom space.

The new class is aimed at improving the kinds of arithmetic skills most often encountered in industrial job situations. The emphasis is on precision calculation and logical reasoning as applied to mechanical and business activities.

Instructor Ken Theilen was given additional classroom space by means of a new classroom for the Industrial Education department. This, it was hoped, would ease the cramped conditions some of the more popular classes had to suffer in the past, as well as provide a bit more free space around equipment.

Electronics continued to be a serious question in the department. Like many high schools in the state, Lodi has found it difficult to secure a qualified electronics instructor. This parallels a nationwide shortage of instructors in that field. Until one is found, electronics courses will continue to be unavailable at LHS.

1) Jerry Fish advised Key Club as well as handling industrial arts instruction. 2) Ken Thielen from the Auto Shop mugs it up for the camera. 3) Ted Heinrich looks over some drafting layouts. 4) Mr. Kjeldsen offers advice on a woodshop project. 5) Jim Westgate practices non-verbal communication with his drafting class.

1) Mrs. Garvey assists students in finding that certain book. 2) In charge of keeping the library at peak efficiency was Mrs. Avrit, our veteran librarian. 3) Renee Vaughn waits for the morning bell rush. 4) Many students helped to keep the library running smoothly. 5) Organizing the material cards was a never-ending job for Mrs. Roth. 6) "I wash my hands of this," says Mrs. Harper.

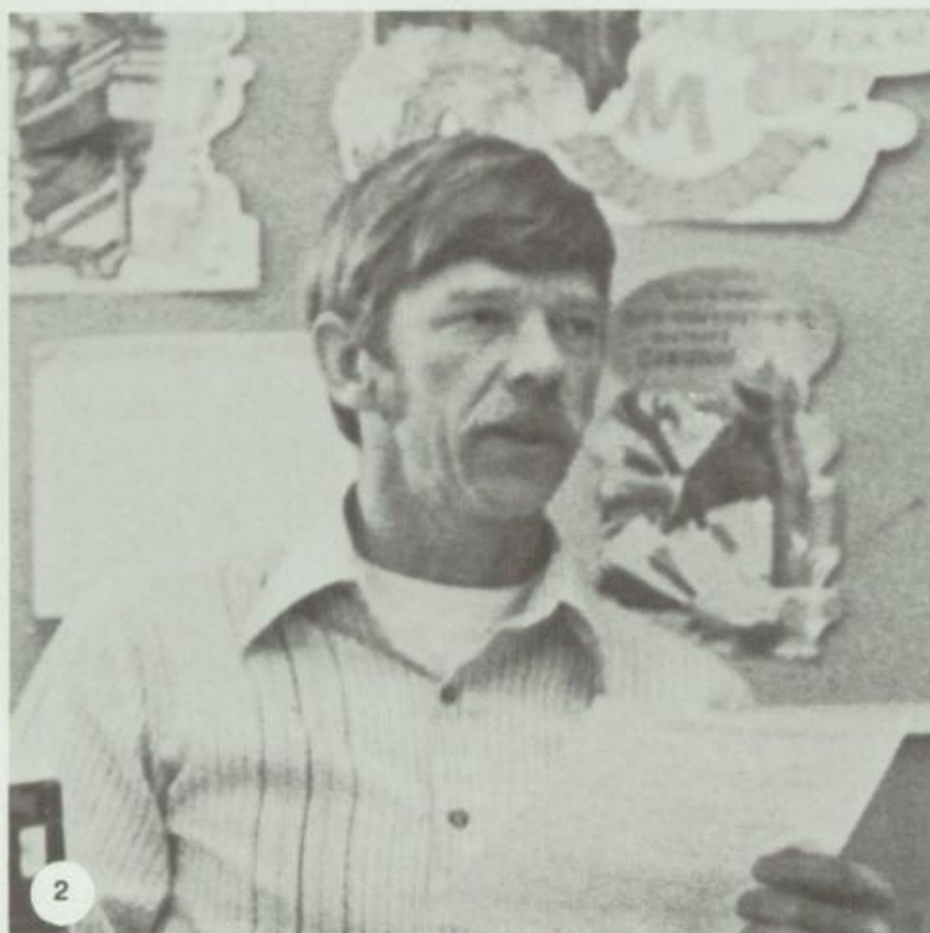

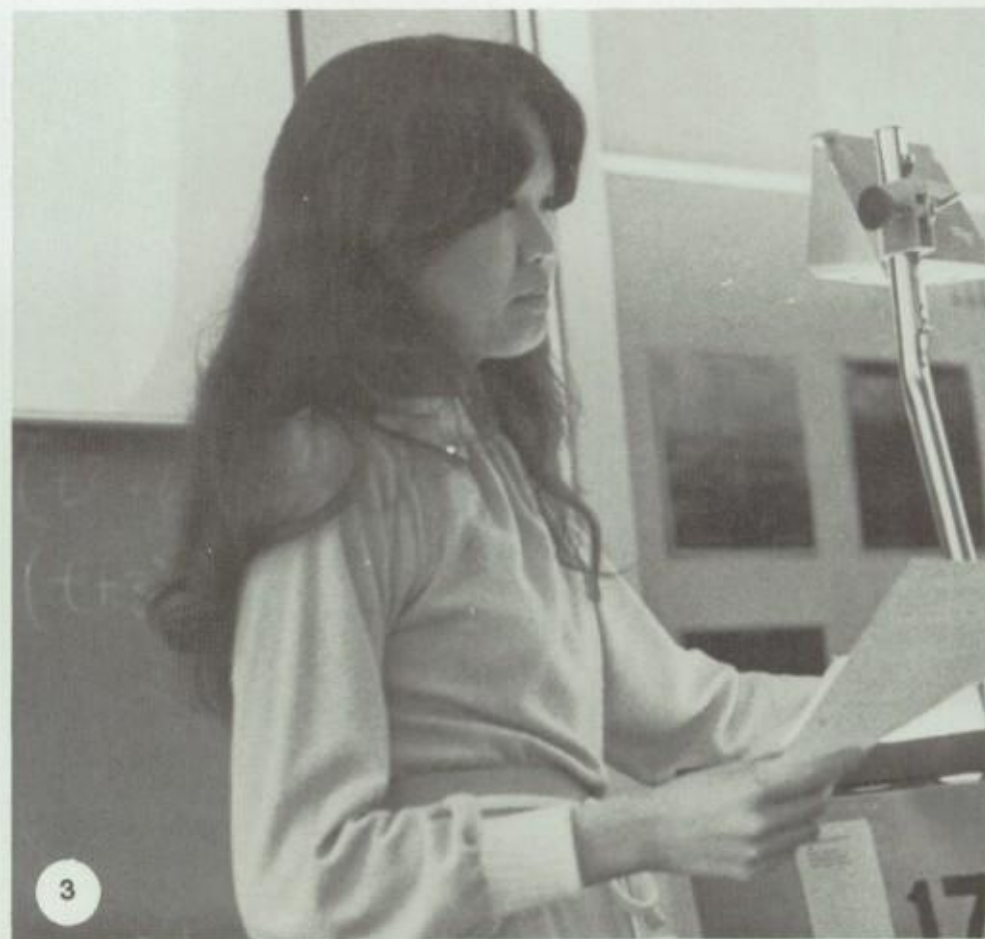

Library played key role in resources

Many students are aware of the library's vital role in keeping the flow of information working and up-to-date on the LHS campus. The facility is the largest and most effective resource pool on campus, and provides a bewildering variety of services and research possibilities.

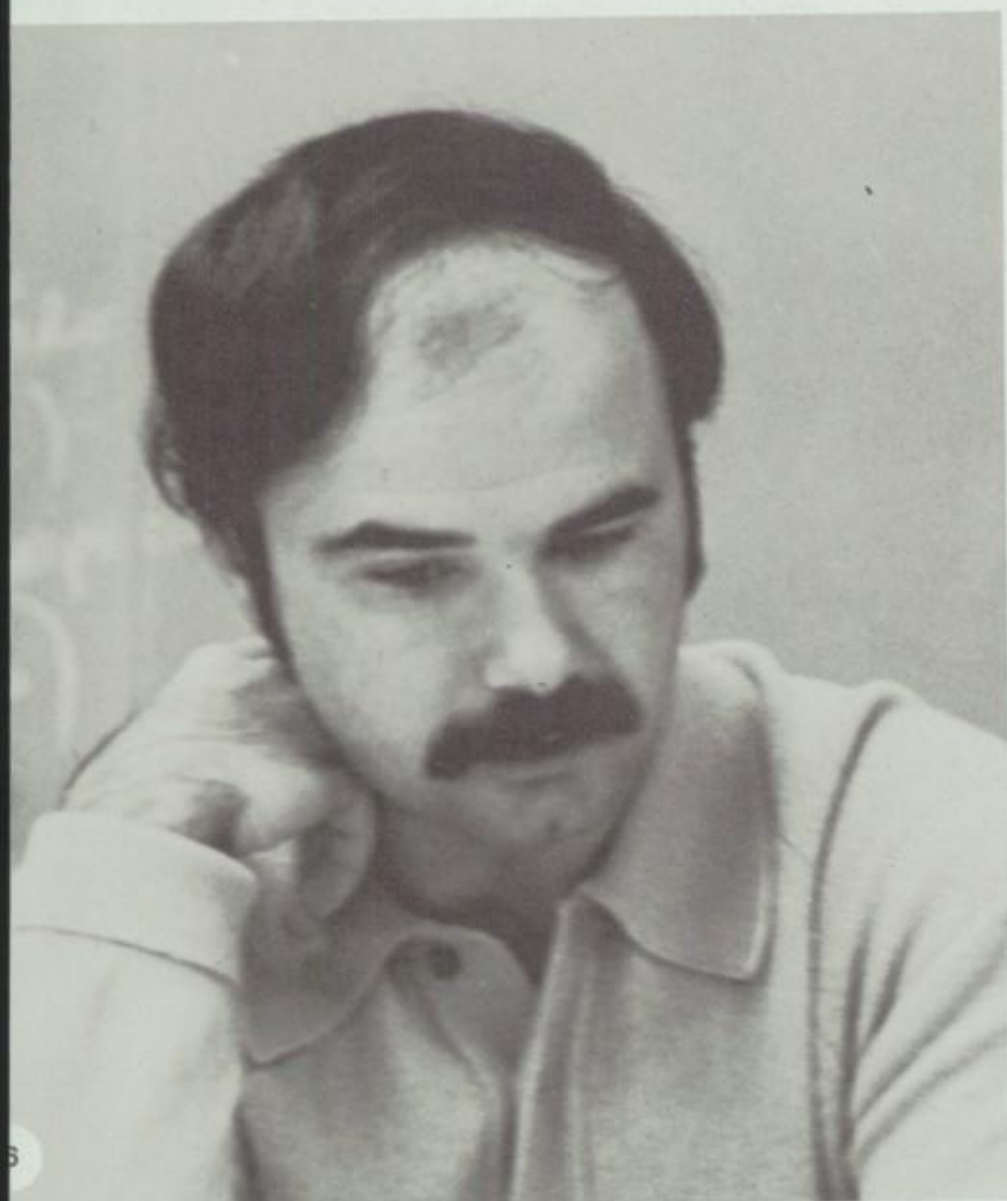

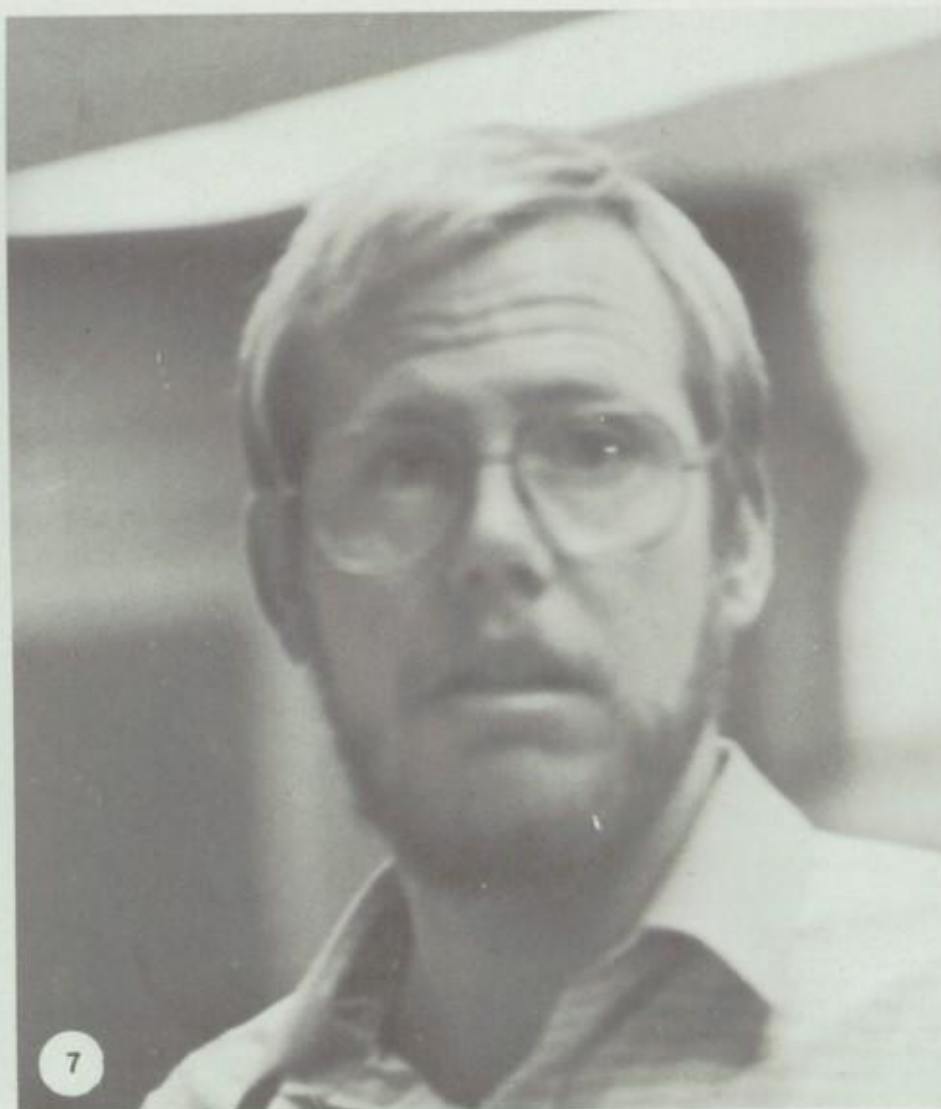

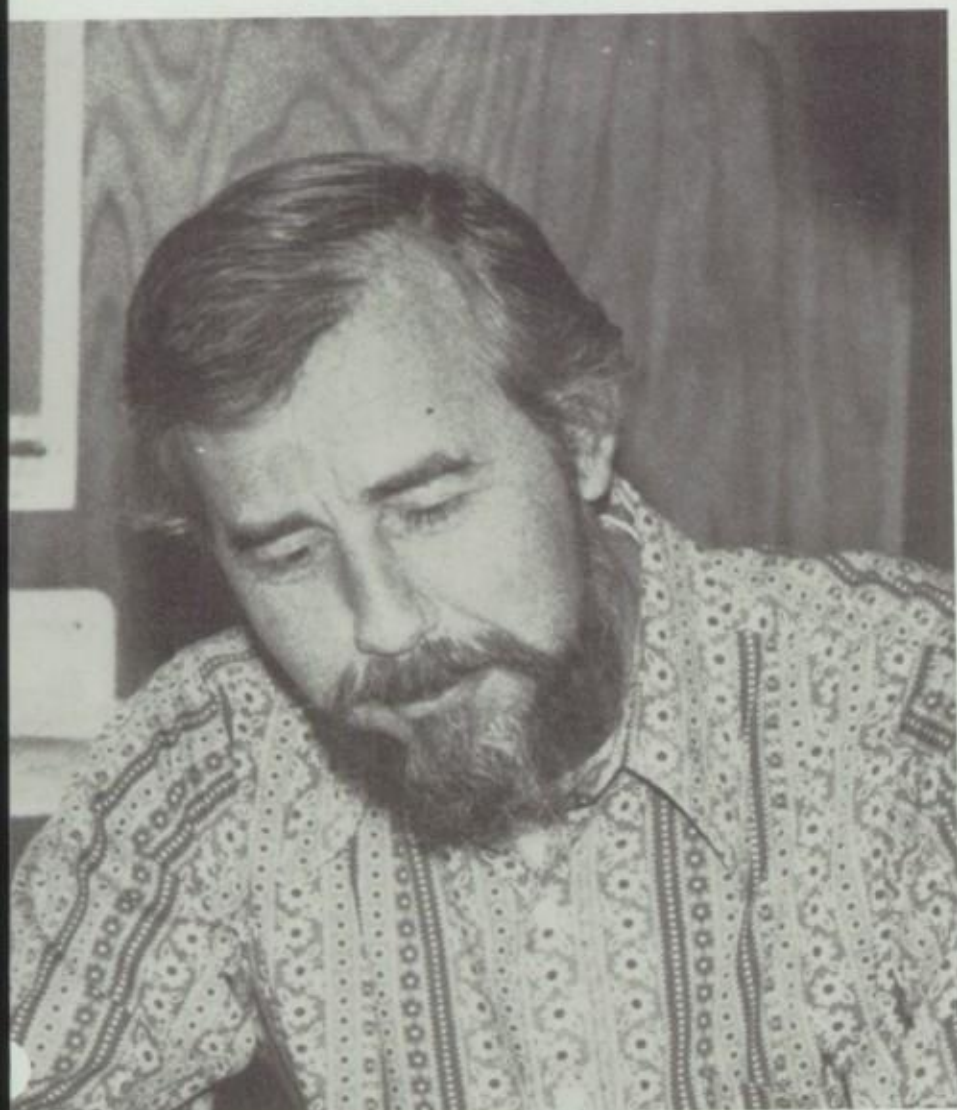

Mrs. Bernice Avrit was again head of the library services, with Mrs. Katie Garvey as her second-in-command. Both had favorable comments about the newly-installed carpeting, courtesy of last year's senior class. The facility was said to be much quieter with the extra cushioning of the carpet.

The library assistant program helped to train students in the business of updating, cataloging, and distributing all the information sources in the facility. The three-year program eventually gives students a firm basis in library science, an important career in today's information-dependant world.

1) Bob Postier also handled faculty co-curricular assignments this year. 2) Doug Naatus waltzes lightly through the daily bulletin. 3) Donella Chan explains a finer point of a difficult problem. 4) Linda Watt effortlessly stares down one of her students. 5) This year's department chairperson was Mac Goodell. 6) Not quite believing what he sees, Don Rostomily reads a homework paper. 7) Algebra classes were the domain of Rick Seely.

Variety was a key to mathematics popularity boost

The math courses available to Lodi High students provided a wide spectrum of computational concepts. These ranged from the very basics of Life Math to abstract and complex subjects like Calculus and Computer Programming.

In addition to the classroom time available, Math Study Centers were offered on Tuesday nights, with an average of 15 students seeking additional help on their homework.

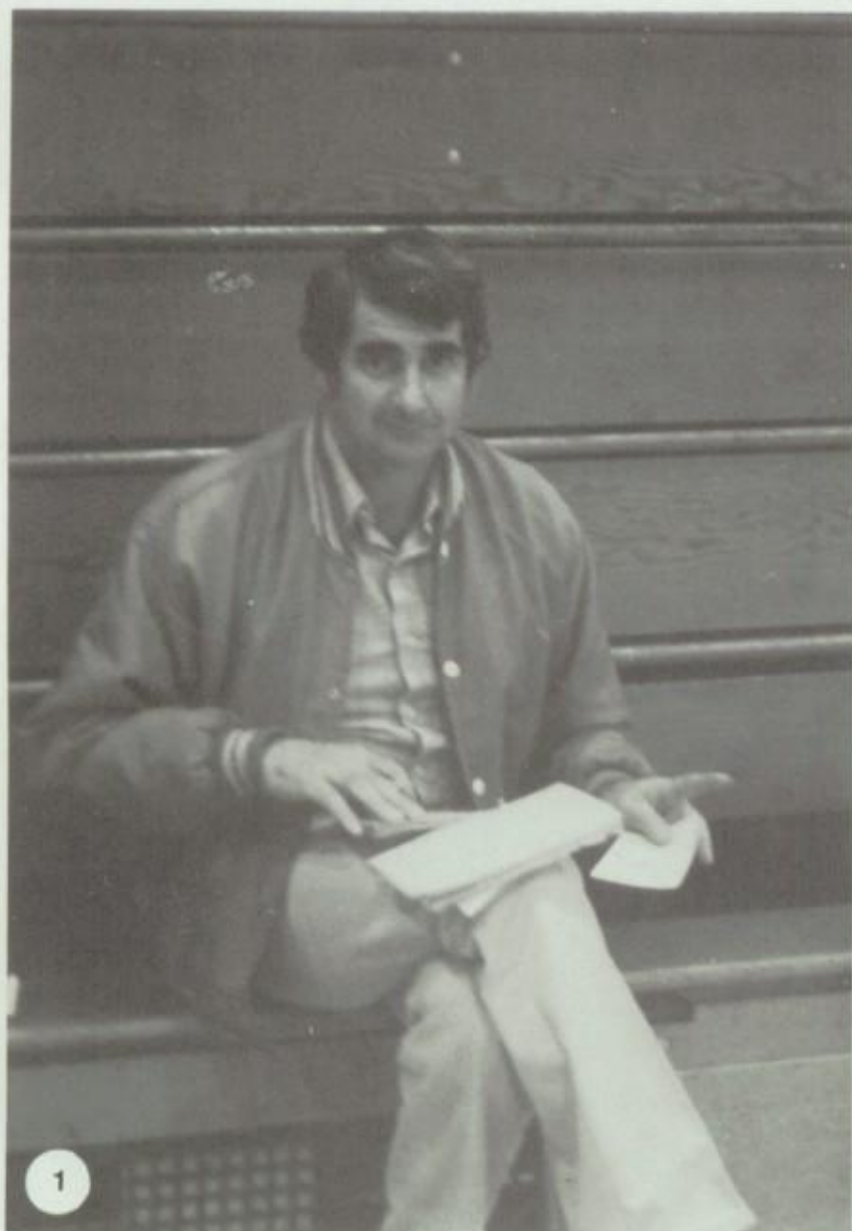

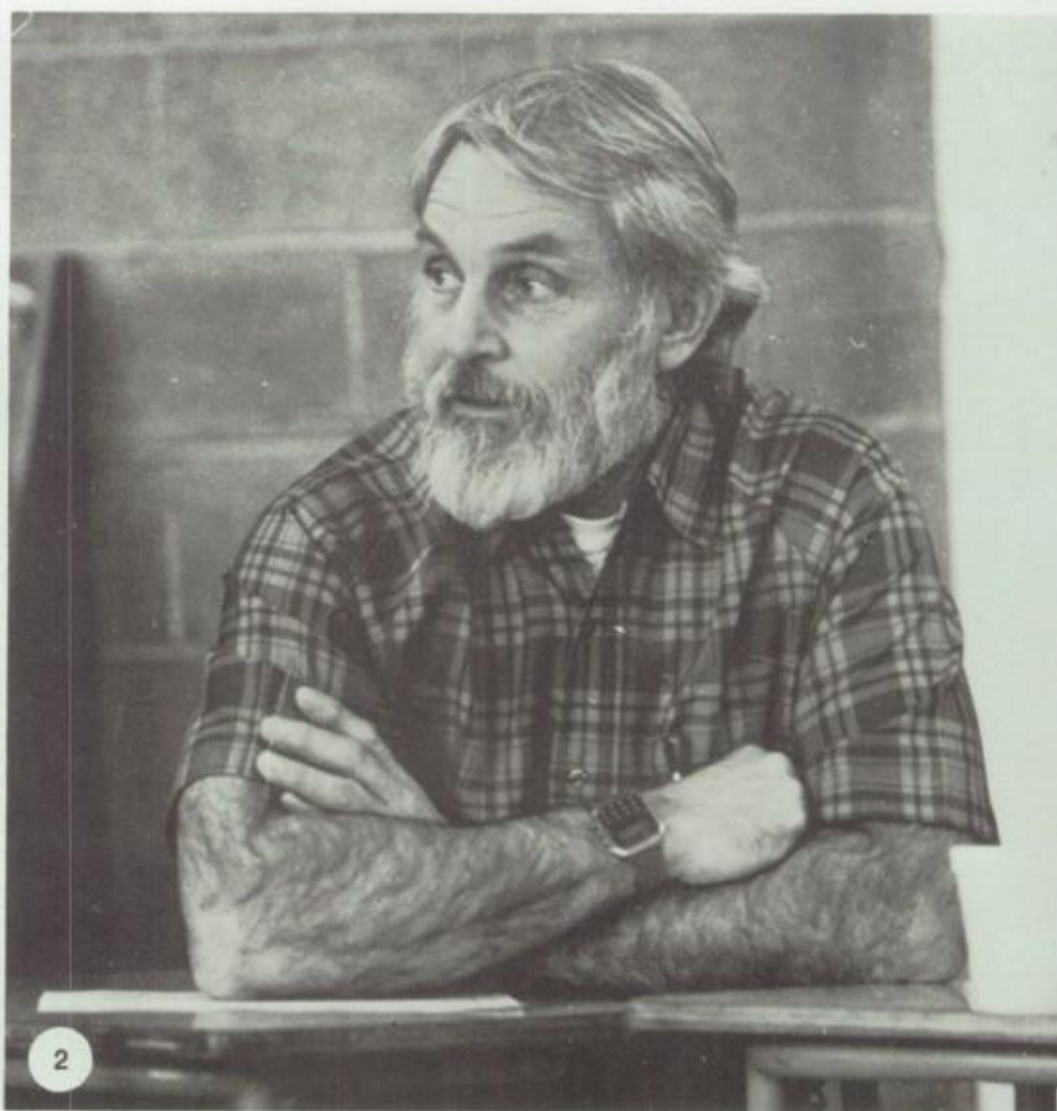

The department, led by chairman Mac Goodell, strove to provide students with a strong and useful background in mathematics, which they should be able to directly apply in the future.

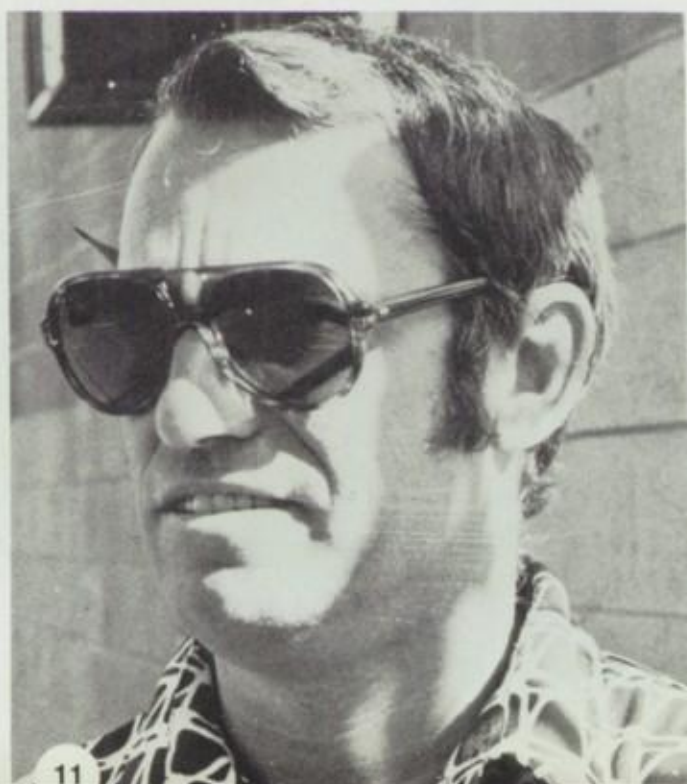

Calisthenics class added to P.E. list

The Physical Education department provided students with varied activities involving each student's physical development.

This year a calisthenics program was instituted and gave students a disciplined form of exercise. Other organized class activities included badminton, tennis, swimming, volleyball, and almost every other imaginable sport.

The PE department, headed by Mr. Bosch, had 11 faculty members and like all other departments, had to deal with LHS' increasing number of students. They dealt with the problem by allowing only the upperclassmen to choose their activities and regulate the activities of others.

1) "Who, me?" asks Mr. DeCicco. 2) Keeping a wary eye on the activities is Don Womble. 3) Gail Sauro returned to the dance instruction section after a year's absence. 4) Mrs. Locke, the newest member of the department, times a swim meet during the March monsoon. 5) Athletic Director Bob Whittaker raises rally spirits. 6) Mrs. George instructs her class in tennis basics. 7) Daily callsthenics were supervised here by Mrs. Miller. 8) Fred George calls the shots in his classes. 9) At a rally, Mr. Sowers introduces the football team. 10) Mrs. Stafford tosses us a smile during warmups. 11) Mr. Bosch hides his thoughts behind his shades.

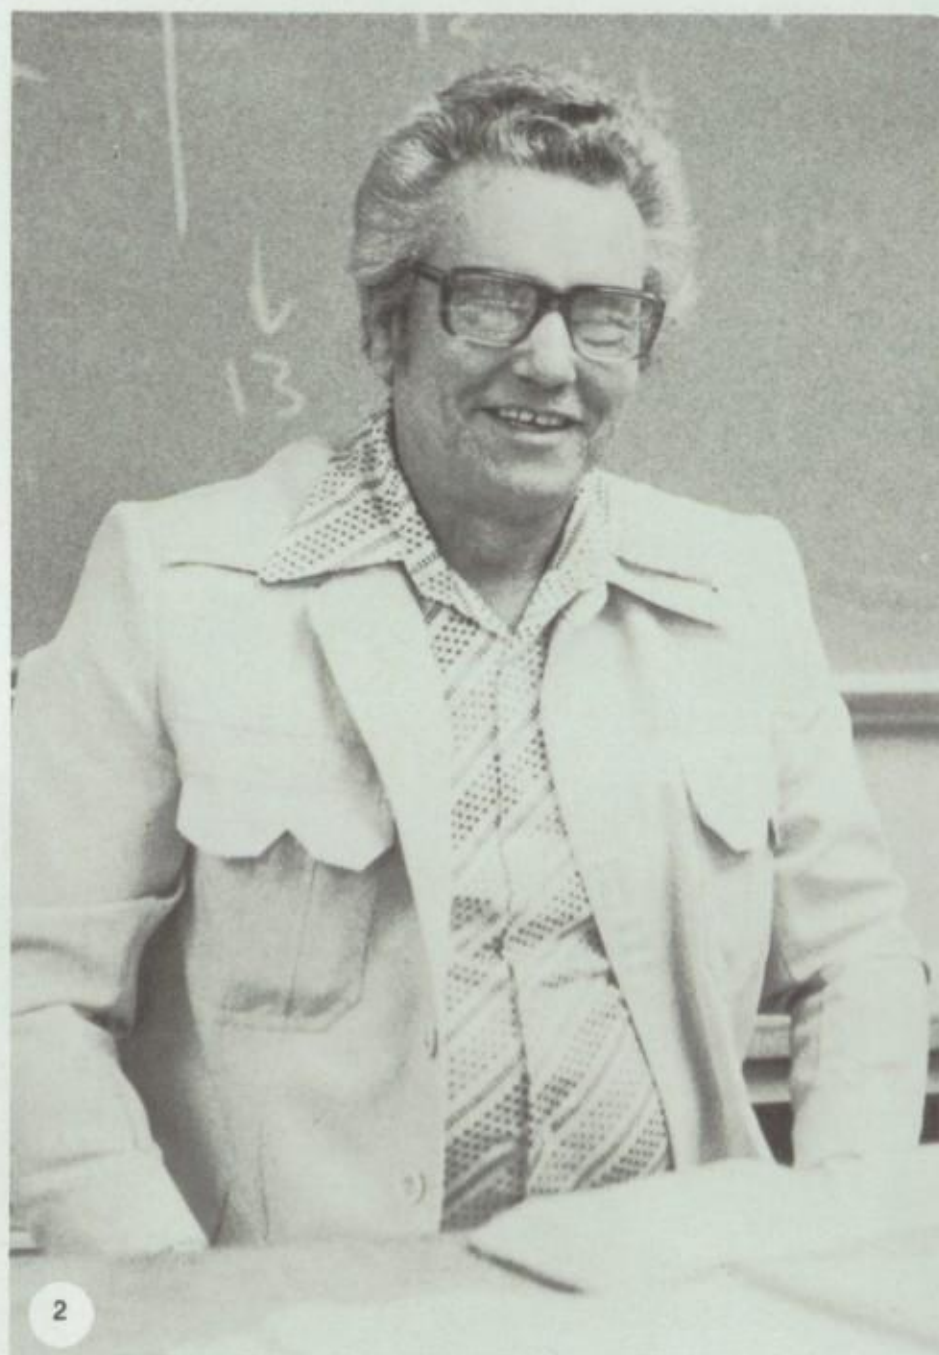

Wierd experiments offered in sciences

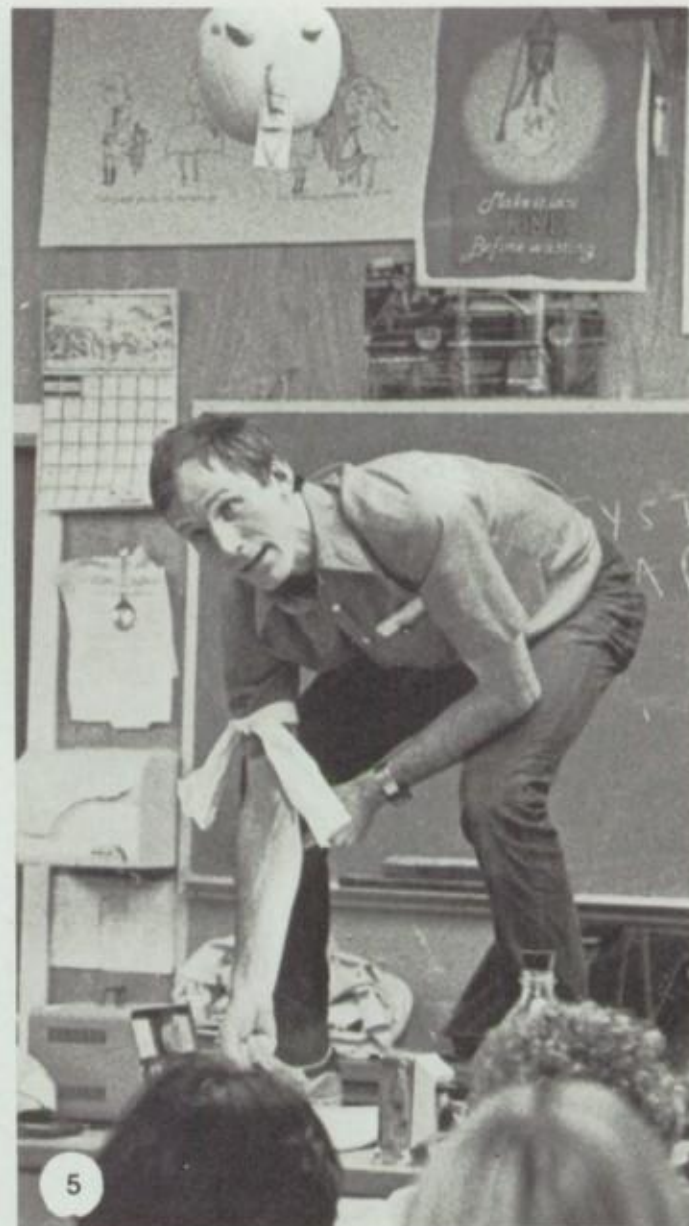

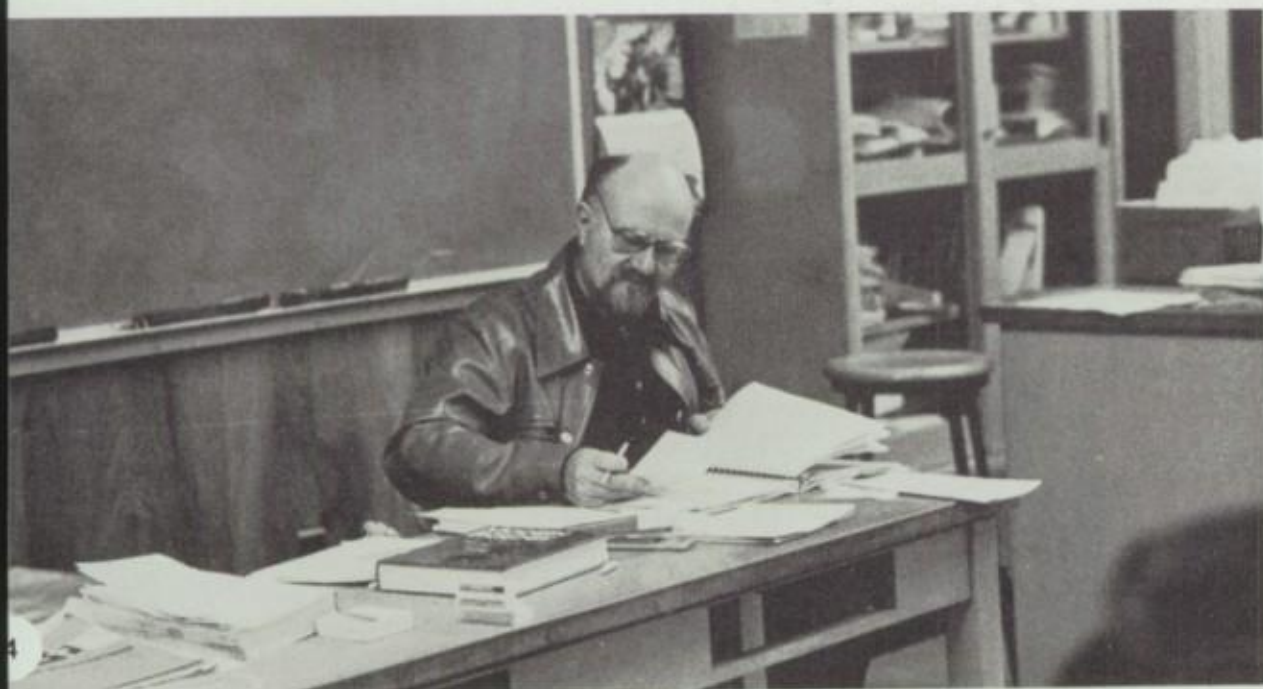

The science department continued this year with the philosophy that "experiments are very useful teaching materials." To that end, Mr. Bruce Ratcliffe brought the department lots of attention with his physics and science experiments.

The department, headed by Mr. Jud Hamilton, offered classes in chemistry, physiology, biology, astronomy and zoology. In most of the classes, experiments were conducted enabling students to see science "in action."

Photography was also offered by the science department. Here students learned to expose and process film and print the results as photographs.

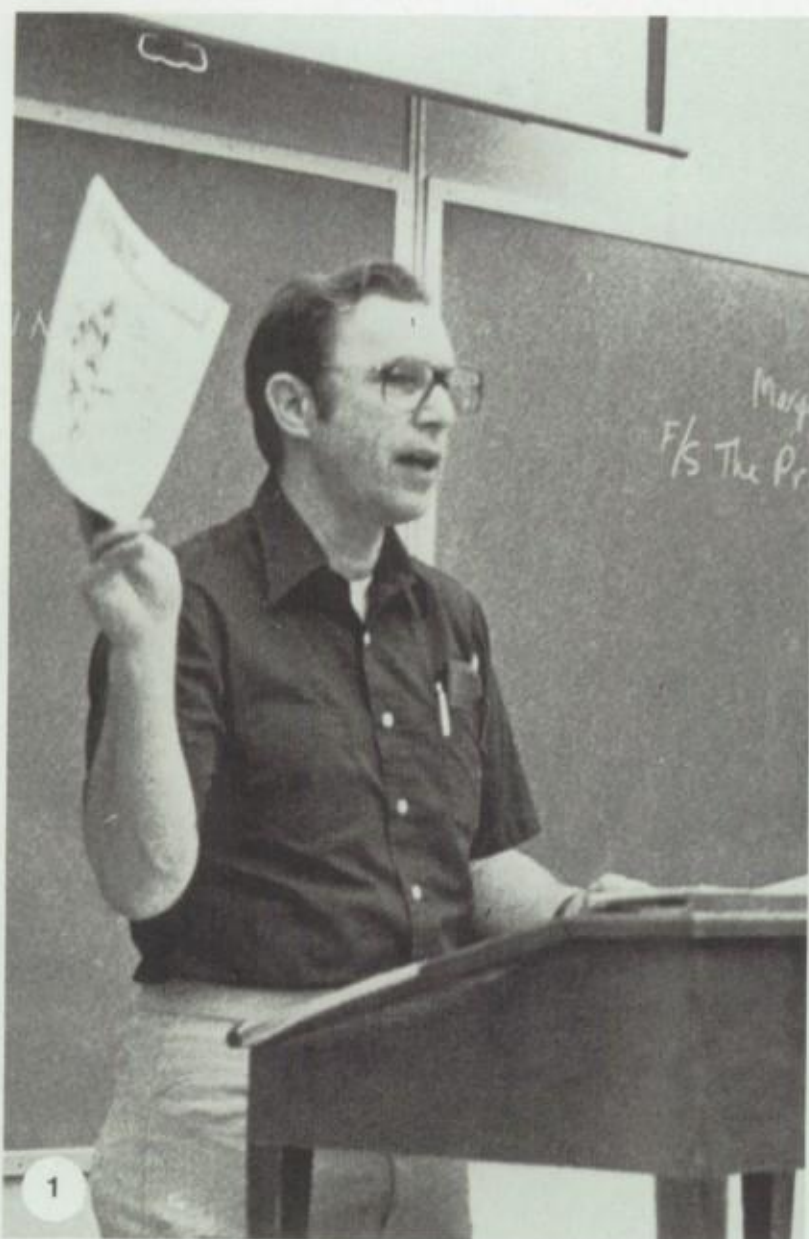

In all, the science instructors provided a wide variety of material for probing students' curiosities.

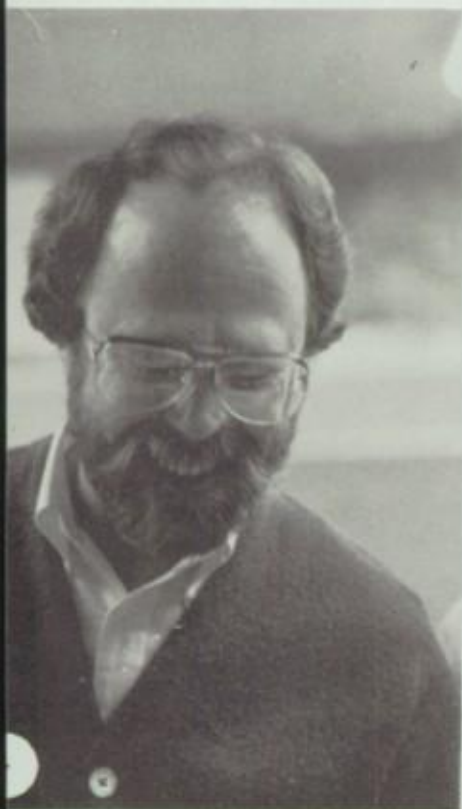

1) Mr. Ken Warburton awaits another attack on his mailbox. 2) A pleasant smile was usually one of Mr. Jewell's trademarks. 3) Mrs. Johnson has been with the science department for over 10 years now. 4) Grading papers after school, Mr. Clausen makes the pass-or-fail decisions. 5) One of Mr. Bruce Ratcliffe's notorious experiments takes shape. 6) Mr. Loken caught in a quick conversation. 7) Mr. Jud Hamilton handles science and photography classes at LHS.

1) Mr. Art Raab points out some of the subtleties of American politics to his class. 2) Student questions cause John Fletcher to listen intently. 3) Bruce Lattimer uses the phone to catch up on a student's attendance record. 4) Psychology and other social studies were offered in John Whitted's class. 5) Patsy Hood worked in the special education and speech therapy sections. 6) Mr. Marks taught driver's education this year. 7) A familiar face at LHS is that of Mr. Janecky of the social studies group. 8) History is the specialty of Robert Clemons.

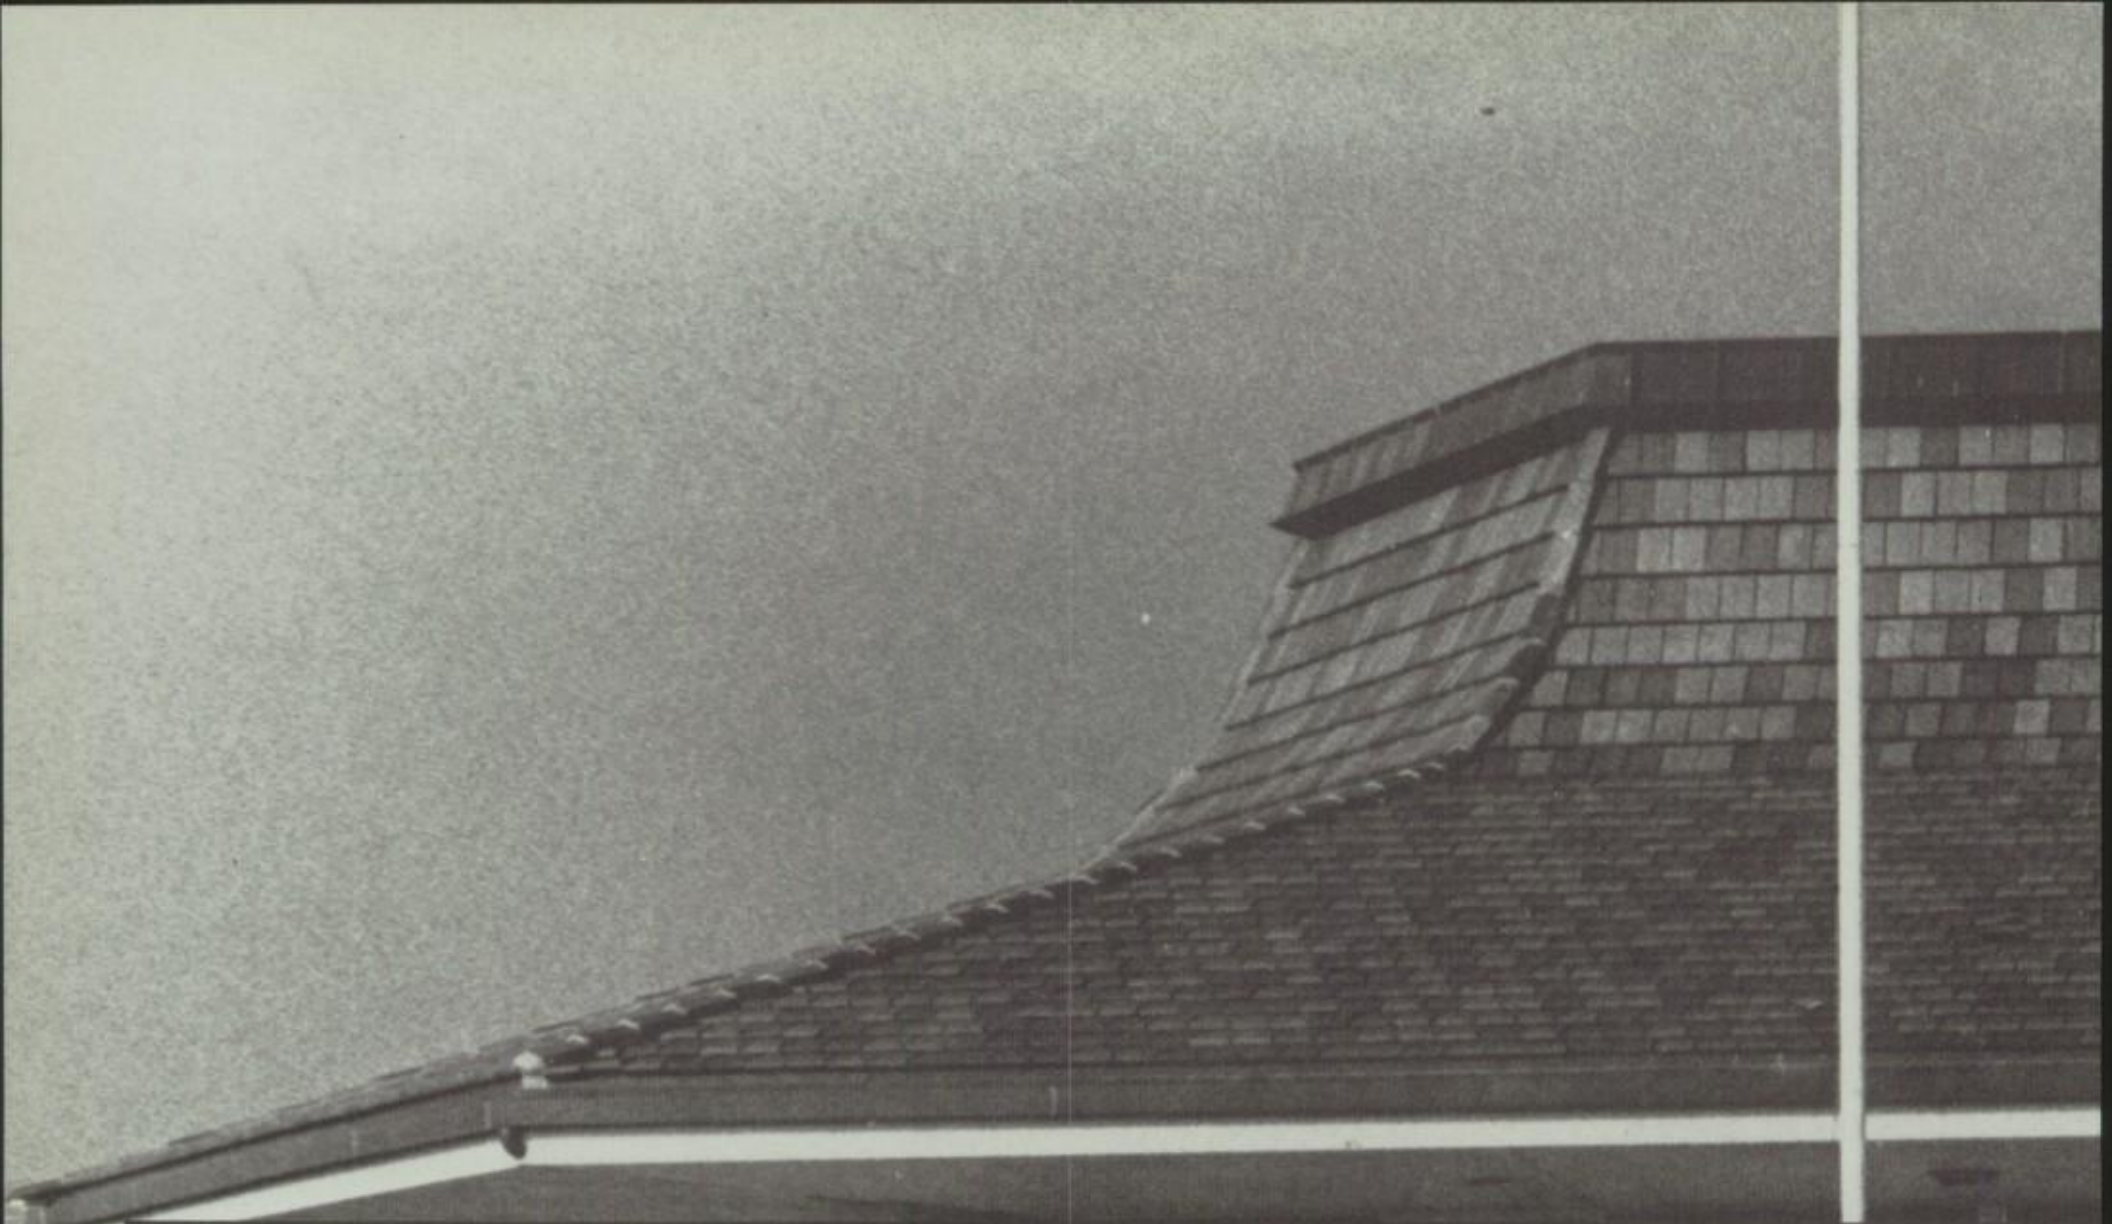

Class size created headaches for our social science dept.

The fifteen or so teachers in the LHS social science area have had to try to adjust to the growing student enrollment, making class space tight and increasing the number of homework papers needing to be corrected. Because they are required courses for graduation, the History and Government sections tended to be extra-large this year, as lack of available space and class time slots forced additions to the roll sheets.

Besides the required classes, the department offered a diversity of subjects at all levels, from Geography to Psychology.

The group was led this year by chairman Robert Clemmons, and felt it had enjoyed a successful year, based on student enrollment and test scores.

People Made It Happen!

The year has now ended, and we have only the memories of what was unique, memorable, and interesting. We have changed, almost without noticing it. Look around you...can you see the changes?

After we have gone, the changes will continue...perhaps the buildings may look the same, and the uniforms, and the events,...but it will not be us, and it won't really be the same.

Long after you finish reading this, and close the book for the first time, you will keep the memories you gained here. Perhaps what you remember may be a bit different, or not quite clear. This book will serve as a link to these events and all these people, and to the way you were then. We have tried to show that it really wasn't the events, or the buildings, or the slogans which mattered. It was the people who made it happen.
